Is Victoria Morosini Schilling in an Omaha Convent?

Where is Victoria?

A telegram was received here early yesterday morning from New York, stating that a party named M. Hernandez had written from Omaha to the effect that Victoria Morosini Schilling, the rich man's daughter and the coachman's wife was in this city and stopping at the convent of the Sacred Heart.

It was known, of course, that this luckless woman, after her father's severity, her own failure to succeed upon the stage, and the novelty of a wedded life with an adventurer had passed away, had forsaken her spouse and mysteriously disappeared.

All efforts to learn of her whereabouts have failed, and the telegram in question, it was thought, would bring her to light.

A reporter for the BEE accordingly drove to the academy yesterday morning and asked whether any information regarding the description of the missing woman had lately been entertained there.

The query provoked unfeigned astonishment and a forcible yet courteous denial from the madame with whom the conversation was had. "I do not think of it," she said.

"We have no such person as you describe in the convent," said the madame. "It would be against our rules to allow any person except ourselves to visit the convent."

The reporter suggested that Victoria, if looking for a convent, was doing so because she would not temporarily relinquish her position, and to avoid the annoyance and unhappiness of her unfortunate position.

He then related a few points in Mrs. Schilling's career, her desertion of her father, her marriage, her debut, and final wandering away.

"This caused the sister to have a sigh of regret and exclaim: 'I had not heard of her history. I do not know of her. But she is not here. We could not keep her even if we wished to do so.'"

"We could not harbor her, even if she had been recommended by one of our convents in which she might have been educated. Our convents are not intended for such purposes."

Several weeks ago a mother with her two children applied for admission, and we suggested to her to call upon the Franciscan sisters. But she, I know, is not the lady you are looking for."

The amount of room at our disposal now would prevent us also from harboring her, because we have no more room than we now require, and we have now over eighty scholars in the building."

"Have any ladies been recently admitted from the east?"

"The only ladies who have come to us from the east, have been here since last July. They are young and could not be mistaken for Mrs. Schilling. These came with recommendations, although members of the same family have been educated by us for many years."

"We have no such person as you describe in the convent," said the madame. "It would be against our rules to allow any person except ourselves to visit the convent."

is in progress, this rake-off amounts to considerable. All establishments that charge the "rake-off" percentage are considered regular gambling halls, the game played therein ceases to be a "little friendly one for fun, you know," and the regular fines are levied.

In another direction the city's revenue has increased the past year. Whereas there are now 178 saloons in the city, last year there were but 146. This is an increase of thirty-two and represents an increase in revenue of $22,000. Only six of this number pay the $1,000 license in one sum. The others pay quarterly and semi-annually.

Another and not inconsiderable item in the revenue is the money paid by the fallen women of the city. Of these, as Officer Turnbull reports, there are now about 200. The proprietresses pay $10 a month and the girls $6. The income of this number pay the $1,000 license in one sum. The others pay quarterly and semi-annually.

The strong winds upon the prairie yesterday morning resulted in a delay to all the trains. No. 3 by way of the Missouri Grand Island rolled in two sections, the first nearly on schedule time, and at 12:10 o'clock, nearly an hour behind.

It is understood that there is a mutual satisfaction on the part of the Union Pacific and Missouri Pacific, following the withdrawal of the latter from the depot on Tenth street. One reason assigned for this is the fact that the Union Pacific hereafter will be without a proximate rival for its Kansas City business.

The evening trains both from the east and the west were somewhat delayed by the wind and cold. Train No. 4 from the west on the Union Pacific, due at 9:30, did not arrive until 6:30, being an hour and ten minutes late.

LOVERS' QUARRELS.

Judge Stenberg Doesn't Want Them Settled in Police Court.

C. J. Smith was arraigned in police court yesterday morning. The charge against him was disturbing the peace. In reality according to his own story, he was the victim of a lovers' quarrel which ought never to have been brought into police court.

Smith, it seems, has been engaged to a young lady resident on Saunders street. Monday night the girl displayed a letter which bore strong evidence of having been written by a masculine hand. This aroused in Smith's breast mingled feelings of curiosity and jealousy, and he demanded that the letter be shown to him.

The lady refused. Smith tried to tear the letter from her. She skipped nimbly away and turned a deaf ear to his coaxing and threats. She swore that she would defend her honor and her life.

A violent quarrel ensued, which resulted in the girl's taking the engagement ring off her finger and throwing it in Smith's face. One after another she showered at him the trinkets which she had secured from her lover, vowing to have nothing more to do.

Stenberg dismissed the prisoner, with the remark that the police court was no place for lovers to settle their quarrels.

Out of four drunk men who were released, Florio Aubrey was committed in default of a fine of $5 and costs, and John Hanson was sent up for ten days.

He has been on a spree for a month and is all but suffering with the influenza. He is charged with stealing an overcoat from a man named Comblad, was sentenced to thirty days in the county jail.

Charles Reilly and James Miner also charged with stealing coats were held for trial.

FORGING PENSION PAPERS.

An Old Soldier Being Tried for That Crime.

In United States court yesterday morning, the trial of H. C. Griffiths, for forging pension papers for one Joseph R. Hughes, was commenced.

Griffiths is an old soldier and has lost both legs. This fact entitles him to a good deal of sympathy. "We have got a dead sure case against him," said District Attorney Lambertson yesterday.

"The only thing that can possibly save him is the fact he lost both legs in the late war," said Griffiths.

Griffiths was charged with forging pension papers for one Joseph R. Hughes, was commenced.
