The Irish National League.

An important meeting of the trish National league was held in Cunningham hall yesterday afternoon. Hon. John A. McShane, president of the league, called the meeting to order, and, in the absence of the secretary, Mr. T. B. Minihan was chosen temporary secretary. The chairman stated that the object of the meeting was to elect delegates to represent the Omaha branch at the state convention to ba held at Lincoln on Thursday next. After some discussion as to the number of delegates that Omaha would be entitled to it was defifth place and most of them have concided to select ten. The following were chosen: John Rush, T. J. Mahoney, signed the Omaha team to a still lower rank. Manager Stub Bandle has no reply John Whalen, E. J. Brennan, John E. Price, Richard O'Keefe, J. C. Brennan, Fred Gray, Michael Donovan, Thomas ball prophets, but continues hts prepara-Fred Gray, Michael Donovan, Thomas F. Brennan, and T. B. Minahan. A num-ber of address were made by members present. Mr. Rush was called upon and delivered an excellent address. He said many changes had been made in the history of Ireland since he came on the political stage a quarter of a century ago. He had contempt for both whig and tory as far as England is concerned. He be-lieved this a good stopping place to look back and see what had been accom-plished, and ask what is to be done? The Irish nation never bas given up. O'Leary is pitching daily in working on a farm to harden up for the writes Irish nation never bas given up. The spirit of agitation is as permanent as Ireland, and the waves of the ocean will wash away the island as soon as this spirit. There have been four distinct spirit. men to go into training at once. They epochs in Ireland's history in the century will probably all report in Omaha on March 25 and will be in good shape to do past. The first in 1798, when Robert Emmet was executed on account of his attempt to free Ireland by arms. Next in O'Connell's day when he announced to the multitude at Tara: "That the freeome tall playing at the opening of the season the multitude at Tara: "That the free-dom of Ireland was not worth the shed-ding of one drop of blood." At the same time existed a power, called by O'Con-nell "the enbbage garden brigade," that was composed of O'Brien. Meagher and the others, who in 1848 had to flee from their land. The speaker then described fortunate in the selection of grounds. They have secured a lease for six years of an excellent property belonging to the Iner estate at the corner of Twentieth and Lake streets. The ground is reached the horrible condition of the land at the time. The third epoch was James Stephen's time when Fenianism flourished and the advocates of force again came to the front. The fourth and last was the Parnell epoch, Parnell, the meteor, before whom all heads bow. He appears to have reached his zenith. The speaker concluded that the result of all this has shown that England never yielded anything except when made afraid, and he hoped the force idea would be endorsed at Lincoln.

An interesting address was also made by Mr. J. J. Mahoney, after which the meeting adjourned. Next Sunday the league will hold another meeting at the same place.

A SERMON ON LUCK.

Rev. Harsha's Discourse at the Presbyterian Church.

Rev. W.J.Harsha preached a sermon on "Luck" at the Dodge street Presbyterian church last night from the texts: Judges 17:9, "I go to sojourn where I may find a place," and Judges 18.6, "Before the Lord is your way wherein ye go." The sermon is outlined as follows:

The same man said these two things. He was a Levite who went out to seek his fortune and came to the house of a man of the name of Micah.

Micah asked him what he was doing, and he replied: "I am looking for employment. I am seeking a place." He was a believer in luck then. He would just chance it and see what would happen. But when Micah had hired him and made him a priest, some other men came along looking for some thing to do and then the levite had another answer to make to them. "Before the Lord is your way wherein yo u go." He had grown from blind chance into providence, from luck to a belief in God. I want you to grow in the same way and herce I the same way and herce I shall urge my texts upon you. First of all, I freely admit that there are certain things which seem like chance. One of these is the apparent difference in happiness which we see in society. One baby is born rich and another poor. They grow up to childhood, one is clad in warm garments and the other in rags; and when they get to be young men they start life under very dif-ferent circumstances. Is not this luck? Another line of facts is made up of the seeming accidents upon which our whole future life turns. Luther was given to the church out of a thunderstorm. The opening or the shutting of a door has often changed a whole life. Trivial incidents turn us to this or that line of action. But we are to remember that even small things are governed by law. The clouds are fleecy and apparently ungoverned in their flight, yet law controls them. There is nothing so small as to escape the control of that great mind which presides over the universe.

Another thing which makes men believe in luck is that they sometimes lose or gain a fortune suddenly. A moment may plunge them into poverty, or elevate them into riches. But we fail to notice all the long series of prepara-tions that have gone before the final scene. All has been arranged and the chance is only seeming. God dwells in the heavens and moves in everything on this earth. Not a sparrow falls without his notice, not a lily fades without catching his eye. "Before Him is our way." By Him we are directed. Let us put our interests in His hands for time and eternity. There is an old Grecian story of a king who sent his infant son into exile and gave to the slaves who took him away his own sword and sandals, saying: "When he grows to be a man let him light his way to me and I will crown him." God says this to men. Let us take the sword of the spirit and the sandals of faith and fight our way to a heavenly crown! way to a heavenly crown!

Book. The neatest and most'expeditious drunk on record was that indulged in one afternoon recently by two well known young business men of this city. Both were book-keepers. No. 1, after several hours' hard work, had struck a difficult trial balance and felt happy. No. 2 had likewise been working on a knotty trial balance, had failed after repeated efforts and was mad. When they met both felt like going on a spree, though for exactly opposite reasons. Two drinks of whiskey were taken at a saloon on Fifteenth street, in less than five minutes three more had been swallowed at a resort on Douglas street, and in less than ten minutes from that time, two more at a place a block distant. Neither man was addicted to whiskey-drinking, and by this time they were literally paralyzed. They were taken to No. 2's room and then slept off the effects of the spree,
