resort to Dominion ports or waters, for the time taken in such departures for the cod or halibut grounds was a loss both of time and money. The committee finds that, from a commercial standpoint, it is often a great ad-vantage for American vessels with cargoes vantage for American vessels with cargoes to put in at Canadian ports where there are railway connections with the states. In this respect the lack of reciprocal legislation on the part of the Dominion government is found to be disadvantageous. The committee, in conclusion, recommends the pussage of the bill as reported.

DECLARED OFF.

Anarchist Spies' Marriage Will Be Stopped By the Sheriff. CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—[Special Telegram to the BEE.]—It has been definitely decided that the contemplated marriage of Anarchist Spies to the young Miss Van Zandt, which was to take place in the county jail to-morrow, will not occur. The decision of the sheriff to not permit the scandalous affair was confirmed this morning. After an interview the sheriff had with Mr. Leonard Swett, who has recently been retained as one of the counsel for the condemned men, Mr. Swett in. formed the sheriff that it was his duty to prevent the ceremony, as it would be an outrage upon decency. This was in direct opposition to the course of Captain William P. Black, of the counsel for the anarchists, who has apparently been abetting the mesalliance. The intimation was given in the dispatches last night that the sheriff would interpose and this was confirmed this morning, when orders were issued to permit no one to see the condemned seven. Miss Van Zandt, accompanied by a sister of Spies, appeared in the criminal court building about 10 o'clock this morning but on attempting to enter the jail they were stopped by the guard. Miss Van Zandt then consoled herself by sending in a note to Sples. Sheriff Matson says that he prohibits the ceremony simply on the ground of public decency be cause his prisoner is condemned to hang, Justas soon, he adds, as the supreme court, either by ordering a rehearing or by any other move, makes it probable that his prisoner will not be executed, he will withdraw any opposition to the marriage in "Murderers Row." For the present, however, and so long as there appears no hope for Spies to escape the hangman's moose, the sheriff ancause his prisoner is condemned to hang. escape the nanrman's noose, the sheriff announces that he will prevent a ceremony in the jail. He does this, he says, solely out of regard for public propriety, just as he would prevent a marriage at the poor house among the inmates there or at the insane asylum among the inmates there.

The relatives of Miss Van Zandt, and the young woman herself afterward, fad an interview with the sheriff and decided to relinquish the idea of a marriage at present.

Spies was asked how he regarded the order of the sheriff and said: "What do I think of the order? Why, I regard it as being only on a par with the treatment I have received since I was arrested. Then they wanted to lynch me and they have kept up the persecution ever since. There is nothing like the despotism of the petty officials who have lived on the perquisites of their positions for years. Carter Harrison was right when he said that such actions would shake every throne in such actions would shake every throne in Europe. The sheriff gives orders as though he were the czsr. In fact, the czar would not carry his despotism to such extremes as does Sheriff Matson."

One of the proprietors of a dime museum saw Miss Van Zandt this morning and offered her $3,000 to appear at his place for a week. She refused the offer.

Mr. Leonard Swett, in speaking about the matter, said: "I am not interested in the marriage of August Spies, but I am retained as counsel of Mr. Spies in his case pending in the supreme court, and I have a deep interest in his behalf in that matter. I am very jealous of his defense. I am opposed, however, to people marrying and being given in marriage on the road to the gallows."

Pittsburg, Jan. 19.—Mrs. Arthurs, aunt PITTSBURG, Jan. 19,-Mrs. Arthurs, aunt of Miss Van Zandt, was seen by a reporter this afternoon. She said that she had just halt an hour previously received advices from Chicago of the sheriff's action. The lady, who looked like one who had suffered great mental distress, said that she highly commended the firmness and membered of the mended the firmness and manhood of the Chicago official, adding that ever for Miss Van Zendt she thought that it was the kindest and most considerate thing that could have been done.

SCHEMES FRUSTRATED.
CHICAGO, Jan. 19. The story is told this evening that a young woman in men's clothes attempted to visit Anarchist Spies in jall, but was discovered and left hastily upon being threatened with arrest. The sheriff's puties are said to be taking measures to checkmate a plan to smuggle A justice of the peace into jail with Miss Van Zandt, and while the friends crowd around have the marriage ceremony performed through the bars of the "cage" where the prisoners go to see friends.

HOLDING THE FORT IN IRELAND.

A Lively Tussle With the Crowbar Brigade in Limerick and Donegal. DUBLIN, Jan. 19 .- Exciting scenes were witnessed yesterday near Caherconlish, County Limerick, the occasion being the eviction of Edmond O'Grady, a tenant on the Gabbett estates. O'Grady and about twenty of his friends proceeded to the upper story of the house, cut away the staircase behind them and stationed themselves at the windows. The evicting party soon arrived and stormed the house with sledge hammers and bayonets. Ladders were placed against the walls up which policemen and balliffs swarmed, but the defenders threw boiling water on their assailants and hurled the ladders to the ground. The attacking party advanced repeatedly upon the house and were as often repulsed. The contest lasted fully three hours. Uffinately a hole was cut in the upper floor through which some policemen crawled. through which some policemen crawled, while others covered the occupants of the house with rules, inreatening to fire if the slightest hostile movement was made. The eviction was then effected and several persons were arrested. During the excitement crowds of people gathered about the house and cheered the defenders. For this display of O'Grady and fifteen others arrested near Caherconlish were brought before Magistrate Plunkett at Limerick, charged with offering illegal resistance to the authorities. They were discharged.

The sheriff and a force of police from Gweedore, while on their way to evict tenants at Bloody Foreland, County Donegal, yesterday found the road blocked with immense granite boulders and were obliged to proceed on foot. The blowing of horns and ringing of bells brought together large crowds of peasants who threatened the police with violence. The police made a strategic move around the base of the mountain by the sea, but scouts on the mountain top tegic move around the base of the mountain top gave the sea, but scouts on the mountain top gave the alarm and the peasants, cheering, rushed down the mountain side and blocked the passage. A constable threatened the crowd with his baton. This was a signal for a shower of stones from excited peasants. A desperate fight ensued, in which five policemen were badly wounded. A priest who was present finally succeeded in calming the people, and they allowed the police to proceed. A tenant named Gallagher was evieted, but for various reasons the pelice left the other tenants undisturbed. In many cases they were unable to identify the cottages from which the occupants were to be evicted. Meantime the peasants carried Gallagher back to his house, kindled a fire and reinstated hum. The priest then persuaded the people to allow the police to retire.

A NEW COERCION ACT.

London, Jan. 19.—All the newspapers here publish an outline of the new conspiracy bill as it was given in yesterday's Standard. The Pall Mall Gazette declares that the pretence of applying the new law to the United Kingdom is the thinnest veneer, a make-believe, deceiving no one. The Gazette continues: "The bill is intended for Ireland alone. As the coercion bill for England and Scotland, it will receive the most resolute opposition." The St. James Gazette considers that the measure can do no mischief. England, it says, is absolute in Irelend.

THE PROGRESS OF PROHIBITION

Proceedings of the Millers, Horticulturists and Other State Associations-An Engineer's Fatal Jump-Nebraska News.

A Cold-Water Convention. DES MOINES, Ia., Jan. 19,- | Special Tele gram to the BEE. |-The State Temperance alliance began its annual meeting here to day. Hon. J. A. Harvey delivered the president's address and the principal work of the day was devoted to hearing reports from the different congressional districts on the progress of prohibition and general discussions thereon. These reports varied in tone from a conditional open saloon to that of absolute prohibition. Thus the report from Des Moines county, which includes Burlington, stated that five breweries are running. Forty five injunctions have been granted, but the sheriff has falled to close the places. The work has been done almost entirely by the law and order league. The supervisors grant licenses to all applicants and both county and city authorities wink at violations of the law. On the other hand, Louisa county reported no saloons, breweries or distilleries; there is very little drankenness; court expenses are very light; druggists generaily obey the law; the work has been done by the law and order league.

Mr. Marshall Judge, who represented the second district, appeared to have had a pretty hard time as a reformer. He described his experience in trying to enforce the law at Clinton, where he filed applications against thirty-three saloons. He said: "None of the notaries were willing to swear me to the applications. I finally went to the county clerk and under threats of prosecution if he refused to administered the affidavits. Judge Leffengence decided that the buyer was as guilty as the seller. We appealed in another case with Haves on the bench. We were case with Hayes on the bench. We were present with forty witnesses. Hayes went off to a horse race and so refused to try the case. Finally I seized $475 worth of beer. Judge Hayes in this case told the jury that the law should not be enforced and the case was dismissed. At length a conspiracy was formed among the liquor sellers to kill me. I called on the alliance for protection. Just one of the members went to the court room with me. When I left the court room and took a street car for home the saloon keepers assaulted me. One of them had a knife and assaulted me. One of them had a knife and when he took me by the throat I shot him in the arm. I was arrested and lodged in jail. That night the mob assailed the jail and tore it down. Three hundred temperance peoble stood around and saw one hundred whisky men do this work.' This evening a public meeting was held in the First Baptist church, which was ad-dressed by leading temperance workers.

A JONES INSULTS A KING.

The Consul at Callas Wants to Fight a Congressman. NEW YORK, Jan. 19 .- | Special Telegram to the BEE. |-A Washington special says: When it was reported last June that Cuthbrt B. Jones, of Louisana, was appointed consul at Callas, Congressman J. Floyd King, in a published interview, was quoted as speaking lightly of the mother of Jones, in the famous Jones-Liddell fend. King denied the correctness of the interview and for a time the matter rested. Later, Jones published a scathing letter to King, who replied by charging Jones with being an assassin, and disclaiming further controversy with him. Last night the two men met in a barber shop in Willard's hotel. King was waiting for his turn in a chair. Jones asked of the employes if King owed any money there and advised the shopkeeper not to trust him, then went over to where King was sitting and opened a conversation with the congressman by speaking disrespectfully of his father and using an offensive subtlast about mother and using an offensive epithet about mother and using an offensive epithet about the person to whom he was speaking. To all this abuse King made no reply. Jones repeated his language and said that he stood ready to prove all that he had said. Still King remained motionless and silent. Jones becoming more enraged at the extraordinary manner of King, laid his hand in a semi-menacing manner upon the face of the Louisianan with the hope of provoking him to resent the insults he was heaping upon him. But there with the hope of provoking him to resent the insults he was leaping upon him. But there was not a response. There is scarcely any comparison between the two men in physical power. King is a powerfully built man, weighing perhaps 225 pounds, while Jones is a small, thin, wiry, nervous little fellow, who will tip the scales at about 145 pounds. Jones said to-night that he had made every attempt to provoke King to a fight to a finish. It was said to-night that he had made every attempt to provoke King to a first to a finish. "I was not armed," continued Jones, "and never carry any weapons. King has injured me and the good name of my family, and all I ask is an opportunity of reaping satisfaction, I have tried every possible way to cause him to resent abuse. I have given him every chance, but he is too much of a coward to meet me."

HE MUST FIGHT.

HE MUST FIGHT. WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—[Special Telegram to the BEE.]—It is rumored this morning that Congressman J. Floyd King, of Louislana, who was assaulted last night by Cuthbert B. Jones, will challenge the latter to a duel. As King made no effort to resent the insults heaped upon him by Jones, it is a question whether he has the nerve or courage to invite him to meet him upon the field. It is presumed, however, he will be forced to fight as the insult was made as public last ight, as the insult was made so public last night when King refused to notice the semi-slap in the face, and would make no reply to the abusive language by Jones. The latter is inclined to the belief that nothing more will come of it. Friends of King say he must either fight or leave the capital never to re-turn. Not to fight they say means an ac-knowledgement of what Jones said.

Rival News Agencies. NEW YORK, Jan. 19,-|Special Telegram to the BEE.]-Wall street was disturbed and afterward amused by the controversy between the two rival news agencies yesterday, This special dispatch from Hoboken was published by the Kiernan's agency: "Big riot just begun; police powerless; over five hundred strikers attacked near here." The other agency immediately retorted with the following notice: "Do not sell stock on Kiernan riot news at Hoboken. He has been stealing our news, and we put up the job. There is no riot." The reply was explained further by the statement that the dispatch was sent from Hoboken on account of a suspicion that previous messages had been sent out by Kiernan's agency a little in advance of their receipt by Dow, Jones & Co. The matter was placed in the hands of lawyers by Dow, Jones & Co., with instructions to bring sult against the Western Union tions to bring suit against the Western Union company for recovery of damages, while the rival agency seriously contemplates suit against Dow, Jones & Co. for libel in saying that it had stolen news. William P. Sullivan of the Kiernan agency, said; "We pay van, of the Kiernan agency, said; "We nay the Western Union company a large sum of money every year for just such news. Our contract is explicit, and we depend largely upon it. News of the riot at Hoboken was received in the usual course of business." Loyal to the Kaiser. BERLIN, Jan. 19 .- The text of the address of the upper house of the Prussian diet to Emperor William is as follows: "Your majesty is the creator of the Prussian army in its present form. By the heroism of this army and its allies you restored the empire to its former might and splendor and maintained the peace of Europe many years. The present political of the European people is n many respects strained. We may see Germany unexpectedly involved in war, We are deeply moved that you were not spared the grief of seeing the unacceptable limit placed on the army bill. Such procedure is contrary to usage based upon repeated compromises and led led to the dissolution of the reichstag. We assure you of our entire joyful support and our gratitude for your faithful solicitude for the army. We are confident Prussia will consider no sacrilice too heavy which will avert danger the fatherland by maintaing for it an effect-ive defense."

WASHBURNE'S REMINISCENCE

Frenchmen Mad at the Ex-Minister's Tale of the Siege of Paris.

THEY RETALIATE WITH STORIES.

How the Legation Was Made a German Postoffice For a Money Consideration - Mr. Washburne Makes a Complete Denial.

His Record Overhauled.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 .- | Special Telegram to the BEE. |-A Paris special to the Times says: "The publication in Scribner's Magazine of ex-Minister Washburne's "Reminiscences of the Siege and Commune of Paris," has created a good deal of indignation in France and the Figaro says "Mr. Washburne shows very little sympathy for us," which may be fairly accepted as describing the general teeling here. In retaliation for what the French consider as uncalled for insinuations in the "reminiscences," Mr. [Washburne's record as minister of the United States in Paris during the slege of the city has been overhauled and some of the stories told in connection with his action during those troublous times, if true, do not redound exactly to his credit as a diplomatist of a friendly power. The most compromising of them has been told by Prince de Wittgenstein, who was military attache to the Russian legation in Paris during the siege, and who occupied the same relation to the French and German armies as a bond of communication that Washburne did. The prince's story is well worth repeating; it only to give Washburne a chance to contradict it or to include it in the next batch of "Reminiscences." Before and during the siege of Paris Prince de Wittgenstein, who is husband of Princess de Mingrele, had his official residence at 120 Champs Elysees. One day, he says, two ladies appeared and de-livered to his valet two letters, accompanied by two louis. The letters were addressed to relatives of the ladies in the provinces and the Russian general was somewhat aston-ished when his valet presented them to him with the gold. He began to sniff a mystery but it was insoluble to him until the following day, when the ladies appeared again and asked for the return of the letters and money. They told the prince that they had made a asked for the return of the letters and money. They told the prince that they had made a mistake. They had been informed that he made of himself a kind of German postoffice; that he exchanged letters daily with Versailles, and that on payment of 20 francs (about $4) he used his facilities to forward letters through the German lines to the provinces. "But," said the spokesman, of the two, "we have made a mistake. It is in the rue de Chaille at the United States legation that letters are taken." The prince says that he returned the letters and money says that he returned the letters and money and decided to see if the story of the women were true. Next day and for several days where the Mexical and 2 frame pieces to the legation presided over by Mr. Washburne, who pocketed the louis and sent forward the letters. Washburne, it is asserted, took no pains to find out what the letters contained, pains to find out what the letters contained, and for all he knew information to the German commanders besieging Paris of the condition of the defense might have been sent out daily through his profitable postoffice. How much money he made by this thrifty but scarcely diplomatic stroke of business nobody but himself knows, but for the truth of the story Prince de Wittgenstein stands ready to youch.

MR. WASHBURNE DENIES. MR. WASHBUINE DENIES.
CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—[Special Telegram to the Bee.]—On being shown the above article, Mr. Washburne said: "The whole story is false from beginning to end. I did not know Prince de Wittgenstein and have never seen nor heard of him before. I can only say that the story which is attributed to him is utterly false and informs in every respect. utterly false and infamous in every respect. There is not a scintilla of truth in the article." Washburne further said: "It was my mistortune to be minister to France at and during the Franco-German war, and I am glad to know-which was conceded on all hands-that I discharged my duties in a satis-factory manner. All the statements which factory manner. All the statements which have been made about my forwarding letters for the French and others are utterly false and infamous. During all those troublous times I was very guarded in my neutrality, and there have never been any complaints made against me. The statement that I forwarded letters outside of Paris which had been sent to the legation with money and that I kept the money is false and infamous in every respect."

It was fitting, he said, that the association should take some action on the association should take some action on the death of that gentleman, who had begun his public life as a clerk of Jo Daviess county. The resolution was adopted by a rising vote. He then read his bill authorizing recorders to keep abstract books, which would be presented to the present legislature. SULLIVAN ON CLEVELAND. The Pugilist Shows Why the Administration Is "Naw Good."

Minneapolis Tribune: "Opinions of the administration," observed Senator Me-Donald, of La Crosse, in the rotunda of the West yesterday afternoon. "Yes, I have heard a good many expressions of serious opinions on the administration, but none that amused me more than the rather frank one made by the pugilist, John L. Sullivan "What was that?"

"Well, you know this combination of pugilistic lights that has been traveling around the country. Well, we had them down in La Crosse. As an especial honor I was invited around to see them. A rather slick, wily fellow—a kind of a gentleman pug—or pugilistic dude you might call him—Pat Sheedy his name was-did most of the talking. A lithograph of President Cleveland and his wife hung over the bar." " 'Strange,' said Sheedy, looking at the picture in a reflective way, 'strange what changes the whriligig of time brings

Yes,' I assented. "'Many is the time," Mr. Sheedy went on, 'that I have sat over my toddy with Grover Cleveland.'
"'Yes,'I assented. 'He's a good fellow, guess, and would enjoy it even now.'

"It was a big, rasping voice that spoke, and turning, I confronted Mr. Sullivan, the champion pugilist of America.
"'Naw, I tell yees—he's a whelp, he is. I knows a whelp when I sees him, and he's a whelp, I say.'
"Well, I didn't see fit to dispute him.
"'What does he do for the dimicratic party, I'd like to know' the great pugilist 'I ventured to suggest that it was the president's duty to carry out the laws of the country, and that offensive partisanship would have to go."

"'Humph,' said the champion, 'I tell you Cleveland's a whelp, and you bet your rife I can spot a whelp when I sees one. Look at half the democrats in New York, where are they? In the peniten-tiary. And is Cleveland actin' the square man and gettin' em out? No, he ain't. Look at the good democrats over in Canada; and is Cleveland bringin' em back? No, he ain't. He's no good, I tell you and what I say I can back up, and don't you forget it." "And I didn't feel that I had the time to dispute him.
