THE WAGON BRIDGE ASSURED

The News of the Passage of the Bill Causes the Bands to Play.

UNCLE SAM'S JURYMEN.

New Reading For the Public—Literary and Musical Treats—The Sale of Lands and Lots.

The news given in yesterday's Bee of the final passage of the wagon bridge bill, as amended, was received with much rejoicing. In real estate circles there was a renewal of activity, and a great deal of fresh inquiry for investment. The band again mounted the big wagon, and the streets were full of music. Everybody had some glad word of congratulation to give his neighbor, and the city seemed merry to the suburbs. No one doubted but that the bill would ultimately pass, but there is nothing so cheerful as a certainty taking the place of a hope based ever so strongly on probabilities. The work of construction will speedily follow, and prices of real estate and actual improvements feel the effect of the announcement. There is a stronger confidence in this season's boom being permanent than ever before.

The Turley's Golden Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Turley yesterday quietly celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding at their home, No. 100 Turley's Glen. The only relatives they have are Mr. J. Mueller, a son-in-law, and his two children, Mrs. Dr. O. H. Simons, of Leadville, who is now in Germany, and Arthur J. Mueller, of Omaha, the grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Turley. J. Mueller was the only relative who was able to be present and he remembered Mr. Turley by presenting him with a heavy, gold-headed ebony cane, on which was engraved "M. Turley," while he gave Mrs. Turley a large beautiful basket of flowers.

Mr. Turley, who has been confined to his bed since December, is recovering as fast as possible for one of his age, and is now able to sit up about a quarter of the time. He was born in Kentucky, as was also his estimable wife, and is now in his seventy-fourth year, while Mrs. Turley is sixty-eight years of age. They were united in marriage on March 2, 1837, in Tazewell county, Illinois, in which state they, with their parents, arrived in 1832 and 1834 respectively. After leaving Illinois they were among the early settlers of Anamosa, Jones county, Iowa, and from there removed to this city where they have resided for the past thirty-four years. As well as their parents, they have pioneered it nearly all their lives. A successful lawyer, by profession, Mr. Turley finally became an inventor, and has probably taken out as many patents as any other man. But like the majority of inventors, he never made it a financial success for himself. During their residence here they have accumulated a large amount of property, among which is some of the most desirable residence property in that portion of the city known as Turley's Glen.

A Feast of Music.

At the benefit concert tendered Miss Bella Robinson at the opera house last evening there was a large audience and more real enthusiasm was manifest than is usual at concerts where so high a class of music is given. While evidently satisfying to the stern rules of the chilly critic, the charm of Miss Robinson's playing is in the evident love she has for the art, and the soul power and expression which makes even the mechanism of keys and wires breathe with life and speak with feeling. While wonderfully accurate in the touch of each note, there is none of that stiffness which comes from a more mechanical performance. The programme presented a variety of selections from the several masters, and each number was warmly applauded. In the opening number Miss Robinson accompanied her and also played the accompaniments for the vocal numbers of the evening. She acquitted herself with great credit. Mr. Squire and Mrs. Estabrook, of Omaha, added much to the enjoyment of the evening by their voices. Mr. Squire has a charming soprano voice, which is marked by its sweetness and flexibility. Mrs. Estabrook has a contralto, of but ordinary power, but wonderfully smooth and rich, and her enunciation was so distinct as to add much to the enjoyability of hearing her, every word being as clearly understood as though spoken. Entertainment throughout was of high order, and the participants were called back again and again by the enthusiastic listeners.

Fulton, Atton; Charles Prindle, Kellerton.

Life in Leadville.
The lecture delivered by Rev. T. J. Mackay on "Leadville," was not given as large a hearing as it should have been. The audience was an enthusiastic one, however, and those who listened to this admirable gentleman join with others who were unable to attend in expressing the desire to have the lecture repeated in the opera house on some more favorable date. In this lecture Mr. Mackay gave some interesting facts concerning mining, and then got from the consideration of the work to that of the worker. He described very vividly life in the midst of a mining excitement, and drew from his personal experience and observations many beautiful, helpful thoughts. The lecture was an eloquent one, and was as full of literary merit as any lecture given in this city. It can be given in the opera house, the speaker will doubtless have a much larger audience, for those who heard the lecture are so enthusiastic in its praise that many others are anxious to have another opportunity of hearing it. It is promising themselves to allow no circumstance to prevent their improving the opportunity.

Can't "See" It.

The recent telegram from Chicago to the effect that a new diocese was to be formed in Iowa, with Council Bluffs as the see city, does not appear to be taken for truth by Bishop Cosgrove, of Des Moines, who says in regard to it:

"The old story about again. But a few days since I read a paragraph to the same effect, only Des Moines was selected as the see city of the new diocese. It is absolutely without foundation. There has been no request from any source for another diocese in Iowa; if there were, Bishop Kennedy and I would be apt to know it, for in fact, the request must be made by both of us, for a new diocese must be composed of parts of the diocese of Dubuque and the diocese of Davenport. Yet this report would have the public believe that the project has been considered at Rome, sanctioned by the pope, and that the bishop of that is lacking to consummate it!"

FIT FOR AN ANGEL'S HOME.
The King of Siam's Gorgeous Summer Palace.
The summer palace of the king, the Mango gardens, is considered the handsomest place in Siam, and is the property of the St. Louis Republic. The main building is erected in the style of a French chateau, and is surrounded with grounds laid off with great skill by a landscape gardener, paths winding in serpentine sinuosity in every direction, flowers of all kinds fill the air with rarest perfume, and to add to the charms of the place miniature lakes, dotted with lily plants in blossom, dash their sparkling waters in the sunshine.
These lakes are fed from the rivers that flow in front of the palace, which, together with the grounds, is enclosed by a wall containing a number of handsome buildings set apart for the various wives of the king. Through the kindness of the gardener in charge I was shown through the palace, the king being absent, he not staying there more than a month during the year.
The palace is built of teak and other costly woods, the walls paneled most handsomely, the hard wood polished like a mirror, bringing out the grain; the ceiling lofty, laid off in handsome designs and most elaborately gilded; the floors a mosaic of various woods, also highly polished, each room a different design, while the broad flight of steps that leads to the second story is simply grand, in keeping with the magnificence of the interior.
The king's chamber, bath-rooms, etc., were worthy of the abode of royalty, and his couch a "thing of beauty," if not "a joy forever." It was made of rare wood and carved in the most exquisite design, draped with rare lace fringed with gold, a gold embroidered spread covered the bed; the pillows and bolsters were also hemmed with lace, and above it swung a handsome punka to keep him cool. It is promising more like the work of art to please the eye than the resting place of one who courted slumber, success of business and trouble arising from the control of over seven million people.

In some of the rooms we noticed some very handsome furniture and fixtures, costly tables, crystal and alabaster vases, etc., though the place was dismantled during the absence of royalty. It is a place that one tired with power and the world would retire to for a month and live a elysium or oriental ease. In the center of several of the lakes handsome pavilions are erected, where the band disposes music, and on their rippling surface float barges ready to bear the wives and children or family of the king, when he concludes to pass his time there.
Scattered throughout the gardens are cages containing monkeys, birds, etc., that add not a little to the picturesque ness of the scene. For over an hour our party strolled through the well-kept grounds and gardens, fifty men being constantly employed in beautifying and keeping them in order. Amid a grove of rarest foliage, musical with birds, is a handsome Italian monument, erected to the memory of the late queen, who was drowned by the sinking of a yacht, erected by the king, and by his special direction kept in the neatest order.
As our time was limited we could not see but a portion of the beauties of this lovely place. It would take a column to speak at length of the various palaces that are scattered over the grounds, the Oriental watch and bell tower that stands like a giant sentinel towering over all the handsome wall, built like a gothic cathedral, stained glass, etc., but the shrill whistle of our steam launch reminds us that "time is up," and, with a sigh of regret, our party left the lovely Mango gardens, its world of flowers, its fragrant atmosphere and paradisaical beauty—an elysium where one could dream life away, the Nephenthe of the poet, where no raven will ever "sit on the cold bust of Pallas," but eternal sunshine glides the velvet curtains and casts a glory on the glistening floors.
