The long looked for six columns of news promised to arrive here on the first of January for the old grandmother's use, seems to have not only been a long time ou the road, but to have mis-carried as it apparently got delivered to the Even-ing Herald office, the front page of that paper showing up full.

Rev. Dr. Phelps, of Cedar Rapids, is expected to occupy the pulpit of the Presbyterian church next Sunday. He is said to be a very strong man intellectually, and popular socially, and it is in-timated that he is to be called to the pastorate made vacant by the resignation of Rev. Mr. Bates.

Laing, the sealskin cloak thief, was willing to go over to Omaha with Con-stable Edgerton, and there wait for the Cheyenne officer to come after him, but seem fair. The levee should be built clear at the river edge, so as to take it all in. It ought to be built from where it now stops clear to the river, and then down the banks." the officers here concluded that if there was any reward for his capture, as it is reported there is, they might as well hold him here and get the reward. Constable Edgerton urged taking Laing to Omaha, on the ground that the prisoner was willing to go, and had better be taken while he folt that way, and then once in Omaha that Character and then once in Omaha the Cheyenne officer would be saved a trip to Des Moines after a requisition.

The trial of George Washington Makepeace, the attorney, has just been concluded at Denison, in Judge Connor's court. Makepeace was charged with having received some notes for collection, attorney for the plaintiff. The facts on which the plaintiff seeks to establish his case are that in August, 1885, D. Ginniss filled up the blanks furnished by the agent of the company, and presented what he deemed to be a sufficient proof of loss. He claimed that the stock amounted to $1,400, and the fixtures to fully $200, and therefore he was entitled to the payment of the pol-icy in full. The company insisted on his producing his books and papers, so as to determine in detail what his loss was, but he could not do this as he did not keep anything but a blotter, and this to give absolute protection to the bottom lots is timely, and it is quite probable that it will result in action being taken was, but he could not do this as he did not keep anything but a blotter, and this with his bills, receipts, etc., were de-stroyed at the time of the fire. As he was indebted to Mr. Eiseman and others, he assigned his claim against the com-pany to this gentleman. Still it would cost but little to make sure of it. Simple prodence would dictate that the levee be completed. Then some way at fault for the fire occurring. there would be no show for water under There are some legal questions raised, as well as questions of fact, and the case is any circumstances. It would be worth the price of the levee just to calm the to be hotly contested on both sides.

STUDYING THE EYE. Where Problems to Last a Lifetime

May Be Seen. Do you ever make a study of eyes? asks a writer in Mind and Nature for January. Not girls' eyes only-all eyes. Within that hatle radius of a quarter of an inch are problems to last a lifetime. Emerson has well spoken of the eye that threatens like a leveled rifle-how often it is seen! You need not visit comps to find it, the counting-room and the office contain it quite as often, and sometimes it is seen even under crimps, But the threatening eye is not to be confounded with the commanding eye or the wild beast eye. The last men-ford to his wife from the fort near Metemmeli was pithy enough: "Quite well and chcerful. Privations have been severe, thirst, hunger, battles desperate; but things look better." There are some quaint and pithy epistles on record. Quin, when offended by Rich, went away in resentment and wrote: "I am at Bath." The answer was as laconic, though not quite so civil: "Stay there."

Bank Deposit Long Unclaimed.

San Francisco Builetin: Some time ago the attorney general brought suit against one of the San Francisco banks to declare escheated to the state, money on deposit which had not been called for during a given number of years and the claimant of which had apparenty disap-peared. What might happen if such long neglected deposits were paid over to the state is illustrated in the following case: "In the Clay Street bank there was an account which represented $12.42 deposited between March 18 and September 2, 1861. The depositor and his book disappeared, it was beheved, at about this time, since nothing was heard from them for twenty-five years. But to-day the holder of the book appeared and had his interest entered up, and withdrew his money receiving the handsome sum of $149.07.

Dunlap parties were interested in prosecuting the case, and they urged County Attorney Lally to accept some assistance, offering themselves to bear the expense. The county attorney is said to have declined any such help, and as the defense was feebly conducted the state was defeated, and Makepeace was acquitted. The conduct of the case on the part of the prosecution has been rether severely criticized. It is said that the state failed to prove that Makepeace ever received the money, or that any demand had been made for an accounting. Other essential features are said to have been carelessly omitted in making the proof.

If it costs three times that it would pay to put it in. The Park Fund. In the council meeting the other night Alderman Shugart remarked concerning the bill for curbing at Bayliss Park, that this should be paid for out of the park fund, and by the park commissioners. It was also intimated, as it has been at other times, that the park commissioners should pay for paving the streets adjacent to the parks and that the money raised by a special tax for park purposes should remain in the hands of the city treasurer, and not in the hands of the treasurer chosen by the park commissioners. There seems to be some little friction between the city council or some of the aldermen and the park commissioners. The fact is that for park commissioners three of the best citizens of Council Bluffs have been elected, men who are financially responsible, and who have the complete confidence of the people. But more than this the new law in regard to them is tramed very strong. It provides that they shall give $5,000 bonds each and to serve without pay. The idea of men giving such bonds for the sake of doing work for nothing caused quite a laugh at Des Moines among the legislators when it was introduced there but it is nevertheless a good law for the people. The law provides that these commissioners shall have exclusive control of the parks, and that they can use the tunds for the purposes of improving the parks. They draw the money on orders signed by two out of three of the commissioners, and keep a record of all of their expenditures. It seems from the reading of the law that the city council cannot control the money in any form. and has no more to do with its expendi-tures than any other citizen. The fund is not sufficiently large to be used for paving, curbing and other street improve ments, but if it was it remains with the park commissioners, and not the council. to say how the money shall be expended. The city council cannot vote a dollar out according to circumstances, it has a restless or fixed glare. Then there is the cruel and treacherous eye. This is peculiar and treatherous common. It is a cold gray-different from the "intelligent gray"—with a dark edge to the eyelid. There is none more thoroughly repellant. Sometimes a yellowish, cat-like eye looks at you, saying: "I'll deceive you at every opportunity." Other kinds are the secretive eye, set so far back that you cannot see its expression, the foxy, the critical, the loving, the sensual, etc. The list is long, but of all the most common is the non-committal eye. So frequent is it that the eye is greatly over-rated as a general index of character; we really form our judgment from the rest of the features. When you have well mastered the different kinds of eyes, then try to account for their differences on anatomical principles. The components of an eye's expression are certainly not, numerous. There are the color, degree of openness, movement steady or vacillating, etc. Can these material elements alone account for the wonderful transparency you some times meet? There are eyes which seem actually open windows in which the in visible spirit sits and becomes visible to the earthly sense of sight.
