The barbers are to organize this evening. They have the constitution and by-laws of other associations, and to-night they meet at No. 132 Main street to com-plete organization. Now that the weather permits new and permanent signs are taking the place of the muslin signs that were hurriedly put together to advertise the real estate firms during the beginning of the great rush for Council Bluffs real estate.

There is some uneasuress as to when the fire and police alarm is going to be tested and the system either approved or disapproved. The old council will probably let the matter go over to the new one. In the meantime the system can be informally tested, and kept in use. Deputy Sheriff O'Neill started last night with three of his boarders for Fort Madison, where he is to leave them. Whipple, Paxton and Fales formed the trio. Jimmy hated to part with them, but so long as they had to go he seemed to feel better about having them change to Fort Madison than to any other place. Bob Graham and Burt Tostevin had a lively time hunting ducks. Their horse got so interested in watching them that he stood on his hind legs, the better to see how they were getting along. He tumbled over backwards, into the buggy. smashing it so that they had to ride home horseback, tandem fashion. The boys yesterday sat on the softest cushions they could find in Hattenhauer's while watching the wicked buggy being patched up. Two smart fellows were arrested Sunday night for disturbing the peace of the Salvation Army meeting. Those who go to these meetings simply to be entertained should not try to give an enter-tained should not try to give an enter-tainment of their own. They never make a success of it and their efforts are not appreciated. Someway the rest of the audience do not realize how smart these smarties are. On account of the verdancy of the two fellows arrested Sun-day night they were allowed to see day night they were allowed to go free after being given a short lecture. The new council will probably proceed to elect a street commissioner. The city should select some good man, pay him well for his time and see to it that he devotes his time to the city. The need of more attention to the condition of streets is becoming more apparent daily. What is everybody's business should be placed in the hands of some one good man, who will see to it that the streets are looked after. If not there is hable to be a suit which will cost the city more than one month's salary for a street commissioner.

Fourth street for a block south of Broadway is in a deplorable condition so far as sidewalks are concerned. This is one of the most valuable blocks in the city, and if there is need of sidewalks anywhere there is the location. It seems strange that this portion of the center of the city should be allowed to remain year after year a disgrace, when the property can well afford the expense of the best sort of walks. the best sort of walks. The council should see to it that the bad spots are supplied with needed improvements. There is one tot in front of which there has been no sidewalk for years, and pe-destrians have had to wade through mud there season after season. The lot is a valuable one, and if the owner, whoever he is, has not the enterprise to build a walk the city should build it and tax it up. There are several poor excuses for walks, and several bad places where a person's life and limbs are jeopardized. Right in the heart of the city to allow such a state of affairs is a sad comment on the enterprise claimed for Council Bluffs.

One of the most valuable corner business lots on Broadway can be had at a bargain if taken soon. Inquire at No. 41 Main street.

Not a Very Pleasant Trip. "Around the World in Eighty Days" was presented last night at Dohany's to a large sized audience. The play is one which is a great attraction for the gallery gods and in consequence that porlery gods and in consequence that por-tion of the house had a larger crowd than ever before in the history of the new opera house. The company is very poor and the necessary scenery to make the play what it might be, even in the hands of those who presented it, was lacking in all respects; the company having little of their own. "Phileas Fogg" by W. L. Fleming and "John Archibald" by J. P. Fleming were very tame and F. W. Gret-ton as "Jean Passe Partout" is by no means the best "Passe Partouts" ever put on the boards.

CHOOSING A SCHOOL BOARD.

The Democratic Trio, Rain, Lawson and DeHaven, Elected.

ALL PROPOSITIONS DEFEATED.

Ex-Policeman Morse Disturbed By s Burglar-The Work On the Levy Commences To-day-Last Night's Council.

The School Election. The school election yesterday did not excite the interest which its importance demanded. Many did not go near the polls [and there seemed little of that animation which causes a full expression of the will of the people. At an early hour in the morning there was a move made for starting in some tickets bearing the name of some lady as one of the directors. The suggestion was in many respects an admirable one and one which would have met with much favor had it been made earlier. It came late and the group of enthusiastic citizens hardly knew how to handle it. It was decided, however, to have some tickets printed with the name of Mrs. Jacob Sims as one of the members of the school board. As Miss Squire she had been one of the most successful and popular teachers here, and her name for such a position would have been voted willingly by many, but consultation with some of her friends. and the fact that it was late to make such a move caused the decision to be changed and the tickets were withdrawn.

The fact that no registration was required for this election caused some discussion and no little confusion. There was much difference of opinion as to the details of voting. Various old registration books were used and voters who had to swear in their votes found afterwards that their names were on the wards that their names were on the books. So far as known no one was prevented from voting, but the election was by no means satisfactorily conducted.

There was a report that it had been discovered by some who had looked up the law carefully that aspecial registration was necessary, and that for lack of it the whole election was illegal. The rumor went so far that it was reported an injunction was to be served on the an injunction was to be served on the board to prevent the canvassing of the

For Social Purity. The interest awakened here in the White Cross movement promises to result in some practical good being accomplished. It is not probable that Council Bluffs is worse than other cities. nor is there any more need of greater social purity here than elsewhere. Still, those who are acquainted with the local happenings, as those necessarily are who gather the news from all parts of the city, realize that there is enough immorality and indecency here to demand some practical reform. Hardly a day passes but that the reporter sniffs some unsavory odor, whether he wants to or not. There is much scandal in the air, and many good reputations suffer at the hands, or rather the tongues of the gossips, but there are aside from the work of the gossips, many actual occurrences which point to the need of a movement of reform in education and habits. Within a very short time the papers of this city have had two excellent opportunities for furnishing sickening, scandalous sensations to their readers, if they eared to deal in that kind of reading. In both cases the young men were from the best families here. The feelings of friends, the hopes that the young men would save their reputations by future well behavior, has caused the matters to be passed over lightly. The instances are referred to simply as illustrating how the best young society of the city is being honeycombed. Rev. T. J. Mackey has been making a strong push for a helpful reformatory work. Mrs. Cole, of Mt. Peasant, has also been turning public thought to this subject. The address delivered by her in St. Paul's church some months are and st. Paul's church some months ago, and the one delivered by her Sunday night in the Presbyterian church, were both strong appeals for United effort to stay social appeals for United effort to stay social evil. She is one of the pleasantest public speakers who ever addressed the people here. Her reasoning is clear, and her diction is beautiful. Such an earnest and honest worker with her abilities can but accomplish much in inciting to thought and action. Besides her public addresses she has been giving some addresses to the ladies, and arranging the necessary preliminary work for organization for permanent work along this line.

BROKEN OF HIS REST.

J. W. Morse Not Only Loses Sleep But His Pocket Book and the Thief. Shortly before 1 o'clock yesterday morning the residence of J. W. Morse, No. 100 Bluff street, was entered by burglars by a window. Mrs. Morse was awakened by smelling something burning and discovered a fellow standing in their bedroom facing the dressing case and holding a match in his hand, by the flickering light of which he was evidently taking a survey of the probabilities for plunder. She awoke her husband, who jumped out of bed to grab the fellow, but the burglar was a little too nimble and he went out of the room and jumped out of the window, Morse a close second. Morse was not in traveling trim and the fellow had a great advantage over him in respect to clothing.

There was little to do but to examine as to what had been taken. Morse found that the fellow had been deliberately in-specting the rooms, as a large number of burnt match were scattered about. The burnt match were scattered about. The fellow had gone through the pockets of Morse's pantatoons, and had taken his pocketbook containing $45, and a little bag in which there was 60 cents in change. Yesterday morning the empty pocketbook was found on Fourth street nearly in front of John Keller's residence. Morse has done considerable service in catching thieves, burglars and crooks, having been on the police force for a long time, and having done considerable detective work. Having caught thieves so many times, it seems a turn thieves so many times, it seems a turn about that thieves should catch him just once. He invites the same fellow to come again, and he declares that the next time the fellow won't beat him in the midnight race to the window. Electric door bells, burgiar alarms and every form of domestic electrical appli-ances at the New York Plumbing Co.

The work staked out is to be commenced to-day and is to be completed within tifteen working days, Mr. Morse to forfeit $50 for each day beyond that time if delay is due to him. The contract is 16 cents a cubic yard.

Not Dead, But Hurt.

The police received a call last evening by telephone from the Northwestern depot, the report being that a man was lying dead in the yards near there. The fellow proved not to be dead, as was supposed, nor liable to die right away. He had considerable whisky on board and fallen from a two-wheel cart, knocking him more senseless, if possible, than be-fore. He was picked up, taken to the jail and there eared for. His injuries ap-peared to be mainly about the head and not deemed serious. He gave his name as O'Connor.
