J. Goldberg is east buying more new goods for his large establishment here. The boxes and bales already begin tumbling in, and his customers will find many attractive bargains. If you want every drop of patriotic

George Metcalf as the three new alder-men the city can rest assured that there will be no lack of enterprise, and at the same time there will be wise and careful protection of the city's interests. C. R. Frank has taken the manage-ment of Cole Bros', house here, Mr. E. C. Cole having so many other interests to look after as to compel his retirement om the management of that business. Mr. Frank has been a traveling salesman for Cole Bros., is thoroughly conversant with the business, and under his management it will doubtless continue to A. J. Mandel was yesterday loading up cars with furniture to ship to Silver City, where he is opening a branch of his furniture establishment. The people of Silver City are to be congratulated on having so enterprising a merchant establish a store there. He proposes to keep a large stock, and to treat the customers as squarely and fairly as he does those at his main establishment, which is all that any one could ask. The war song concert to be given at the opera house next Tuesday evening, for the benefit of the Baptist church, promises not only to be a novel musical entertainment, but one of more than ordinary ment. Prof. Hunter has charge of it. The Misses Merkel, Mr. Treynor, Mr. Pollack, Messrs. Badollet aud Tulleys, Prof. Lipfert and others will participate. The concert thus presented by the best musical talent in the city will prove

Now that the republicans have shown their disposition to disregard party lines, and work to elect the best men for the city council, the democrats, not to be outdone, will rally around such good men as the republicans have nominated. There are many democrats who think more of the city's interests than they do of partisanship in city affairs, especially at this important period, and Chris Straub and George Metcalf will receive their votes. It is an encouraging sign to see republicans and democrats enthusiastic in getting the best men possible to serve in the council.

A Little Palace.

The new drug store of Camp & Ellis, in the opera house block, is to be opened this morning. Last evening the BEE man had the privilege of looking in upon it while the finishing touches were being put on, and by the brightness of the electric light it appeared like a little palace. It is not saying too much to pronounce it the finest fitted drug store in the west. Mr. Bangs, of Boston, an old druggist, who has of late years made a specialty of furnishings for stores in this line, and who has fitted up numerous ones in the east, gave this his personal attention. east, gave this his personal attention. Every part is specially designed, and most nearly all covered by patents. The finishings and furnishings are elegant. The shelvings, counters, show cases, etc., are of solid cherry, ornamented with bronzes, and trimmed with dark-green mottled marble. It has a parquette floor, hard wood inlaid. Choice bits of statuary, mirrors, China silk drapings and various other ornamentations are arranged with rare taste. mentations are arranged with rare taste, making the store seem indeed palatial. The fountains for soda and minerals are elaborate and very rich. Every possible convenience is provided for the display and handling of druggists' fancy sundries. It is the intention of these young men to confine their business to this line and prescriptions. They are both thor-oughly experienced and educated, and with their extended acquaintance and popularity cannot but find their new venture a great success. The new store is a great credit to Council Bluffs, and is one in which all can take pride.

BOLDLY ROBBED IN A RUSH.

A German Passenger Relieved of Nearly Two Thousand Dollars.

POINTERS ABOUT THE POLICE

The Board of Health Say the Cards Must Go Up-Talks and Transactions in Real Estate-Bluff City News.

A Thief's Big Haul.

Yesterday morning a bold robbery ocurred on the incoming Chicago & Northwestern train. An elderly German named Elias Eberly, was the victim. He and his family had come through from Myerstown, Pa., and were en route for their future home in David City, Neb., or near there. As the train arrived at the local depot here, he stepped to the front of the car to make inquiry as to whether he should get off there. While in this position he was suddenly surrounded by several strangers, apparently passengers, who in the rush crowded him against the side of the car. On recovering himself he found that his pocketbook was gone. It was in an inside vest pocket, and the vest had been cut by the thieves who thus secured the booty. There was in the pocketbook $200 in cash, a draft for $1,400 and one for $350, making the total loss quite heavy; in fact about all that the unfortunate man possessed aside from his household goods. The larger draft was payable to William Rice and by him endorsed to Eberly. It was a draft of the Myerstown bank. The smaller draft was one of the old Lebanon bank and was payable to Mr. Eberly. The police went to work on such clues as they could get and have some hope of being able to catch the thieves. There was a similar robbery at Missouri Valley the night before, the victim losing $75. The two were doubtless robbed by the same gang.

Will Bear Comparison.

Moses Bloom has sold to the Coles Brothers the lot on Broadway, corner of Seventh street, opposite the Coy house, for $12,000. This is a little more than $200 a front foot.

Messrs. Cooper & McGee have returned from an extended trip, during which they have visited Kansas City, Wichita, Memphis, Chattanooga and other cities. They have been making especial inquiry into the prices of real estate, and the comparison has been so wonderfully in favor of Council Bluffs that they have returned very enthusiastic over this city. Other cities, with much smaller population, and with not half the railway facilities, nor with any such prospects as Council Bluffs has, are holding property three and four times the present prices of like property here. Having made personal investigation of the question they return satisfied that Council Bluffs presents extraordinary bargains for investors, and a man can buy almost with his eyes shut and not can buy almost with his eyes shut and not miss getting a round profit.

"I never have any trouble in selling to outsiders," remarked a prominent dealer yesterday. "Men who are posted as to what! property is worth in other cities are sure to buy if they come to Council Bluffs. The only difficulty I have experienced is to get the men here. Just as sure as they come and look over the as sure as they come and look over the situation and the prices they jump at the bargains. They are bargains sure. Some of the home people, who have lived here for years, and have got accustomed to having prices so low, do not seem to be able to realize that these prices are estate is worth in any other city of this size laugh in their sleeve when some of these home people talk about the way property has advanced. It has advanced some, but it is nothing to what is sure to come.

Prices are too low now, almost country prices. I deem the outlook for money making here as simply immense. I have been around a good deal myself, and I am satisfied to stay by Council Bluffs as the best point I know of Why just think of it, this city with 25,000 people, with of it, this city with 25,000 people, with eight or ten lines of railway terminating here, with big building improvements, with Omaha just on the other side of the river, with the assurance of this city being virtually made a part of it, and a hundred other advantages possessed by but few cities in the whole country, what can keep it from jumping right along?"

Points From the Police. Richard Baker, better known as 'Texas." got jealous over his dusky bride, and in his anger he sought the flowing bowl. Then he went from drink to fight, and when the police sought to calm his ruffled feelings he turned on them. They turned the key on him, and yesterday he was fined enough to keep him in jail for a few days. D. B. Luke, one of Martin's hack drivers, was arrested yesterday for overcharging a passenger. Acigarmaker, Orca Paslekel, from Davenport, was out with him taking in the town, Pasiekel getting pretty full. It was claimed that the hack driver charged him $3 and took his watch for security, depositing the timepiece with Bert Berdsley. The hack driver claimed that the passenger had broken one of the panes of glass in the hack, and he charged him for this. Paslekel was fined for being drunk, and Luke's case was continued until today to make further investigation. It is claimed that Luke has been overcharg-ing others, and that as an instance he charged a lady $1 for taking her from the opera house to Mr. Robinson's on

Henry Sweigart, who is quite officious in having people arrested, complained of J. Carl, whose real name appears to be Mitchell, charging him with threatening to kill. Yesterday the complainant wanted to dismiss the case, but was informed that if he did so he must pay the costs. The matter will probably be drop-

J. Roderick was before Judge Ayles-worth yesterday on a charge of larceny. It appears that Roderick and a man named Lane were drinking around town named Lane were drinking around town together. Lane had a sack in which he had some provisions for his home. Getting separated, Roderick called at Fox & Galvin's, where the sack had been left, and got it, as he claims, by Lane's request. He dropped into some other place to wait for Lane, got to playing cards, and finally picked up the sack and went home with it. As there seems to be no disposition on Roderick's part to steal the provisions, but rather a desire to accommodate his friend, it is looked upon as a case of poor judgment, and will probably be settled amicably.

Jim Snodderly and his Mary, together with a woman named Mary Brown, were making night so hidcous that the police run the trio in. They are behind the bars sobering off. Jim made some time ago a commendable stagger to reform his ways, and his friends hoped that he was going to make a man of himself, but he seems to be going the old way again.

The city board of health has been having quite a discussion over the matter of contagious diseases. The board has at last decided to compel every physician to report all cases of contagious diseases and to require the city marshal to post at all such places cards warning the public of the nature of the disease in the house where patients may be. After agreeing to this it was discovered yesterday that their action really required the posting of cards where there were cases of measles or mumps. It was thought that this was going a little too far, as these diseases not deemed malignant enough to warrant such action. It was decided vesterday to make an exception in favor of these and confine the action to such diseases as scarlet fever, diphtheria, etc. The families where such diseases exist are to be quarantined for thirty-five days. This action is taken to prevent the spread of such diseases, and while it works a hardship on some, it seems to be the greatest good to the greatest number.

BURNING A DEAD MAN.

Description of the Slow Process as Seen in India-A Strange Scene. There is a movement on the part of the spectators shifting to windward, and a certain European who was sheltering from the sun behind a stone obalisque hard by is warned to get farther out of the way of the smoke, which a native, with a grin and a very significant gesture, intimates to be trying to the olfactory nerves, says a writer on cremation in India in St. James' Gazette. In the dry India in St. James' Gazette. In the dry air and sultry weather the wood catches first. A thicker steam rises out of the coffin and mixes with the thin blue smoke. There have been smiles and laughter on the part of the company—numbering hardly over half a dozen—both during the tacking-up process and afterward; but the laugh is not malicious; it can hardly be called irreverent. It is the laugh of men who know no harm in it. Meanwhile the fire grows hotter. With the dense steam rising out of the coffin there begin to be mixed tongues of flame. An attendant bales water in a small tin can out of the bucket placed near the altar, and sprinkbucket placed near the altar, and sprink-les it freely from time to time over the chasm you can see the poor shriveled legs with only a remnant of black flesh over the shin-bones, which point up-ward in different directions. The feet have still their natural shape, but they are black and ghastly, blotched with a leprous, bubbly white. Then the other end falls out, and the skull hangs down into the glowing embers. Wouderfully human it is still, with the face even now retaining much of its flesh and almost its complete features. It is strange to see the blackened countenance so calmly looking down countenance so calmly looking down into the seething sea of fire beneath it and around it. And still it stares, though gradually becoming more ghastly and in-distinct. Long ago most of the spectators have departed, tired of a useless waste of time. Hardly one remains to rake the scattering bones together, which in two short hours from the time the fire was kindled will have been reduced to blackened cinders, weighing a few ounces only and scarcely recognizable from the ashes of the burned sticks.
