A Heavy Judgment.
 The case of Cooper vs. Mills county, which has been so long in the courts, has an apparent finish put to it at last. The case, as will be remembered by many, is one in which damages were sought for injuries sustained by a robbery bridge.
 The verdict against the county of $25,000 was recently reduced by the supreme court to $15,000. Recently Judge Wright, together with Watkins & Williams, of Glenwood, petitioned for a rehearing in the case, which was resisted by the attorneys for the plaintiff, J. Y. Stone, and Frank Shinn. The supreme court a few days ago refused to grant the rehearing, so that the amount is now fixed at $15,000.
 It is understood that Mills county will issue bonds, and pay the judgment without further litigation.

 aroused suspicion and caused his arrest.

Crucifix From Court.
 The jury in the case of William Emerson yesterday morning returned a verdict finding him guilty of burglary. He is the colored man who last July entered the K. C. house and was found in the kitchen by young Gibson, son of the proprietor of the place. The two had a struggle and the darkey managed to get away. Afterwards Officer O'Brien came across him and another colored man walking along the railway track about ten miles out of the city. The officer arrested them, and was about to put the handcuffs on Emerson, when the other pulled a revolver and commenced shooting. The officer backed off, drew his gun and fired, and for a few minutes there was a lively fusillade. The two colored men ran and were soon lost sight of in the thick brush, but Emerson was taken and confined. His only defense to the charge of burglary was that of mistaken identity. He insisted that it must have been some other colored man who was in the hotel at that time, but the jury thought differently, and he will now go across the state.

Yesterday the time was taken in the trial of a young man named Webster, for forgery. H. A. Terry's name to a check for $12 and trying to pass it. It appeared that Webster was a bungler at the business.
 He was acquainted with a young man named Hatcher, who worked for Mr. Terry, who is a farmer near Crescent, and who had written the check for $12. Webster was given the check by Hatcher, and he was to take it to the bank. He was arrested while on his way to the bank, and the check was found to be a forgery.

her who but a few days before seemed assured of many years of joyful life. The occasion was a peculiarly sad one, and the tenderest sympathy was manifested for the stricken husband, and for the babe, in giving life to which the mother yielded up her own. The floral tributes were many and beautiful as arranged by the skillful fingers of L. A. Casper. They consisted of faith, hope and charity, heart design, on stand from John Mer-gen and wife, a lyre on rest from Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Newmeyer, a pillow, from Mr. and Mrs. Beck, wreath from Mr. and Mrs. Schoentgen; cross, from Mr. and Mrs. Max Mohr; anchor, from Alderman and Mrs. Straub.

Penned for Using a Pen.
 The jury in the case of Webster, charged with forging Mr. Terry's name to a check for $33, last night returned a verdict of guilty. This was as expected, for the only defense claimed was that the forgery was so poor that no one could hardly recognize it as being Terry's name at all. Had the jury acquitted by any such mysterious complication as set Major Williams free, the government was ready to pounce upon the young man for a violation of the postal laws, he having addressed to another party, and having used the mail for the purpose of crooked work.
