until this morning, when it will come up before Justice Schurz. Swiggart and Pierson, the two old men who got mad and clawed each other, have made up, and gone back to the old tannery to "bach" it together again.

A Rock Island switchmen named Moore now mourns the loss of one tinger which was caught in a drawbar while he was engaged at work in the yards here. Two wholesale lumber concerns are preparing to move to this city. When the lumber begins to arrive the announcement will be made and then people can see for themselves. The city council is to meet this after-noon at 3 o'clock for a farewell meeting, a closing up of the business of the old council. The new council will meet for the first time next Monday night.

The funeral of John F Morris yesterday forenoon was very largely attended. There were nearly one hundred carriages in the procession which followed the remains to their last resting place.

A letter was received here yesterday stating that W. H. Cox, a sub-contractor on the Colorado & Western railroad, under J. J. Brown, of this city, had been shot by one of his men and mortally wounded.

Conrad Geise recently went to Kingley, Kan, to start a cattle ranch, and now comes the news that a prairie fire swept over the ground destroying most of his personal effects. The loss will reach into the hundreds.

A delegation from near Weston yesterday took out their citizen papers. They were Christian Anderson, Lars Christian Thompson, Martin Nelson, Lars Chris-tian Larison, Carl Christian Peterson ul Christians but one.

P. C. Miller is putting a dome into his store, both to secure more light and to afford an opportunity to display his artistic work. He is very skillful as a decorator. He will soon have the satisfaction of knowing that he has the only dome in the city.

Deputy Sheriff O'Neill, who has just returned from Ft. Madison, says that the notorious Polk Wells is now engaged there knitting stockings. Rather an effeminate occupation for one who has been so bloodthirsty and ferocious. Wells is running one of the knitting machines, and makes about thirty pairs a day.

A colored boy named Wilson was a short time ago sentenced to nine months in the county jail for the larceny of an overcoat from L. C. Baldwin's residence, the coat belonging to Mr. Beers. The boy is suffering from consumption, and it is predicted that he will not live out his sentence if kept confined. An effort is sentence if kept confined. An effort is being made to secure his release on this account, and the authorities rather favor the move for his release.

A fellow, giving his name as Brown, who has just served a term in jail for stealing a pair of gloves, was no sooner released than he began looking about for some fresh opportunity. Captain Anderson noticed the fellow watching for a chance to steal a pair of shoes from the bankrupt store on Main street, and after satisfying himself that the fellow was crooked, he ran him in. He was yesterday given a chance to leave the city, and he apparently has improved it.

Complaint is made by the residents in the neighborhood of Fourth avenue between Ninth and Eleventh streets that horses are allowed to roam about the street and cut up the parking. It seems that the owners of the horses in the barn on the corner of Fourth avenue and Tenth street allow their horses out night and morning and much damage is done thereby. The authorities should put a stop to this immediately and the owners made to pay the damages.

One of the prominent soldiers of the Salvation Army was in Mike Nolan's saloon giving some earnest advice, and trying to make the boys change for a better life, when Mike improved the opportunity of swapping hats with him. Mike with the Salvation Army cap skipped out, and went the rounds, making neighborly calls on his fellow saloonists, who were surprised to see Mike in the uniform of a salvationist. Those who did not know Mike were shocked to see a man with a Salvation Army hat on setman with a Salvation Army hat on set-ting up drinks for the boys.

Nothing New About Irvin. The mystery concerning the death of The mystery concerning the death of the unfortunate Irvin continues to be deep and dark. The police have been hunting, but no additional light has been gained to that given in yesterday's BEE. The theory seems to grow stronger that the man was drugged, slugged or killed outright, before he was run over by the ears. The brothers are expected back here to continue the search for evidence in regard to the matter.

THE IRVIN MYSTERY UNSOLVED.

The Bluffs' Remarkable Fire Record -Lively Experience With Footpads on Broadway-Why the Police Quit Manufacturing Sensations.

Loved Two or Three Well.

There is behind the bars at the city jail a young Swede, almost a boy, who is booked for adultery on complaint of his wife. He has scarcely reached his majority, and yet his matrimonial life seems to have been very thorny. Last July, when in his twentieth year, he was married by Justice Schurz to a girl, Anna Hansen, three years his senior. The marriage was not of his own seeking. He had been going with the girl, but was not ready to marry. She was, however, and as she realized the approaching responsibility of motherhood, she insisted that the young man should bear the responsibility of a father. Rather than have greater trouble, he at last consented, and the ceremony was performed. He declined to live with his formed. He declined to live with his bride, and she seemed not to be anxious to have him. A short time ago an arrangement was made between them by which she was to procure a divorce. He was to pay her $150, a part down and the balance on monthly installments. The papers were drawn up and he supposed that was the end of the matter, until an officer arrested him vestorday on until an officer arrested him yesterday on this charge. The wife claims that he has been running about too much with other been running about too much with other girls, and she does not propose to have him so frisky until he is fairly free from her. The young fellow is in a world of trouble and complains bitterly about his fate. He will have a hearing before Judge Aylesworth to-day. The wife, on the other hand, claims that heis a wretch, and that besides ruining her he is the father of a child born a few days ago to another woman and that still another is soon to become a mother by him.

A Joke That Ricked.

Two of the police force have had their turn in the sweat box. When they reported off duty early Tuesday morning they brought into headquarters a hat which one of them had picked up. They There were nearly one hundred carriages in the procession which followed the remains to their last resting place.

The ball in the temple hall last night under the auspices of the A. O. H. proved a happy finish to St. Patrick's day. The attendance was very large, and all seemed to enjoy themselves hugely.

Which one of them had picked up. They gave a glowing account of how they had chased a suspicious fellow, but he had escaped. They had got his hat, though. The sensational features of the case were dwelt upon quite glowingly, and the other listening members of the force were filled to the neck with the narration. The run had been a hard one. tion. The run had been a hard one. The fellow was fired at several times, and only escaped by dodging in among a lot of freight cars. They didn't know whether he was hit or not. The two narrators seemed to enjoy the sport of amazing their fellow officers with the account of their night's exploit, and they hung up the hat as a proof. A little later in the day the body of Irvin was found, who had been so mysteriously killed by the cars. The hat was identified as belonging to him. The two officers explained that they had simply found the hat, and that the story of a chase, with all its sensational features, was just to fill up the others, just for fun. The others have got even. It was quietly whispered to the two romancers that it was suspected that their story was true, that they had chased this man, frightened they had chased this man. frightened him, shot at him and then when he disappeared it was owing to his falling, pierced by a bullet, and that he lay there in the darkness until the cars went over him. The two who were so eager to "guy" the others are not so anxious now to spin yarns. The next time they find a hat they will not try to weave a sensation out of it. It's too risky. If you don't be-lieve it ask Officer Dyer or Tamasieu.

The Fire Record.

Chief Templeton is just preparing his annual report of the fire department. The facts in regard to fires are very creditable to Council Bluffs and ought to have a tendency to make insurance cheap here. During the year there have been but thirty-five alarms, including all the false alarms, the still calls, and all. The false alarms, the still calls, and all. The year before there were in all seventy-seven alarms. What is still more remarkable in the record is that the total loss by fires during the past year will not exceed $5,000, outside of the driving park fire, in which Stewart's stable of fine horses was burned. The loss in that particular case is difficult to determine, the horses being thoroughbreds and very valuable. The record is one which is remarkable. In the city proper only $5,000 loss by fire in an entire year. The efficiency of the fire department is doubtless one cause for the total amount of loss being so low. The superiority of the Council Bluffs water works is another. The smile of fortune is another. Council Bluffs may well be grateful. Bluffs may well be grateful.

After His Money.

A man, who shrinks from the notoricty of having his name published in connection with the item, relates a lively experience which he had on Broadway night before last. He was in McAdams' saloon, drinking a glass of beer with a friend, and foolishly exposed his money in making change. He thinks some one must have noticed that he had a little cash, although he thought little of it at the time. In going to East Broadway a little later, he was entirely off his guard, both hands in his pockets, his hat on the back of his head, and just as he passed a back of his head, and just as he passed a man he got a thamp on the back of "the head which would have floored him had his stiff hat not been in such a peculiar position as to break the blow. He at once realized that it was an attempt to rob him, and as he found himself right between two men, he proceeded to knock one of them down. Only stopping to give the prostrate fellow a kick, he turned for the other fellow, who by this time was on the run. The other one quickly got on his feet and followed down Broadway.

A Stranger Taken In. Yesterday morning a stranger en route for St. Paul was waiting at the transfer when he fell into conversation with a man, pretending to be a traveling salesman. The traveling man guided him SPECIAL NOTICES.

into the Northwestern train, and there worked him. After chatting tegether the traveling man suddenly remembered that he must pay an express bill before the train went. He pulled out a $50 bill and wanted the stranger to change it for him. The stranger had but $30 and this the traveling man borrowed to go out and pay the express charges with. He would be back in a minute. Before his return the train started out, taking the stranger to Missouri Valley. He returned on the freight yesterday afternoon, but the police could give him little consolation. The traveling man and the $30 were gone.

The Creole To-Night. Expection is high as to Miss Lillian Lewis, who to-night appears at the opera house as Cora, in "The Creole," made familar to many by Clara Morris under its original title of "Article 47." Miss Lewis has a reputation which will cause the house to be filled. The New York Times says she is becoming known as the handsomest dresser on the American stage, but she has more than dress. She is an emotional actress of more than common ability. To-morrow afternoon she appears in "Frou Frou," and to-mor-row night in "Leah, the Forsaken."

"Do people make mistakes in ringing you up?"

"It isn't that, but something happened once that I could never account for. And when I hear the bell I always feel nervous until I take the message."

"What was the experience you had?"

"Oh, that happened some time ago when the telephone was first in. You knew old Mr. ——, a nice old gentleman, and always good company. He used to like to drop in here and chat with me about my business, hours at a time. And he often said jokingly that he intended when his time came to patronize me."

"And did he?" "And did he?"
