

EVERYTHING OUT AND DRIED.

Latest Plans of the Rangers to Control the State Legislature.

IN NEED OF AN EARLY TRAIN

Lincoln Citizens Want a Chance to Get Home From Omaha in the Morning—Other Capital City News.

(FROM THE BEE'S LINCOLN BUREAU.)

With the departure of the politicians, who have held sway in Lincoln and who were provisionally snored in together here in one little bed, as it were, order seems to have been evolved out of the chaos, and the mandate has gone forth that the only way to defeat Van Wyck must be by secret caucuses. Mr. Gere has had his own paper and his next friend, the Omaha Herald, interview him, and both seem to agree that the only way to elect a red hot republican must be by a caucus, and the Herald and Journal are an excellent partnership for the work. It has been quietly ascertained since the election that in spite of the care exercised when nominations in the county were made, two of the legislative members-elect in Lancaster county will vote for Van Wyck in preference to Boyd or the doctor, and this is a break that the management propose to throttle at once. The idea, to them, of having republican members of the legislature in this county who will support Van Wyck instead of Doc Miller, is gall and wormwood, and if it had only been known in time the State Journal would have given them the same kind of support it did the republican ticket in Saline county; that is, it would have fought them. The Lancaster delegation is supposed to be for Cobb, but if Jim Laird or some party of his standing in incorporation influence stands a ghost of a show, Judge Cobb had better dismiss his boom with a blessing, for it would be left entirely out in the cold. The local political lobby here has done a good deal of hard work the past week, which can be embraced as follows: They have organized the legislature, in the senate, by electing Walt Sweeney secretary and having the lieutenant governor appoint the two senators here as chairmen of the committees on appropriations and public buildings. The house has been organized by electing Newcomer speaker, who was on the ground to accept; Brad Slaughter clerk, and a new office has been created to fit Jim Caldwell, that of editor of the whole house. Lancaster men will be chairmen of the two before mentioned committees, so that no hitch will be made in taking in the appropriations, and the rest of the pipes are left to trade. Now, therefore, when a legislator approaches the capital city, this elegant scheme will be exhibited to him. Everyone will be reported as in favor of the state, and the legislator will be invited to step into the boat, will be given the honor of chairman of the committee on mines and mining, and in this way the scheme will be strengthened for final consummation. It is sort of "the people be damned" programme all around.

AN EARLY TRAIN WANTED. If a Lincoln man is in Omaha and wants to get home in the morning hours he may find it difficult to get a car, as the solicitor passes, but not one of them run trains so that he can land at home earlier than 11:30 a. m. To say this is a great inconvenience is a growing one, and it is daily, weekly and tri-weekly, becoming a subject of much concern among Lincoln citizens, is but voicing a fact that is growing apparent to all. Going in the car direction trains seem to be scheduled to land passengers in Omaha at almost any hour in the day, and coming home at night, a Lincoln man can stay in Omaha until ten o'clock, fully illuminated and yet reach home the same night with the three roads, the Burlington, the Missouri Pacific and the Union Pacific, all competing lines. The public now recognize this as a growing one, and from Omaha to Lincoln is a necessity, and the road that comes to the front with a time card announcing such a train will step into a business at once. The question seems to be, how can the B. & O. run its new Ashland cut off, fill the breach? A gentleman of this city is confident that they will. For three months this winter the tide of emigration will be toward Lincoln and business will be lively for the road that comes to the front for the accommodation of the public. The question of the opening up of the new Omaha line seems to be yet in darkness, and the company have as yet made no announcement in the premises.

THE HIPPODROME entertainments given at Temple hall Saturday evening, and sports from Omaha, headed by Jack Hanley, late of Lincoln, was a tame affair both in attendance as well as in scientific points, and the Marquis is a growing one, and it is daily, weekly and tri-weekly, becoming a subject of much concern among Lincoln citizens, is but voicing a fact that is growing apparent to all. SHERIFF EISENBERRY, of Cass county, left at the insane hospital a very violent patient who has been at that place some four different times heretofore, and whose madly apparently is worse than ever, so that his residence at the asylum must be permanent. The patient has a long history of mania, and it is a sad fact that he has some foundation for his loss of mental balance that has led to his burial in the asylum and henceforth a state charge. The sheriff in bringing the man on the train had a not pleasant task to perform.

NEW RULES FOR BASE BALL.

Chicago Herald. The changes made by the league in the playing rules for base ball are evidently in the interest of the batsman and are in response to a general request that the game be restored to something like its original form. Under the rules obtaining of late base ball has been a pitcher's game, and only when the man in the box gave out or proved himself to be ineffectual was it possible for the spectators to see anything like a complete contest. Base ball without batting and base running is not base ball. The most enthusiastic admirers of the game will be eventually of more pitching and catching, no matter how scientific they may be. Hereafter the pitcher must stand facing the batsman, and he is not permitted to throw the ball behind him or at his hip. It must be delivered in full view of the batsman. In addition to this regulation, which will necessitate a radical change in the deliveries of most of the great pitchers, certain restrictions have been placed upon the movements of the man in the box by which trickery will be reduced to the minimum. While six unfair balls will still give the batsman his base, the batsman hereafter will be put out on strikes until he shall have struck unavailingly at four balls. He will be out then, anyway, whether the catcher holds the final ball or not. A better arrangement all around would have been to have decreed a return to the old style of straight pitching. There was quite as much science in that as there is in the modern throwing, it did not pound up catchers, and it permitted a reasonable amount of batting, without which no game can be said to be particularly interesting to the average spectator.

AN EDWIN FORREST ANECDOTE.

Boston Budget. When Clark Jackson was casting his statute of General Jackson on a balancing horse, now in Lafayette square, Edwin Forrest, then playing an engagement at Washington, asked permission to cast a casting of a large part of it. On the day appointed for casting the statue Mills notified Forrest, who with other ladies and gentlemen assembled within the inclosure. The party cleared away while Forrest, who placed himself on a plank laid directly across the pit. At a given signal Mills removed the plugs from the furnace, and the molten bronze began to pour out from the furnace to the mold below. Unfortunately some water had got into the mold and a terrible explosion took place; the earth, sand and molten metal flew in all directions. Mills was knocked over by one of the sides of the inclosure was blown out; half the guests were knocked down or covered with earth; some were scorched, the others fled in dismay. When the smoke had cleared away Mills rose from the earth and discovered Forrest still standing on the plank across the pit. "Great heavens!" exclaimed Mills, "as soon as he had got his feet on the mold below, I hope you are not hurt." "Hurt," replied Forrest. "What is there to hurt anybody?" "Thank God," cried Mills. "But what 'bout 'frigtened?" "Frightened," replied Forrest, "why should I be frightened? I thought this was a part of the performance."
