

THE SUNDAY BEE. COUNCIL BLUFFS

SUNDAY MORNING DEC. 26. OFFICE, NO. 12, PEARL STREET. Delivered by carrier in any part of the city at twenty cents per week.

H. W. TILLEY, Manager. TELEPHONE: BUSINESS OFFICE, No. 43. NIGHT EDITOR, No. 23.

MINOR MENTION.

N. Y. Plumbing Co. Burhorn for bargains. New fall goods at Belter's. Who says Grandy's cigars are not fine? Complete sets of Dickens for $7.50 at Bushnell's.

4,000 pounds of fine candy at reduced price, Palmer's, No. 12 Main street. 4,000 pounds of fine candy at reduced price, Palmer's, No. 12 Main street. 4,000 pounds of fine candy at reduced price, Palmer's, No. 12 Main street.

The Catholic ladies give a festival in J. J. Brown's building next Wednesday night. H. Shonemaker has sold his residence property to Mrs. Persis Stacy for $3,500.

Miss S. W. Ingersoll, one of the Cherokee teachers, is visiting Rev. Dr. Conroy and family. The lady clerks of the Bankrupt store presented the proprietor, Mr. Goldberg, with an elegant easy chair.

James N. Brown, of Burhann, Talley & Co., has returned from his extended eastern trip in time to spend the holidays at home. The schools have closed until one week from tomorrow. In several of the schools there were appropriate closing exercises Friday afternoon.

An employee of the Chicago & North-western, named Anderson, yesterday morning got his fingers smashed while coupling in the yards here. Services in the Congregational church today. Morning subject: "God's Great Gift." Evening: "The Faithful Saying." A cordial invitation is extended.

Johnny Keating is taking a rest from faithful application to studies at the Home, South Bend, Ind., and spending the holidays at his home in this city. The printers' ball last night was a great success. There were a variety of costumes, many of them very novel. The attendance was very large, and the enjoyment ran high.

The Dodge Light Guards have organized by the choice of W. L. Patterson as chairman, and J. R. Barrett as secretary, and will provide for a permanent organization as rapidly as possible. Officer Leonard, of the police force, has laid off his blue and his star to don the grey and the badge of a letter carrier. A more faithful stationer than many could not be named for either position.

The pastor of the Baptist church will preach at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Subject for morning: "The Birth of Christ." In the evening: "The Salvation Army, Its Strength and Its Character." The books presented by Mr. Beno to the Sunday school of the Baptist church were not intended for the poor alone but for general distribution. The giving was a generous one and its purpose commendable.

Some of the saloon men, who pay license, are complaining because some of the gambling houses have not been made to contribute to the city's support of late. They propose calling the attention of the authorities to the oversight in gathering in revenue. Rev. G. W. Crofts, of the Congregational church, was remembered Christmas by the other members of his church and congregation presenting him with a little satin bag containing $100 in gold. The young folks presented him with an elegant easy chair.

George Radlo, the well known commercial traveler, who has been representing Lantz Bros. & Co., in this part of the west for a number of years past, will on January 1 start on a tour of the loan business in Omaha. George has lots of energy and will no doubt go to the front in his new enterprise. The new venture can hardly be called new, as he has been doing a similar kind of business in Omaha real estate for the past five years.

Frank Till, arrested here as answering the description of a man wanted for grand larceny in Dakota, was yesterday released, the visiting justice ordering his release until Omaha to look over a man named Hunt arrested on a like description. Some more real estate deals, of goodly size, are being closed, and the papers will be placed on record within a few days. The activity in real estate at this season of the year is remarkable.

Another real estate deal is the eastern capitalists are taking hold with even more enthusiasm than the home folks, although the latter are investing more largely than for years past. Omaha is also getting into the Omaha Council Bluffs real estate. When the spring time comes there will be a still greater activity.

The business houses were nearly all opened yesterday morning, but the business was done and the most of the places closed early in the day to allow those connected with them to eat turkey and put in a little time at home getting acquainted with their families. Council Bluffs is one of the busiest places in the land, and the retail stores and many of the offices are kept open evenings as well as days, and more money is devoted to business than in most cities of this size. Even Sunday is not exempt from work with many. For Council Bluffs to devote even a portion of a holiday to rest and recreation is therefore a more tribute to the day than for many other places to close up tight from morning till night.

See Moore & Kiplinger's elegant presents to their customers. One chain with each 25c purchase. 419 Broadway. The Burlington Murder. A private telegram received here states that the body of Miss Burlington, the supposed victim of the crazy mite, Bingham, has been found seventeen miles from Raleigh. Her head was horribly mutilated. Bingham, who disappeared after threatening to kill her, is believed to have broken his vengeance on a supposed rival here, has not out in any appearance as yet.

4,000 pounds of fine candy at reduced price, Palmer's, No. 12 Main street. 4,000 pounds of fine candy at reduced price, Palmer's, No. 12 Main street. We carry a larger stock than ever before. Our stock is the cleanest, best assorted, newest design in the city. Our prices defy competition. See and convince yourself. Burhorn, Jeweler, No. 17 Main street.

Notice, I. O. O. F. All members of Council Bluffs lodge No. 49, I. O. O. F., are requested to meet at their hall to-day (Sunday) December 26, at 3 o'clock p. m., to make arrangements to attend the funeral of Bro. Wm. Noble on Monday. J. B. DUFF, N. G. D. S. BRENNEMAN, Sec'y.

MANY MAKING MERRIMENT.

A Few Sad Rhades, Thought, to the Glad some Doings of the Day.

DEATH OF WILLIAM NOBLE.

No Step to the Boom—A Short Sermon—A Christmas Morning Fight—Petty Thievery—Entertainments and Church Services.

Christmas Hitters. About 2 o'clock yesterday morning a telephone message came to the police station to the effect that Dave Kippin had been killed in a row, and Officer Unthank started out to see about it. He soon learned that Kippin was not dead, but was reported as being hurt. Four fellows walking along Broadway were pointed out as the ones concerned in the row, and Unthank proceeded to take them in. He did not dare blow his whistle for more officers, lest the fellows hearing it would break into a run so he concluded to quietly corral them himself. He placed them under arrest, and single handed started to march them to the city jail. On the way one of them, Frank Chadwick, broke into a run and was fired one shot, but Peterson would not stop, so he was let go while the trio was marched into the station. They gave their names as Pat Moran, George Cooper and Frank Mercer. It appeared from further information that there was a crowd of these fellows in Pete McNulty's saloon on Broadway, having a boisterous time, and ending in a row. Kippin was hit in the face with a beer glass, and it is said McNulty drew a revolver and threatened to shoot a young man named Frank Dalton. The police had been at McNulty's place to close up as there would be trouble. The affair was a disgraceful one, but fortunately was not so serious as at first reported. Kippin had cut in his face, but not so bad as to prevent his celebrating yesterday.

Frank Peterson, who got away, went directly to a private house where a girl is employed who is very friendly to George Rorer. It was then 3 o'clock in the morning, and he got the girl out to see if she could not secure Rorer's release. He had a little money, and the girl came down to the station, and they were looking in an window, and planning to have the girl go in while Peterson was outside waiting, when one of the officers noticed them. Officers Unthank and O'Brien started out of the building, and the two started to run in different directions. They were speedily overtaken, and Peterson locked up, while the girl waited in the office for daylight before returning home.

McCann was just released from jail on Friday, the grand jury having found no crime against him. He had a revolver, but he had no money, much less did he draw one. He says that while in jail it was the common talk among the prisoners that Major Williams, just acquitted of killing Hughes, was wanted in Wyoming for killing a man there, and in Montana for another offense.

An information will probably be filed to-day against McNulty for keeping a disorderly house. His place has become quite troublesome to the police, and they have lost patience.

Masquerade suits at Mrs. J. E. Metcalf's for rent. None cheaper west of Chicago.

The annual renting of pews will occur at the Presbyterian church Monday, December 27, 1888, at 8 p. m. All existing contracts expire at that time. By order of the board of trustees.

Death of William Noble. Yesterday morning, just as the hands had passed the hour of twelve, a young man in a merry Christmas to many, William Noble passed into his eternal home, to there be welcomed by the heavenly greeting, leaving the come in sorrow on the very day on which other homes were so glad.

William Noble was born at Lynchburg, Va., in the year 1830, consequently was sixty-six years old at the time of his death. He went to Wisconsin at an early date, where he was married September 2, 1858. Afterwards he went to California, where he died of cholera. He settled at Shenandoah, Ia., in 1868, where he lived till 1881, when he became a citizen of Council Bluffs, where he has since resided. His excellent constitution resisted the painful disease with which he was afflicted until worn out with intense suffering. He was a man of strict integrity and strong convictions, was a member of the Methodist church, and had been a Fellow and Masonic orders. He leaves a widow and three children, two sons and a daughter, the former being here and the latter, Mrs. E. L. Moffat, at St. Paul, Minn.

The funeral will take place from the family residence on Franklin street under the direction of the Odd Fellows, on Monday, the 27th, at 12 o'clock, after which the remains will be taken to Shenandoah for interment.

Friends are invited to attend without further notice. Don't buy your new suit or overcoat until you look at those at Metcalf Bros'.

New goods and Christmas Novelties at Kirkland's, jeweler, No. 323 Broadway.

It Was Not a Strike. The clerks in Eiseman & Co.'s store gathered around Simon Eiseman Christmas eve, and through Mr. S. U. Stockman, as spokesman, informed him that there was a little matter which they wanted him to settle before they left for the night. He was surprised, and with the thought of a possible strike on hand, was about to give expression to it and offer to arbitrate, when the explanation of the mystery came in the pleasing form of an elegant gift to Mr. and Mrs. Simon Eiseman, consisting of a bronze, with plush frame, picturing in bas relief, "The Bear Hunt." The gift was a very valuable one, and prized still more highly on account of the feelings which led to such an expression of the esteem of employees. Mr. Henry Eiseman, who had modestly retired to the office, on getting a hint of how his brother was being served, was then surrounded by the employees, who presented him with an elegant gold-headed cane. The gift, like the other, was one which was a fitting expression of the esteem of the employees, and led to a worthy bestowal. It is seldom that one finds so extensive an establishment such a unanimity of good feeling between employers and employees as in the People's store.

Five hundred overcoats for boys and children, from $1.50 up. METCALF BROS.

Heating stoves at cost to close them out M. A. Wood, No. 594 Main street.

Burglarizing Brothers. The Galinsky brothers seem to have been singled out Christmas eve as bright and shining marks by thieves. One of the Galinskys keeps a second hand store near L. Harris' old stand on Broadway. The other brother has a similar place not far distant on the same street. The former of the Galinskys was awakened during the night by some one trying to break into the store. He seized his revolver and started up just in time to see a colored man making a hasty exit.

When the other brother awoke yesterday morning he found that some one had broken in the front window of his store and taken a pair of gloves and a pair of boots, together with a cheap revolver. It is a wonder that more was not taken, as there had been several new boots next to the second hand ones taken, and other goods which were not disturbed.

An elegant line of short wraps, newmarkets, etc., cheap, to close them out. JOHN BENO & CO.

The Publishers' Book sale will close out all holiday goods at less than wholesale prices.

The Prizes Awarded. The masquerade given by the Sons of Veterans proved a grand success and the judges had no little difficulty in determining the one entitled to the prizes. They finally gave the first, an elegant toilet case, to Miss Louisa Williams, as being the most handsomely costumed lady. To Mr. Charles Denny was given the prize of a shaving set, as being the most comically costumed gentleman. The judges also gave prizes to Stanley M. Scavlan, John Tompkins, Miss Nellie Abbott, Miss Lizzie Ambrose.

L. R. Crafts & Co. are loaning money on all classes of chattel securities at one-half their former rates. See them before securing your loans.

4,000 pounds of fine candy at reduced price, Palmer's, No. 12 Main St.

They Merit Praise. The Edible-Edible comedy played "Woman Against Woman" at the matinee yesterday and last night at Dohany's Opera house. The audience, as on Friday night, were highly entertained, as shown by the generous applause, and Miss Elsie and Frank Weston were several times brought before the curtain. The play throughout is one full of interest, and the entire troupe, in their respective parts, are doing very well. They play a three nights' engagement, beginning to-morrow night, at the Boyd in Omaha.

Stoves! Stoves! Stoves! For the next thirty days I will sell heating stoves at cost for cash only. P. C. DeVOR.

A fine, large line of the most elegant watches, chains, silver and plated ware, decorated China and glassware, suitable for holiday and wedding presents, at C. B. Jacquemin & Co.'s, No. 27 Main street.

A Short Sermon. The Baptist church has had printed for each of its three rooms ornamented cards with the following practical sermon: Sow Aets. Reap Habits. Sow Character. Reap Character. Sow Character. Reap Character. See that your books are made by Moorehead & Co., room 1, Everett block.

Centerville soft-lump coal, $3.75 per ton, delivered, Wm. Welch, 615 Main street, telephone 93.

No Whom to the Boom. The A. S. Bryant forty-acre tract north of the Ballard eighty and west of the K. C., has been sold by Odell Bros. & Co. Deeds for eighteen acres of the piece went on record yesterday. The remaining twenty-two acres will be transferred next week. The boom doesn't even intend to lay off for the holidays.

We have a fine large line of Christmas novelties that we are selling cheaper than ever was known, also nullers, silk handkerchiefs, ladies' and gents' gloves, clothing, fine seal-knives, etc. JOHN BENO & CO.

Personal Paragraphs. Dr. Small is spending the holiday season with Dr. Hanchett. Tony Everett has returned from his studies in the east to spend the holidays at home.

J. A. Steadman, editor of the Nonpareil, got his Christmas turkey at his home in Creston.

Miss Lizzie Crocker, of Fairmont, Neb., is the guest of the family of Captain D. J. O'Neill.

Judge J. P. Warner and wife, of Halvay, Idaho, are holiday guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Atkins.

Miss L. Valentine, one of Avoca's popular teachers, is spending the holidays as the guest of Mrs. J. M. Matthews, of this city.

J. Merrill, city editor of the Nonpareil, returned yesterday from Logan, where he has been at the bedside of his son, who has been dangerously ill, but who is now deemed almost out of danger.

C. M. Harl, who has gained such a servicable reputation by his oratory, is to deliver a lecture on Masonry at Watson, Mo., on Monday evening, before the fraternal assembly of that city and by their invitation.

J. A. Crowley has accepted the position of assistant manager of the McCormick Harvesting company, at Des Moines, and will enter upon his new duties January 1. He is one of the best known and best posted agricultural implement men in the west.

Shot In The Arm. A shooting affair took place about 11 o'clock last night in front of McNulty's Dew Drop in saloon, 719 Broadway. It appears that a young fellow named Douglas Burns, who lives at 1236 Lower Broadway, was in the saloon celebrating Christmas when he became involved in a dispute over the relative intoxicating qualities of Tom and Jerry and egg nog or some other such weighty subject. They repaired to the outside of the saloon to settle the dispute, when the unknown drew a revolver and fired upon Burns. The bullet took effect in Burns' arm above the elbow, inflicting a severe flesh wound. At a late hour the man who fired the shot had not been apprehended.

SHOVING THE QUEER. Hon. William M. Ewart's Early, but Innocent, Experience With a Forged Check. New York Sun: "Do you know," said a prominent member of the bar the other day, as he watched Senator William Ewart, Esq., entering along St. Mark's churchyard, "that the senator's first large fee as a lawyer didn't do him a bit of pecuniary benefit?" The reporter didn't know it. The incident occurred in 1812, when Ewart was only twenty-four years old, and a slim young lawyer with an old-fashioned choker collar, and his interrogative forefinger just beginning to be a noticeable part of his practice. He was then a criminal practitioner, and giving glimpses of that peculiar mastery of sentences of all sizes which has kept pace with the effective use of his forefinger.

Monroe Edwards, a very skillful and conscientious penman, had forged a check, got caught, and hired young Ewart to save him from Sing Sing. The trial came up on June 6, and lasted six days. The future senator stabbed at witness after witness with his deadly forefinger interrogatories, and finally appeared to the jury for his client's acquittal. It was a marvelous speech, full of the fire and impetuosity of youthful enthusiasm. It was the talk of the courts for months, and undoubtedly laid the basis of William Maxwell's fame as an advocate. But the jury freed itself from the glittering heap of brilliant sentences that young Ewart piled up in them, and sentenced Edwards guilty. The judge complimented Ewart, and then sent his client to Sing Sing for ten years. The prisoner complimented Ewart on his eloquence, too, and just before he was taken to the carriage to go to the Sing Sing train gave the tall young advocate a neat check, bearing the signature of a well known man. It was for several hundred dollars, and William Maxwell went promptly to the bank with it after he had bade his client good-by.

"No good," said the bank cashier, when Ewart handed it up for deposit. "Why?" cried young William Maxwell, in amazement. "The signature is a forgery, sir," the cashier responded.

"It is reported that this was the only occasion in his lifetime that, given a chance to use some vigorous and impressive sentences, William Maxwell Ewart signed a check for a hundred dollars. He simply stared at the check in silence."

Inclined to Abbreviate. A young man who wanted to draw $3 on a money order wrote "Chesterfield Chatham" under the words "Received the above," and presented the blue paper at the proper window of the New York post office. The clerk looked up the order of instruction sent by the issuing office in the interior, after a long delay showed his inquisitive face at the post hole.

"Certainly," was the reply. "Got any other names?" "Nothing but a 'no' today," the clerk said sharply, holding back the blue receipt.

"Alber—hold on," cried Chesterfield Chatham, the clerk's tremor. "For—I have another name, but—"

"What is it?" "Chadwick, Ler—think it is—yes, quite sure."

"Then sign it to that receipt. Wait a minute, got any more names?" "Aren't those sufficient?" "Got—any—more—names?" "Alber—hang it, sir, yes, one more—Chesterfield Chatham."

"Sign your full name to that receipt if you want to get your money. Wait, who sent to you?" "Chesterfield Chadwick Charrington Chatham named his distant friend."

"Where does it come from?" "The distant friend's town was mentioned."

"All right," said the clerk, and when three C's Chatham had exhausted an ink well in appending his name to the money order, the government employe gave him a small piece of white paper bearing certain eulogistic biographies.

"Present that to the paying teller," he said.

"Any more signing to do?" queried Chesterfield Chadwick Charrington Chatham, growing pale with the anticipation of renewed exertion.

"No more," said the clerk, and Chesterfield Chadwick Charrington Chatham went his way.

Judge Gresham and the Railway. Chicago News: Judge Gresham does not receive the talk about running him two years hence for president with any degree of favor. The other day, a few hours before he delivered his now famous opinion in the Wabash receivership case, he was sitting in his room, when ex-Senator Doolittle spoke about the boom that was going for the judge in the hands of a certain young lady, who said: "Well," said the judge, "I don't think much of this boom business. I have not said I was a candidate for president, anyhow, and even if I was it is early in the work of what will happen two years hence."

"I don't think," said a bystander, "that Gresham cares about being elected president. He has his young lady, his daughter, a charming young lady, to support; his only son, Otto, is practicing law in Indianapolis. Gresham is a great man for home life, and the coldest night that ever blew he can be seen ploughing his way through the snow on his way home. I ran into him on the north side near Ontario street that very cold evening two weeks ago. He was limping against the wind, and he called my name and his head and his face was as rosy as a schoolboy's. Walking is one of his favorite amusements."

David Buttrick, who was born in Concord, Mass., eighty-seven years ago, and his wife, also a native of the place, celebrated their sixtieth anniversary of their marriage the other evening. Their five sons fought in the war, and one was killed at Gettysburg.
