A Rich Discovery.

The BEE is prepared to make the first authorative and definite statement concerning the coal discovery on the bottoms. Since the first statement was made concerning the matter, there have been many conjectures as to whether coal had been really found. Many were inclined to believe that such a find had really been made, while others were just as ready to believe that the discovery was an advertisement, the purpose of which was simply to boom property in that neighborhood.

All conjectures concerning the matter are set aside-all doubts removed-by the discoveries of the past twenty-four hours. Omaha will have coal and plenty of it.

It is concerning these discoveries that the BEE now proposes to speak.

When the finding of a seven foot vein of coal was first announced, the boring had been done with a very small drill, which had been sent down as a sort of feeler. The particles of coal which were taken were little larger than atoms of dust, and it was difficult indeed to realize that they represented a valuable coal discovery. However, they were subdiscovery. However, they were sub-mitted to a chemical analysis by the Creighton college chemists who pronounced them fragments of genuine

Since that time Engineer Martin and his men have been at work sinking an eight inch hole, the sides of which are to be protected by piping or rimming of the same diameter. The work of sinking this second shaft was done with a very large drill, which enabled the men to work rapidly and thoroughly in taking out the dirt, rocks and shale.

At the depth of about 350 feet a vein of black shale was struck, which very much resembled coal and was indeed taken by many to be such. Careful examination, however, proved that such was not the case. The big drill was sent still further down. Wednesday on reaching a depth of 540 feet,

A MAGNIFICENT VEIN OF COAL, of splendid quality and four feet in thickness, was discovered. This was the same vein which had been struck before in sinking the small drill, and from which the small atoms of coal-dust were taken. large drill, in coming through this vein Wednesday took out specimens of coal as large as a walnut and to all appearances a first-class article. The first sanguine impressions of the find were fully confirmed, and there is now no room for doubt but that the find is a genuine and valuable one. The drilling is still going on and the large shaft has now reached a depth of about

"What do you think of the discovery made yesterday?" asked a reporter for the BEE of a gentleman who has been connected with the work of sinking the second shaft, to-day.
"There is no doubt," he replied, "that this is coal and of excellent quality. Yes, the first good impressions of the discov-ery have been fully confirmed."

'It will pay to mine it?" "Certainly. The depth or thickness of the vein is over four feet. This will pay for mining. In Iowa they mine coal where the veins are less than twenty eight inches in thickness. This, however, is not at so great a depth as the vein we have discovered here. In Illinois the years are oftentimes so very thin that the miners are compelled to work on their hands and keees. In this case, the strata underlying and overlying the casily worked. The stratum overneath is one of fairly solid slate, which properly timbered, will make a good roof. Underneath the vein is a layer of loose shale, which can easily be removed so as to enable the miners to stand upright at their work.

"How much further will the shaft be driven?"
"The contract calls for a depth of 3,000

"Is it expected that other veins will be found as the boring continues? "It is probable, though of course we don't know anything about that.' concerning the prospects for immediately mining the vein until Mr. Peter Her returns. He is now in Chicago and is expected to arrive in Omaha within a day

THEY WERE BRASS.

Watches Which Were Not What They

W. A. Chabratt, of Ohio, and G. F. Polk, of Creighton, Neb., are two gentle men who have just arrived in this city. They are warm friends, and are alike in the fact that neither is used to the wicked ways of a wild and woolly city like Omaha. Without being green, they cannot be said to have yet cut a full set of eye teeth.

Yesterday morning these gentlemen, with some leisure time on their hands and several spare dollars, roamed about the city, taking in the sights. They finally wandered into an auction store on Tenth street where a regular confidence game is in full blast all the time. They were induced to purchase two alleged gold watches at the sum of $12 each. The price, the auctioneer informed them—a bland smile crossing his face—was "dirt cheap, sir, dirt cheap." A few minutes later, as Chabfatt and his partner were walking past a jaweiry store the idea. walking past a jewelry store, the idea struck them that it might be a good scheme to have the watches tested. They did so, and to their horror and chagrin were informed that such timepieces were generally sold by the ton at the price of about $1.50 each. They were brass, The two men preferred complaint against the auctioneers at police head-quarters and will probably prosecute them.

BLASTS FROM BOREAS. Items of Interest Concerning the Weather and Its Changes. The wind yesterday morning from the north was particularly keen and cutting, and the cold was consequently more intent sely felt by people whose business led them in the direction of the wind. And yet, the temperature did not get below 15 degrees below zero. The weather bulletin showed that, at Bismarck, 83, degrees, at Helena, 35, and Assinationie, 55 degrees below zero had been reached. The old cold wave flag, which has done service in this city for many years back, has been retired from service. It had be come a tattered ensign, and had almost lost its distinction as "the black flag," because of its frayed and tangled edges. Its successor was run up for the first time last night. It is six feet in size, while the old one was two feet larger.

Signal Service Officer Hagen, vesterday norming stood in the corridor of the postoffice near the register to get warm. His office in the top of the building is so open hat it is impossible for him to keep such work. Custodian Jordan assigned him temporarily to the room of the district

A DUEL WITH GLOVES. Two Well Known Characters Engage

in a Short But Lively Battle. The talk among the members of the local sporting fraternity yesterday was confined to a glove fight which took place Wednesday afternoon between two men well known in this city. A. T. Valentine and Johnny Wallace. Both of them are gamesters and both of them are high tempered. On several occasions they have had words with one another, and their ill-feelings have grown into a posi-tive grudge. Wednesday they met and quarreled again. They agreed to settle their difference by a fight with gloves, and for that purpose repaired with their friends to a vacant room on Douglas street. Captain O'Mal ley was chosen as second for Valentine and Colonel Forbes acted in a similar capacity for Wallace. Will-iam Nightingale and Johnny Selhour were timekeepers. Herb Rothery acted as referee. Four-ounce gloves were donned and the belligerents stepped into the ring stripped to their underwear. The fight was one for blood, and each did some rattling work. Both Valentine and Wallace were knocked down several times. At the end of the third round Valentine was very groggy and hardly able to stand up. Each man was game, able to stand up. Each man was game, however, and the fight would have continued several rounds longer had not the referee advised them to shake hands and This advice was supplemented by that of the seconds. The fight was there-upon ended, being declared in favor of

It is said that the mill was for $50 a side, Valentine putting up his watch against Wallace's "half-century." Where Will the Boom Be in South

Omaha? The boom is and will be where the railroads are, and it can never be anywhere else. Of all the additions laid out, there is none that has the railroad facilities enjoyed by ALBRIGHT'S CHOICE, and therefore this is the only South Omaha property now in the market, which will surely and speedily advance in value. It lies on both sides of the U. P. R. R. and the B. & M. also runs through it, as also Bellevue road, the main county road into Omaha. W. G. Albright, Sole Owner, 218 South 15th St.

USED A HATCHET.

Dan Rhodes Commits a Murderous Assault on His Wife.

"Dat niggah tried to kill me wid a hatchet, sho enuff, and if de head hadin' come off, he'd a done it, too."

With these words, which were addressed to a reporter for the BEE, Mrs. Dan Rhodes, a good old colored manimy pointed at her husband who was locked up in one of the cells of the county jail.

According to her statement, Rhodes' murderous assault upon her was entirely unprovoked. Mrs. Rhodes runs the dining-room department of the Lewis house. Yesterday morning her husband came in cursing and swearing, regardless of the presence of several guests. Mrs. Rhodes ordered him to desist, whereupon he turned on her and abused her violently. He then wound up by assaulting her in the manner mentioned.

Make This Point Clear,

purchasing Real Estate, that you are putting your money in a locality where the demand for property will en-hance its present value. Albuight's CHOICE is the only property on the U. P. R. R. in South Omaha, and lies near the ground reserved for important industries, making every lot there valuable, Conkling Place lies on Leavenworth treet, near the Belt line, and is considered, by good judges, to be the most desirable property on the market.

Baker Place is on the Military Road on the route of the street car extension. All but 10 lots in this large addition have been sold, and many of them re-sold at 100 per cent. profit.

Printers' Troubles.

OMAHA, Feb. 2.-To the Editor of the BEE: Monday evening the World published the following statement from Henry Gibson regarding the trouble between himself and the Omaha Typographical union:

"I called my men together before bidding on the job. They agreed to set the type, single leaded, six to pica leads to be used, for 35 cents per 1,000 ems. After the matter was placed in their hands the union printers consulted the union, and were told they could not do this, and quit. I would pay them the scale by the week, but there are many who could not earn

I have refrained from taking any notice of the above. At the solicitation of several members, however, I deem it proper to make a few remarks upon the subject. Mr. Gibson did eall his men together, but he did most of the talking himself, and concluded with the remark that those who did not like his terms could quit. The union printers did not agree to accept his proposition, they well knowing that they could not do so a union men. As to paying the scale, $15 per week, if Mr. Gibson had any men in his employ who were not worth it, he certainly had the privilege of discharging them and employing others. Saturday, January 29, a committee from the union waited upon Mr. Gibson with a view of adjusting matters satisfactorily to the parties concerned. Mr. Gibson has never accorded to any committee of the union such treatment as gentlemen should re ceive. On this occasion he was particularly vehement, and in substance used the tollowing language to them:
"To — with the union, its officers, and all the rest of them, I will do as I

There has been dissatisfaction among the employes of the Herald job rooms for a long time. One of the standing grievances has been the system in vogue there of taking the poorest class of work and giving it out by the piece, while such work as was fair, and upon which com-positors were able to make good wages, was given out by the week. This cer-tainly is not fair treatment at the hands of an employer. The work should either all be done by the week or by the piece. Mr. Gibson has brought on this trouble himself. It was not of our seeking. We have hoped patiently that matters would be satisfactorily arranged. In conclu-sion, it may be said that Mr. Gibson is not a friend of organized labor, but isbor organizations have to-day the recognition of all classes of society, and the time has come when even Mr. Gibson will have

Night at the Annex. In deference to the desire of the Omaha legislative delegation, a mass meeting of property owners and tax-payers of this city will be held at the exposition annex on Saturday night next. The outrageous action of the railroad attorneys and manipulators in trying to defeat the new charter has been the general topic of conversation for the last two day's and the information that a date and place of meeting have been settled will be received with general approbation. Thos. H. Kilpatrick, of Cleveland, Endeavoring to Establish One Here. Mr. Thos. H. Kilpatrick, a well known dry goods man of Chicago, and more recently of Cleveland, Ohio, is in the city, negotiating for the purchase of the dry goods house of Tootle Maul & Co. He has been here for several days, but has not as yet brought the negotiations to a close. Mr. Kilpatrick is well acquainted with a number of Omaha's citizens, who formerly knew him as a business man in Cleveland, where the title of his firm was Thos. H. Kilpatrick & Co. Later he became interested in the house of James H. Walker & Co., of Chicago, wholesale and retail dealers in dry goods. This house is considered about the fourth in commercial importance in the dry goods line of Chicago that of Marshal Field being first, J. V Farwell second, and Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., third. Mr. Kilpatrick is a genial and kindly gentleman and a good business man, and a strong effort is being made in have him locate here.

As the line of buggles passed up Broadway the occupants were greeted with hearty cheers, and upon returning to C. E. Mayne's branch office the entire party marched into the Ogden house for din ner. In the meantime a Council Bluffs band got together and serenaded the visitors in fine style, after which Mr. Mayne was called upon for a speech, which he executed in his usual happy manner.
