The city jail yesterday had a larger number of boarders than usual lately. The unlucky number, thirteen, took their dinner in the jail but they did not sit down to a fine spread; they were satisfied with one course and the whole of that served on tin plates.

There was a report around yesterday that early yesterday morning a colored man had been shot and killed. Before the day was out the report became quite general but it no doubt arose from the shooting of Burns by Woodburn late Christmas night.

The mercury was down in the mouth yesterday, registering from 8 to 10 de-grees below all day. Snow fell from early morn until late at night. It is seldom that one sees snow fall here when the temperature is so low, and the old settlers declare they never saw the like | the city jail.

The prisoners in the revolving county jail are now kept in their respective cells all the time as Jallor O'Neil has, since court has been in session, changed his mind and now believes his prisoners guilty until they prove their innocence. The big hearted jailor allows his boarders the privilege of the corridors usually, but during the sessions of court he has them locked up as a number of them are now convicted and several others will no doubt be in a few days.

"Comanche Bill," as William Lloyd. the well known general crook is known, since his conviction has not had a word to say, "Comanche, isually a loud-monthed rough "I don't care fellow, is now as quiet as a lamb and keeps his mouth to himself, no doubt brooding over the justice he received in being convicted and the injustice the "major" received in being set free. He never has a caller at the jail and it is very probable that the wife, whom he claimed resided in Hamburg, Ia., was some of his "wind." "Comanche" probably often thinks of how near he was to being again free when he attempted to dig out of the city jail and his attempt was frustrated by the eagle eye of the jailor. Schisler, who has not yet had his trial, says nothing whatever about the nurder of Keating, with which he is charged. He receives daily calls from his wife, but as yesterday was such a stormy day she did not put in an appear-

Edwards, the confidence man who was arrested by Transfer Officer McMillin in the very act of turning a trick, is considered a very slick "con" man and one who understands his business much better than "Comanche," who has the rep-utation of being more of a crow-bar barglar than a shek "con" man. His case will come up in a day or so and his victim is here awaiting a chance to appear against him. Ferris, who is in jail for dealing in mortgaged property, is said to have served a term in the Dakota penifentiary and his mother-in-law is the prosecuting witness against him. He will be ar-

the parties were somewhat under the influence of liquor when about 11:30 o'clock Christmas night a row began and Wood-burn followed Burns and the others out on the sidewalk and blazed away, the shot hitting Burns on the right arm and glanced off, scraping his breast and going through the left arm just below the elbow. Wood burn skipped while Burns and his friends reported to the police. The police im-mediately started after the would-be murderer but could get no trace of him until at an early hour yesterday morning they learned that Woodburn boarded at No. 1708 High street, and procuring a hack they repaired to his home. They found him in bed and made the arrest.

Burns after having his wounds dressed went to his home, No. 1326 lower Broad-way. His wounds are not serious. Patrick Madden, No. 1138 South Seventh avenue, and Edward Flynn, First avenue and Tenth street were booked at he police station as witnesses to the shoot-

He claims that they were all drunk and that Burns hit him in the eye and also on the side of the head, but he is not positive if he used a billy or not, but thinks he did and that he had to defend himself. He has lately been em-ployed in Stewart's packing house pulling bristles, but previous to that was em-ployed in the bridge gang at the trans-fer. A Missing Mute.

Captain T. J. Kennedy, of Des Moines, has a son, Robert, about nine years old, who is one of the brightest and best students in the deaf and dumb school here. He sent to the institution here to have the boy sent home for Christmas, and the family prepared for that day a royal feast to which they invited a large number of friends. A boy by the name of Douglas, whose parents live in De Soto is a boon companion of Captain Kennedy's boy, and the parents had arranged to have both boys come home at the same time. The captain made arrange-ments with the conductor on the Rock Island, who would leave Council Bluffs on the 24th, to bring the boy, and wrote to the superintendent to have him at the train. When Friday afternoon came the boy was not on the train, and the conductor reported he had not seen him. In his stead the captain received a letter from the superintendent stating that he would put the boy on the train on Thursday. The captain and family were at a loss to explain the mystery, or content themselves with any theory, but still hoped Robert would be sent on the Saturday train. The Christmas dinner was kept waiting, with the guests all gathered, until the arrival of the afternoon train Saturday, when the carriage sent to the trainreturned empty. The family was so broken down over the sad disappearance of the boy, and the sorrowful mystery as to what had be-come of him, that they had anything but a merry Christmas. Inquiry at the institution here led to the revelation that in accordance with the request of the parents, the superin-tendent had the boy taken to the depot to t he Publishers' book sale.

go home. The parents sent no money or ticket, and the boy had no money with which to pay the transportation. From the letter received from the parents it ap-peared that probably the conductor had been given the money, or other arrange-ments made with him, but the conductor did not understand it this way, and would not take the boy without a ticket, so Robert was brought back to the institution, there to spend his Christmas, safely and happily. The anxiety of the parents was great, and even after the relief coming from hearing that the boy is safe, the disappointment is great at not having him at home for the Christmas doings.

Testing Oil. There has been a good deal of difficulty in enforcing the oil inspection law in this state. Among the causes of dissatisfaction now proves to be the discrepancy in thermometers used. L. F. Andrews the assistant secretary of the board of health, in a Christmas talk on the subject of thermometers, of which be has made quite a study, says in this con-

"As a rule, the thermometers sold at the stores are practically worthless, they are only approximately correct-most of them not even that. Some of them may be nearly correct at low points, but at 100 deg, and above, be 15 to 20 degs, in error. Another thing, the mercury by constant expansion and contraction in a thermometer tube like an elastic rubber band by repeated stretch loses its strength so to speak, and the zero point, which is the starting point of a thermom-eter, changes, or is displaced as to the scale. This variableness in thermometers became a source of trouble very soon after the law providing for the inspection of petroleum went into effect.
All the apparatus for the testing of oil is furnished by the state board of healththat is, it must first be approved by the At first inspectors were supplied with the best thermometers that could be got from an extensive importing house in New York. It was soon discovered, for instance, that five barrels of oil drawn from a car tank, and sent to a northern point would be approved by an inspector, at, we will say, 105 degrees (the standard thermometer being 100 degrees.) Another live barrels from the same tank sent south would be rejected by another inspector at 96 degrees. Another five barrels sent west would be approved by another in-spector at 110 degrees. Now, there is a difference of fourteen degrees in three tests of the same oil. You can readily apprehend the result of such an inspection. Incompetency and even dishonesty were charged to the inspectors and deal ers became dissatisfied. New goods and Christmas Novelties at Kirkland's, jeweler, No. 328 Broadway. Weather strips at Chapman's, 105

Main st. A Strange Accident.

On Saturday afternoon about 4 o'clock unte an excitement occurred on Platner street. A strange accident occurred to Mr. H. C. Addis, who has just about recovered from the fracture of several ribs in an accident while driving in Nebraska. While at home Saturday he was in the act of yawning, and in doing so threw his lower jaw out of place, and was compelled to remain with his mouth wide open until the arrival of a doctor. As it happened, the men in the neighborhood were all away from home, and the ladies all became excited and knew not what to do. After the arrival of the doctor it was found necessary to administer chloroform to relax the nerves before the jaw could be replaced in its proper position. Hard and soft coal, best quality, all sizes. Missouri and Iowa wood. C. B. Fuel company, 539 Broadway. Telephone 136.

Counterfeit Labels, The eigarmakers' union of Dubuque are suing for injunctions and $2,000 damage against retail dealers there for using a bogus "blue label."

Some time ago the eigarmakers' union of this city called attention through this paper to those of this city and Omaha who were using the "bogus label," and the BEE gave the decision in a case in the east which had been decided in favor of the union. It seems that some here have heeded the warning. These who do not are threatened with early prosecution.
