

"THEY CANNOT BE DEAD."

Mrs. Jacobsen's Frenzied Declaration Over the Bodies of Her Husband and Child.

FUNERAL SERVICES YESTERDAY.

Olds and Ends—School Buildings—A Watchman Slugged—A Dude's Fate—Mrs. Trebelli—The Vannice Case, Etc.

The Jacobsen Funeral.

The funeral of John C. Jacobsen, the Dane who strangled his little infant son and then hung himself Saturday night, occurred yesterday afternoon from the residence, 810 South Nineteenth street. Long before the appointed hour, the street in front of the house was thronged with carriages, and when the services were opened the rooms were fairly thronged.

Rev. Mr. Hansen, of the Danish Lutheran Church, conducted the ceremonies at the house, in an impressive manner. Interment was made at Prospect Hill Cemetery, the hearse being followed by an unusually long cortege of carriages.

The body of the father was enclosed in a neat black casket and was covered with flowers and floral emblems. The remains of the infant lay in a tiny white coffin, which was almost concealed from view by a large wreath of flowers. The interior of the casket was also filled with flowers. The two coffins were placed side by side, and the sight was a most affecting one. The remains were viewed by hundreds of people, and there was scarcely a dry eye in the room among those who gazed on the sad picture.

Mrs. Jacobsen, the bereaved widow and mother, was seated in her chair, and, considering the terrible ordeal through which she had passed, her composure was remarkable. Yesterday morning, however, when she was taken to view the remains, she gave way to a violent outburst of grief. When she grew more calm, she declared that her husband and the child could not be dead because they looked so natural. She insisted that they were still alive, and that with proper treatment might be restored to healthy activity. She even went so far as to demand that an artery be opened in each body to determine the question beyond all doubt. Her friends finally persuaded her that this was useless—that the father and infant were really lifeless.

A FRENCH DIVA.

Mme. Trebelli and What She Has to Say.

Mme. Trebelli, who made her first appearance Monday night before an Omaha public, as prepossessing of the stage as on. A reporter for the BEE, during one of her visits in the programme, enjoyed a few moments conversation with the diva. She speaks with a decided French accent, a trifle broken, which is, however, scarcely the less agreeable on that account.

"Is this your first visit to America?" was asked of her.

"No, indeed, I have been here already three years. And I must say I am delighted with the American people. And the audience to-night! It was so quiet and appreciative. I felt it the moment I went on the stage. Yes, there is a good deal of difference between audiences in the matter of appreciation of music. Like the French people, who as a rule are courteous and appreciative. The Italian audience is as a rule noisy, unrestrained and demonstrative. The English people I like to sing before, as well as Americans who as a rule are critical but appreciative."

"Where did you receive your musical education, madame?"

"Under the celebrated Watel, of Paris. He was a famous teacher. Years ago, Christine Nilsson was one of his pupils. Watel is now dead, but his son is teaching music. My daughter, who recently made her debut, studied with him."

"What are your recollections of Nilsson as a pupil?"

"She was a charming girl, of about nineteen or twenty years of age, when she came to Watel to study. She was a hard worker and studied very carefully. The high notes which delighted her audience so much, she attained by dint of perseverance and thorough work. They did not come exactly natural to her, as many suppose."

A GAME OF "HIGH-FIVE."

It Leads to a Saloon Row—Police Court Notes.

Ed Miller was fined $10 and costs in police court yesterday morning for assaulting a boy named Westerdahl. The two quarrelled over a game of cards Monday. They were playing "high-five," and Miller won without interruption. His opponent finally detected him stealing cards from the deck and accused him hotly of cheating. Miller retaliated by thumping Westerdahl soundly.

Lou Larsen was fined $10 and costs, and Nels Anderson and John Lynn $5 and costs each for assaulting S. A. Olsen, Sunday. F. Pennington, charged with drunkenness, was sent to jail in default of a fine of $5 and costs. Three persons accused of vagrancy were discharged.

A man named Petersen was arrested on complaint of Fred Bergen for petit larceny. Bergen claims that he went into a saloon Monday to get $1.50 which was owing to him from the proprietor of the place. The saloon man placed the money on the counter for Bergen, when Petersen came along and scooped up the cash, claiming that the proprietor owed him that money. When Bergen protested, Petersen, it is claimed, assaulted him.

A TENDER MISSIVE.

How it Led its Recipient Into the Direst Trouble.

There is one young man in Omaha who for the next few days will wake up in the morning feeling extremely sore. And he has not been learning to ride one of Prince's bicycles, either. The calamity which befell him was something considerably worse than a fall from one of phantom wheels.

To make the story short this young man, who, for the present, shall be nameless, received, day before yesterday, a missive which was dictated by a delicate female hand. The y. m. is something of a lady's man—one of that type of beings known as a masquer. His heart beat high with hope as he tore open the delicately perfumed missive. The exact contents of the letter will probably never be known, but the purport of the missive was that the writer, who signed anonymously, was a lady who had often seen and admired the young man. She had several times seen him at different public balls, but never had the opportunity to make his acquaintance. She ended this by requesting the young man to meet her at a corner on North Nineteenth street at 8 o'clock that (Sunday) evening, where they could form plans for a continued acquaintance.

Flattered and flattered by the receipt of this letter, the young man prepared to meet the mysterious lady who had become impressed by his charms. Exactly at the appointed hour he was on the spot designated. But he met no lady. Instead he was jumped on by a masked individual, who, judging from the lightning manner in which he used his fists on the countenance of the young man, might have been John L. Sullivan or Jack Dempsey. In less time than it takes to tell, the masquer lay prone upon the ground, bruised, black-eyed and bleeding. He picked himself up, a sadder, sorer, and perchance a wiser man. He says that he does not know the name of his assailant, though he suspects it is a disappointed rival. The story leaked out through an acquaintance, to whom he confided his woes, and who thought the joke too good a one to keep.

"THE CAMPBELLS ARE COMING"—HAVE COME.

Arrival of Another Party From Muskegon.

Among the recent arrivals at the St. Charles Hotel are Mr. and Mrs. John Campbell and little daughter, from Muskegon, Mich. This pleasant event is noted not because the name of Campbell is novel on the hotel registry, but on account of the circumstances which produced the photograph of the gentleman above named.

Mr. John Campbell is a worthy citizen of North Muskegon, Mich., and a member of the firm of Gow Mayo & Co., extensive dealers in lumber. Though a young man he has, by energy and close application, assisted in building up a business, which five years ago was started on the most limited capital, and to-day takes a front rank in the city of Muskegon.

Knowing Mr. Charles J. Herrmann, who resides at Muskegon, and having heard of the good luck of that gentleman in the drawing of the Louisiana State Lottery, Oct. 13th, 1886, when Mr. Herrmann on an investment of $1, won $5,000 of the capital prize of $75,000. Mr. Campbell at the suggestion of his wife, wrote to the company in the early part of January for one-tenth ticket in the grand drawing of the 11th inst., with $1 enclosed.

Check No. 91,999 was immediately forwarded, and it proved to be the winner of the capital prize, $150,000. The pleasing intelligence of his good fortune was imparted to him by his friend, Charley Dun, a fellow townsman, through a dispatch from the Lottery Company, and Mr. Campbell immediately made arrangements to gratify a long-cherished desire, viz: to visit with his wife the ancient Crescent City.

It may be mentioned that before he knew of his success, his wife, as with prophetic soul remarked: "My dear, if we should be fortunate and win a big prize, we will surprise father with a nice check, won't we?" to which John cordially assented.

On Thursday Mr. Campbell presented himself at the Lottery Company's office, and received a check on the Louisiana National Bank for $15,000 in full for the one-tenth ticket he had held. This he converted into sight drafts, not forgetting one for father for $1,000. Mr. and Mrs. Campbell will remain in the city a few days, enjoying the balmy climate and visiting places of interest in and around town.—New Orleans (La.) Picayune, Jan. 29, 1887.

Valentines Stalled.

There are now in the postoffice of this city about three thousand valentines enclosed in envelopes upon which inadequate postage has been paid. They have all been stamped with but one-cent stamps which is not sufficient to carry an enclosed parcel through the office. As a consequence, these valentines can not be forwarded unless the required postage be paid. If this be not forthcoming, the pile of matter will be forwarded to the dead letter office. Little boys and girls who have sent each other valentines and desire them to reach their destination, are invited to call and pay the necessary toll.

A FLY DETECTIVE.

How a Council Bluffs Firm was Worked by an Omaha Man.

William Vannice, the alleged Omaha detective, has been taken to the Bluffs to stand trial on a charge of defrauding Russell & Co., by obtaining money under false pretenses.

If the charge proffered against Vannice by his accusers are true, he is a man of monumental gail. It is alleged that Vannice while in the employ of Detective J. J. Neligh, as office clerk, drew up a contract on his own hook with a representative of Russell & Co., of the Bluffs, who had been sent to Omaha to put the case in Detective Neligh's hands. This he did by pretending that Neligh was out of town and that he (Vannice) was authorized to take charge of and work up all cases for the agency. This was done, it is said, while Neligh was in the city. Vannice then pretended to go ahead and work up the case, and managed to secure from Russell & Co. over $100, in fees, expense money, etc. He was finally detected by Mr. Neligh through some boasts he inadvertently uttered about the amount of money he was making. Russell & Co. were highly indignant when they discovered the fraud that had been perpetrated on them, and they declare that they will push Vannice to the fullest limit.

A reporter is permitted to see one of the expense bills which Vannice presented to Russell & Co. for a trip, which he pretended to have made in working up the case. In the list of items was one for $20, "money lost at playing poker." It is hardly necessary to say that this item was not allowed.

Sick headache is the bane of many lives. To cure and prevent this annoying complaint use Dr. J. H. McLean's Little Liver and Kidney Pills. They are agreeable to take and gentle in their action. 25 cents a box.

"The false report that I had lectured in favor of Henry George's theory before a body of students in the city caused me a good deal of annoyance and led to a number of amusing consequences," remarked Dr. Coffman to a reporter the other day.

"The morning after the report appeared in one of the local dailies," he continued, "I came up to my office and found a lot of fellows there, whom I took to be drunken tramps and they congratulated me on having come over to their side. I hadn't read the paper at that time and supposing that I was being insulted by some drunken hoodlums, I kicked them down stairs. I was just reflecting over the strange affair and wondering what it meant, when some of my friends popped in, and showing me a copy of the paper with my alleged lecture in it, asked me if I didn't think I ought to go before the county board of insanity. Of course I exclaimed to them, as best I could, that I had never delivered any such lecture. And to cap the climax of my disgust, I received that very day a note from my banker asking me to make him over my heart and soul to the county board. He too had become suspicious. Since that time I have done nothing but make explanations."

W. G. Albright's South Omaha Office

War To the Knife.

Some time ago an agent for a firm in this city selling lamps and other articles on the installment plan was arrested and fined for assaulting Mrs. A. Nixon. The trouble grew out of payment for a lamp. Subsequently Mrs. Nixon commenced suit against the firm for the value of the lamp, about seven dollars, or the recovery of the "lighter." The case has been decided by Judge Berka in Mrs. Nixon's favor. Mr. Woods, representing the firm, appealed the case, saying it is alleged, that he would spend $2,000 rather than not come out victorious. Mrs. Nixon in return says she will sell her property in Denver and meet Mr. Woods every time as far as expenses are concerned. The lawyers will probably make something out of the lamp.
