Serious Charges Against a Husband. The last case docketed for the coming term of the district court is rather a sad divorce proceeding, as given in the petition of the plaintiff, Effic S. Pryor, who alleges the most cruel treatment on the part of her husband, William A. Pryor, who is a druggist in Omaha. She states that soon after their marriage he began to drink to excess, and that he not only neglected his home and her, but that when at home he made it a hell. She asserts that he was so fearful lest she would become a mother, that he caused her to take fearful doses of various drugs, and when she learned the purpose of them and refused to take them longer, he abused her. By his treatment she claims to have been completely broken in health. She has one child and she asserts that caress or hardly look at the babe, but has been most cruel to it, giving it opiates in great quantities and causing it to be kept in a cold room, thereby endangering its health. She declares further that he would not allow her to see any of her friends, and in other ways so harassed her life as to make it an unbearable bur den. She not only wants freedom from matrimonial bonds and custody of the child, but such financial relief as the court may see fit to make him give, he

A Dirty Case.

In the superior court yesterday the case of Thomas McFadden, charged with seduction, was still taking the time and attention of the court. The only apparent defense was that the woman was not so chaste as she claimed, and witnesses were introduced to attempt to break down her character. One of the attorneys for the defendant Askwith, tried to get even the reporters excluded from hearing the case. In this he did not suc-ceed, however, and the reporters kept their seats until they had learned enough of the matter, when they left of their own accord. After hearing Askwith attempt to examine witnesses it seemed no wonder that he did not want to have newspaper men, or in fact others, listen to his methods of conducting a case. The affair throughout is a dirty one, and the result will only be watched with interest by those who are connected with the case, or who are acquainted with the parties concerned, they being all from Walnut. The case will probably reach

Sudden Death.

About 1 o'clock yesterday morning Mrs. E. Waterman was awakened by her little child, Adelia A., aged two months, coughing quite hard. A fter a brief period the little one was again sound asleep, lying on its mother's arm. At 7 o'clock Mrs. Waterman arose, and when dressed went to the bedside and discovered her little child was dead. The funeral will take place to-day at 2 o'clock from the family residence, No. 208 Stuts-

UNION DRIVING PARK.

A Doctor Puzzled About a Mysterious Patient-Prospects of Coal in Council Bluffs-A Wife Tells a Sad Story.

A Union Driving Park.

The proposed building of a wagon bridge at the foot of Broadway causes other enterprises to be talked up, and among the most important and most practicable is that of a union driving park. It is understood that a move is on oot for using the Council Bluffs grounds for races, and form an association made up of both Omaha and Council Bluffs. Each city has heretofore been holding separate meetings, but now the Omaha association is in a quandary as to what it can do in the future. Their grounds are simply leased, and the term is out next year, so that some change must be made. The owner is not willing to lease it any longer for track purposes, but intends platting it and selling it off for residences. Under these circumstances the Omaha under these circumstances the Omana nasociation is considering the advisability of uniting with the Council Bluffs association in holding their meetings here. The grounds on this side are quite as convenient to Omaha as any that could be secured on the other side of the river. Here the grounds are all arranged, suitable buildings and improvements already made, and everything in readiness for holding meetings at any time. The mile track here is considered one of the best and speediest of any in the country. It has already gained a reputation to the leaves of the second of the tion and is popular with horsemen, and with a strong association made up from both cities, it could draw more and better horses here than any other place west of Chicago. With the wagon bridge at the foot of Broadway, it would be very easy for Omaha people to attend the races if held here, and the project seems to meet with favor by all who have considered it.

Diary of a Physician. "Once in a while bread cast on the waters does come back," remarked a well-known doctor in a few moments of leisure. "I remember one morning about a year ago I was called up to go and see a sick woman, It was about 4 o'clock in the morning, and the boy who came after me could not tell me exactly where the woman lived, but said he would go with me. When we got to the place I found it to be a dug-out, one of those horrible holes in the outskirts of the city. There lay on the rudest sort of a couch a beautiful woman. She did not seem to belong to any such place, and I don't know how she came to be there She was confined, and after attending to her she wanted to know of me what my bill was. She spoke up in such a business-like way that it surprised me, for generally those in the dug-outs expect to be treated for nothing, and we never consider it worth while to charge any such bills on the books, for we seldom get enough out of it to say for the paper on which the of it to pay for the paper on which the account is kept. I told her that I would not charge anything, as she was evidently too poor to pay anything. She said she was not prepared to pay just then, but she wanted to know how much it was and she would see that I got my pay. It told her all right, that when she got around to it she could stop into the office and give me $10. The incident had almost passed from memory, when, about two months ago, a carriage rolled up in front of my office and a richly dressed woman got out and came into the office, She wanted to see me a moment, she said, and asked me if I remembered of treating and asked me if I remembered of treating her a year before. I could not recall her at all, and finally she recalled the circumstances, by which I found she was the same woman whom I had attended in the dug-out. She said she wanted to pay her bill, and opened a little hand-satchel which she carried and took out fifteen dollars and handed me. I saw as she opened the satchel that she had plenty more left, for there was a big roll of bills and a large number of gold pieces. Her dress and every circum-stance indicated that she was well-to-do, and she did not act or talk like a sporting woman. She threw no light upon her case or history, and when I asked her where she was stopping she told me that she had just come into the city and was going to the Ogden house. The next morning I saw her in a carriage going to the depot from the hotel, and learned that she took the K. C. train. She was a mystery to me. She was an apparently

Coal in Council Bluffs. The startling discovery of coal in Omaha has caused almost as much of a jubilancy on this side of the raver. There are many predictions made, every one prefaced, "if Omaha has really got coal," but all ending with the declaration that it will be a big thing for this side of the river as well as for that. There are not a few who believe that if there is a coal vein on the west side of the river a like vein can be found on this side, and that if it is a true find there it will pay to dig here. If the Omaha find is all right it will not be long before Council Bluffs is bored with holes like a skillet. There have been several such supposed finds in the history of this city, and there has for a long time been a confidence expressed by many that sooner or later coal would be found here in paying quantities. When Conrad Geise was digging his well at the brewery, traces of coal were found, and there was some little commotion caused then. The water rushing in prevented any very thorough investigation, but that there was coal struck, and of a very good quality is certain. There has been supposed to be coal at Myrster Springs, and some investigation has resulted in dissome investigation has resulted in dis-coveries leading to a confirmation of the theory that coal is there in paying quan-tities. All these circumstances are being recalled with special interest in view of the announcement made of the find in Omaha.

WORTHILY WEDDED.

BUTTS-MICHENER. At Marengo, Ia., on Thanksgiving evening, at 8:30 o'clock, Miss Cora L., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Michener, of that city, was wedded to Mr. Williard H. Butts, of Council Bluffs. The ceremony took place at the residence of the bride, and was performed by the Rev. W. Phelps, pastor of the Presbyterian church, in the presence of a large number of guests, many of whom were from a distance, and several from Chicago, being friends of the groom.

After the usual congratulations, at f o'clock the company partook of refresh-ments, and Mr. and Mrs. Butts took the 10:30 o'clock Chicago, Rock Island & Pacif-ic train for Council Bluffs, where they have taken up their residence at No. 238 Seventh street.

The bride is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Michener, and was born in Adel, Ia. She has resided in Marengo for the past ten years, where she has a large circle of friends, who will greatly miss her cheerful, helpful presence. The groom, who has resided in this city a little over a year, having removed here from Chicago with his parents, is well known as a young man of integrity and ability. He is proving successful in business and winning his way by merit. The young folks are heartly welcomed to a residence in Council Bluffs.
