OMAHA LIVE STOCK.

The Week.

Monday, Feb. 7.

The receipts of cattle have been light during the whole week past, only 2,000 being received, but at the same time there was a gain of 400 head over the week before. The week opened with a dull and weak market. There was not much change until Friday, when prices firmed up somewhat and there was a more active demand.

There has been quite an advance in the hog market since a week ago. Last week opened with hogs selling at $4.70@4.80. On Tuesday the market advanced 5@10c and the following day the market was still stronger. On Thursday $5.00 was paid for hogs, the highest price ever reached at these yards. The week closed with the market strong. One of the features of the week was the advance in light hogs which sold up even with heavy hogs. The receipts during the week amounted to 11,300, a loss of 3,900 from the week before.

There was very little done in the sheep market. On Thursday one bunch averaging 86 pounds brought $3.20.

Cattle.

There were no especially new features in the cattle market. The receipts continue light and the market about steady.

Hogs.

The receipts were extremely light even for Monday. The market was strong and active at Saturday's prices. Everything was sold at an early hour.

Sheep.

There were several loads in to-day but none sold.

All sales of stock in this market are made per cwt. live weight unless otherwise stated. Dead hogs sell at ½c per lb. for all weights. "Skins," or hogs weighing less than 100 lbs, no value. Pregnant sows are docked 40 lbs. and stags 80 lbs, by the public inspector.

Notes.

Light receipts.

Everything sold.

A strong hog market.

N. Pascoe, Ames, Neb., arrived with a load of cattle too late for to-day's market.

P. D. Smith, St. Edwards, was in to-day and marketed six loads of corn-fed steers.

L. Akin, Clarinda, had in one load of cattle and Jno. Lansing, Fairfield, two loads.

Mr. Agnew, of the firm of Snell & Agnew, Ashland, was here and sold a load of hogs.

J. L. Ritter, of Morse, Rogers & Co., North Bend, was in and marketed a load of cattle.

G. H. Hammond & Co., received twelve loads of cattle to-day shipped in from other markets.

Seven loads of sheep were received from Drury & Valentine and Perry & Wiley, of Kearney.

Col. E. P. Savage, secretary of the Fine Stock Breeder's association, has gone to Seward, to attend the meeting of the association which convenes to-morrow.

The funeral of the infant son of J. G. Martin, of the firm of Martin Bros., took place this afternoon. Messrs. Horine, Dewey, Nash and Wallwork acted as bearers. The little fellow was an unusually bright and promising boy and a general favorite.

Among those having hogs in the market were the following: E. Pettys, Shelby; H. Blenkiron, Coleridge; F. Willott, Albion; W. H. Beagle, Loup City; A. Dutt, Aspinwall; E. Taylor, Broken Bow; Boden & Zohner, Mo. Valley; Jas. Danley, Ashland; W. W. Richardson, Red Cloud; E. H. Wilcox, Alma; W. J. Davis & Co., Gothenburg; G. H. Sims, Portsmouth.

OMAHA WHOLESALE MARKETS

The Week.

Monday, Feb. 7.

One of the features of the past week, in the produce markets, was the weakening of the egg market. At the beginning of the week fresh eggs were bringing 25c, but the market gradually weakened until dealers were glad to take 24c. Butter has weakened and receipts have been gradually increasing. There has been a very noticeable improvement in the poultry market. At the beginning of the week chickens were only bringing 8c, but before the close were in good demand at 10c. Turkeys also advanced from 7@8c to 10@11c. There has been no special change in other lines which have been selling all the week at prices as quoted below.

General Produce.

The following prices are for round lots of produce as sold on the market to-day. The quotations on fruits represent the prices at which outside orders are filled.

BUTTER—The receipts are liberal and the market weak. The choicest is selling mostly at 16@18c; fair to good, 14@15c; common, 10@15c.

EGGS—The bulk of the fresh stock sold at 24@25c, it being hard even to obtain the latter price.

GAME—Prairie chickens, quail and venison are out of season and it is contrary to the law for dealers to handle them. The law has never been very strictly enforced, and a good many dealers handle them after they are out of season: Ducks, Mallard, per doz, $1.75@2.00; ducks, Teal, $1.25@1.50; ducks, mixed, $1.25; geese, $2.50@3.00; Brants, $2.00; Jack rabbits, $3.00; small rabbits, 50@60c.

POULTRY—The receipts were very light and the demand good for choice dressed chickens. Chickens 10c; turkeys 10@11c; geese and ducks 8@10c.

VEGETABLES—Beets, carrots, parsnips and turnips are quoted at 30c. Horse-radish roots $4.00@4.50 per bbl.

POTATOES—The weather has been so cold during the past few days that it was impossible to handle potatoes to any extent. The trade is limited almost entirely to the sale of small lots from the store. Fair to good stock, from store, small lots, 60@65c; choice stock, from store, small lots, 65@70c.

OYSTERS—Mediums, 20c; standards, 30c; selects, 35c; extra selects, 40c; N. Y. counts, 35c.

APPLES—The apple market is firm and stocks on hand are light; Choice Missouri stock per bbl, $3.75@4.00; Choice Michigan stock per bbl, $4.00.

ONIONS—Home grown stock, per bu. $1.00@1.40.

CELERY—Choice stock, per doz. 40@45c.

ORANGES—There is a liberal supply of good stock on the market; Valencia per case, $6.00@6.50; California, per box, $3.00@3.35; Florida, per box, $3.00@3.25.

LEMONS—The market looking up and prices have advanced in New York; Messina fancy, per box, $5.00.

THE REWARD OF COOLNESS.

A Wealthy Lord Stares a Robber Out of Countenance.

Coolness and "assurance" often make an excellent substitute for all other means of defense, if they are rightly managed. Here are two anecdotes, says the Youth's Companion, which illustrate this fact by the aid of very different circumstances: Lord O——, an English nobleman, was a very rough and imperious man, also quite deaf. He was riding along the road one day in a post-chaise, asleep, when he was stopped by a robber on horseback, who awoke him.

"What do you want?" said Lord O——, angrily.

"Money, my lord."

"What money? Are you a robber? Are you the rascal who has just awoke me so suddenly?"

"Come, be quick!" said the highwayman. "I have no time to lose; I must have your purse."

"My purse!" exclaimed Lord O—. "Indeed, you shall not have it. Really, you carry on a fine trade."

He pulled out his purse, which was full, and with his finger and thumb deliberately took out two guineas, which he gave to the robber.

"There; that's enough for a scoundrel like you; I hope to see you hanged some of these days."

The robber was enraged at the indifference of Lord O——, who coolly put up his purse, still calling him a rascal and a scoundrel and repeating that he hoped to see him hanged soon. The robber was so much awed by the other's manner that he did not venture to insist on his demand for the purse, though he had a pistol in his hand to enforce it, and Lord O—— drove on.

The other story puts the shoe on the other foot, and makes the malefactor the cool headed one.

Massena, when he held command in Italy under Bonaparte, who was then first consul, was accused repeatedly of plundering, and finally dismissed from his command in disgrace and recalled to Paris to give an account of his financial transactions in Genoa and Lombardy. On his arrival at Paris he was strongly reprimanded by Bonaparte in the presence of several general officers, some of whom rested under a like accusation. When the first consul had finished his philippic, Massena turned, bowed with a very submissive air, and said:

"I am a thief."

Then he fixed his eye on Bonaparte, and making another bow, said:

"Thou art a thief."

Looking next at General Murat, he continued:

"He is a thief."

Then, regarding the whole brilliant circle of officers, he exclaimed:

"We are thieves."

Then, bowing respectfully to them all, he added:

"You are thieves,"

He then retired coolly, saying as he went:

"Yes, Citizen Consul, they are all thieves—such is the character of the French republicans!"

Massena's singular defense, which no doubt contained no little truth, saved him from any further proceedings in the matter of his plunderings.

A Remarkable Presentiment.

Jackson (Ga.) News: Miss Minnie Atkinson, sister of young Arthur A. Atkinson, who died near Jackson last Saturday night, has been an inmate and student at Mary Sharp college, Winchester, Tenn., for two terms past, and only arrived home last night, upon receiving a telegram of the serious illness of her brother. She relates a most singular circumstance connected with the death of her brother as follows:

She was very much devoted to her brother Arthur, and had his picture with her, which she showed to her associates in college, and often spoke of the good qualities of her brother. One of the young ladies seemed smitten with the picture and asked to see it often. On last Friday this young lady was in company with Misss Minnie, and asked to see the picture. It was given her to look at, and after gazing at it intently a few minutes, she said:

"Isn't your brother dead?"

Of course the suggestion startled Miss Minnie, but she replied:

"No, he is not dead."

The young lady, still gazing at the picture, said:

"Minnie, your brother is dead."

Miss Minnie immediately went to the president and told him what had occurred, and begged him to let her go home at once. The president said it was a mere idle fancy of the young lady, and she ought not to let it trouble her mind, but to return to her room and think no more of it. She returned to her room, but could not shake off the impressions made by the predictions of the young lady, for she had a presentiment that it was true, and that she would receive a telegram confirming it. On Sunday morning she went to the president and told him that he ought to have let her go home yesterday, for she would receive a telegram to-day announcing her brother's serious illness. The president hooted at the idea and again sent her back to her room. Soon after leaving the president on Sunday she received the telegram and at once made preparations for her journey home. Taking the south-bound train, the president and physician of the college accompanied her a part of the way, when Miss Minnie was intercepted by a telegram from Winchester, Tenn., stating that the young lady who had foretold the death of Mr. Arthur Atkinson, in Jackson, was dead! The president and physician returned to Winchester and Miss Minnie came on to Jackson, to find her adored brother a corpse. Taking the circumstances altogether, they form a mysterious and remarkable combination of facts.

DANA AND HIS BOOK.

How "Two Years Before the Mast" Gained an Unwilling Purchaser.

Re-reading agsin "Two Years Before the Mast," next to "Tom Cringle's Log," the most delightful of sea-tales, says a correspondent of the Philadelphia Record, I recalled a story told years ago by Richard H. Dana, jr., himself about his book, and I told again to me last year by the friend to whom he related it. It has never been in print, I am sure. "When I got back," said Dana, "from my two years before the mast my eyes, which had sent me off on the cruise, were entirely well. I set to work at once to make a story of my experiences out of the journal which I had kept during the voyage. I worked at it a long time, and thought when I got through that I had produced an interesting book. But when I submitted it to my father he rather discouraged me by commenting upon its lack of finish and polish. It seemed rough and fragmentary to him and I remember he said to me: 'No publisher would publish that.' Somehow or other, I was not fully convinced of this, and after waiting awhile I sent it to a famous New York publisher. He kept it a long time and then wrote that while it was interesting it did not seem to be 'available for immediate publication.' I wrote back telling him that I was anxious to dispose of the manuscript and asking him to make me an offer for it. He waited some time before replying. Then he wrote that, while he thought Marryat had rather surfeited the appetite of the public for tales of the sea, he would nevertheless undertake the publication of my book. But, inasmuch as its chances of success were so doubtful, he did not feel that he could offer me more than $1,000 for the manuscript, and even that only on condition that I would come on to New York and read proof and otherwise assist in getting the book out. Well, $1,000 seemed a great deal of money to me then, and I accepted the offer. I went on to New York; I corrected proof and did a hundred other little things in connection with the publication of the book, living for weeks at my own expense, of course, and finally received my $1,000 clear. My net proceeds were, of course, much less than $1,000. My publisher made at least fifty times that much, but he never thought of giving me any more. I was telling this story," he went on, "at a dinner party in Paris not long ago and I noticed that Bishop Potter, who was one of the guests, showed great interest in it. When I had finished he said: 'Mr. Dana, I was among the very first to read your book. I fact I read it just after your father.' 'How was that?' I asked; 'I never showed it in manuscript to any one but my father and my publisher.' 'Ah,' said the bishop with a smile, 'I was then one of that publisher's literary advisors; he sent me your manuscript to read; it was upon my recommendation that it was published; I remember this moment just what I wrote about it' 'What was it?' I asked. 'It was,' replied the bishop: 'This is a rare work; don't let this young man escape,' and then he gave you $1,000 upon condition that you would read the proof.' 'Yes,' said I, 'and he has made $50,000 out of it since.'"

Views of a Colored Philosopher.

Dallas (Tex.) News: For several days past the colored population has led almost a monopoly of the misdemeanor business, which one of the colored brethren attributes to the "sass" with which his race is too highly saturated for a few weeks before and after Christmas. An old darky commenting on this condition of affairs lately, was overheard to say: "De good ole days when we darkies used to collect around the banjo and dance and not get mad at what fools said are past, and now dese fool young darkies can't gether at a church festival or a dance widout getting into trouble. Dar um John Powell and Jim Brown full of conceit and eddication. Dey wooled one another Christmas day like yallar dogs and was before the mayor to day an' fined. And de rising generation am wusser. Take dat case of dat boy who was before the mayor to-day for stealing goats and who guv away a dozen bootblacks for stealing dogs an' you see the perversity of de colored people, what the bible talks about when it says de big bear will be unchained. You never heard of colored boys stealing dogs afore de war, and you never heered of colored men whipping their wives afore that great event. In dose days it was all religion and suffering; now it is no religion and do as yo air a mind to. I don't take issue with Abe Lincoln and the war. They was bofe right, and I always staid by de government; but somehow de darkies has not 'justed theirselves to freedom. I dusn't wonder dat de courts am full ob darky divorce cases. You see dose women on Gas hill and Camp street gwine around at night like de roaring lions when they should be at home repairin' the ole man's socks or whipping the children. Dey talks about de pasture an' dress up in silks and satins, but dey don't cares about wha'-wha'-wha'-wha' the chuch or their pasture say. It jis sails in through one ear and floats out t'other, porticularly when dose bad white men come aroun'. I tell you I'se ashamed of dem, I is."
