This, however, has had no particutheir children and wards complying with the rules of the school. Mr. Dempster thought the bill had some really excellent features, and ought to pass. Mr. Andres held that the state ought to give children all the education it could. This education would diminish the number of reform schools and penitentiaries. This law would compel parents to give better rea-sons for sending their children early to work for the purpose of getting a few dollars and bringing them up in ignorance. Mr. Caldwell referred to the advantages of compulsory education in Germany. Mr. Randall said that public education was for the public good. If the state had a right to tax a man who had no children for the sake of education, the state had a right to see that the greatest good was derived from that taxation. third shock was felt, more intense than the preceding, which consummated the excite-ment. tendency to check trading, as operators have been waiting for a consummation of the the project, with a view of making it the leader for the upward movement in all lead-ing stocks. Chicago operators have trans-acted very little business in stocks during the week, as the fluctuations in prices were not sufficient to attract speculative attention, and no features were presented to induce even ordinary trad-ing. In a general way the market has ruled comparatively steady and changes in prices were confined within a narrow range, with very few exceptions. Outside operators ap-pear to be neglecting the stock market and the usual heavy operators in eastern financial pear to be neglecting the stock market and the usual heavy operators in eastern financial centers are not inclined to do much trading at present. The inter-state commerce law will go into effect April 5, and the effect of the new order of things on the leading rail-road lines will be watched with considerable interest. Sales on the New York stock ex-change for the week reached only 1,000,000 shares. The produce markets attracted very little attention during the week. A remark-ably steady feeling prevailed throughout, and fluctuations in prices were confined within a very limited range. Small operators as a general rule were not inclined to trade. Or-ders from outside parties, either to purchase or sell, were lighter than usual, and leading operators were disposed to throw their weight on either side of the market or create influences tending to change the quiet con-dition of affairs. The undertone to the mar-kets generally suggests considerable timidity inition cestending to change the quiet con-dition of affairs. The undertone to the mar-kets generally suggests considerable timidity among operators fearful that the market may be controlled by combinations quietly made, and prices suddenly advanced or declined. Besides the capital locked up in margins is sufficient to reduce the working facilities of many leading firms without seeking financial assistance from banks, and they do not feel warrauted in paying high rates of interest and taking risks under the present circum-stances. The shipping trade is improving, and no trouble is experienced in disposing of quiet liberal receipts of grain and produce. Merchants in the eastern markets are re-plentshing their stocks while the present rates of freights can be obtained. The re-ceipts of grain and provisions were moder-ately large and shipments quite liberal. For-eign markets have not developed any particular clements of strength and eastern markets have not shown much activity in a speculative way, though the exand eastern markets have not shown much activity in a speculative way, though the ex-port business has been well maintained. The arrivals of live stock were moderately free. Packing in the west is gradually gaining and is somewhat in excess of the returns of last year to date. The stocks of grain and pro-visions are being gradually reduced. The former are larger and the latter are smaller than last year at this time. Petroleum was inclined to quietness during the past week. Outside operators are not inclined to do much and fluctuations in prices were slight. No features were presented to attract trad-ing. Sales on the New York petroleum ex-change reached 5,485,000 barrels. The open-ing sales were made at 64c, sold at 63@644c and closed rather quiet at 63%c.

First Lieutenant James Brennan, Seventh Infantry, has been relieved as recruiting CLEVELAND AND CANTER. President Cleveland is much displeased wer Carter Harrison's protext for re-fusing to accept the nomination for mayor of Chicaro. He says he knows nothing about Harrison's affairs, and does not want to: that he is not opposed to Har-rison's election if he accepted the nomina-tion. Mr. Cleveland refuses to be quoted for publication, but he is of the opinion that Harrison is simply making an excuse for one that it means an allance with Governor Hit, whose western connection is to be Mayor Harrison, by refusing to be a can-be Mayor Harrison, by refusing to be a can-be Mayor tart is friends with him for Hill.

that human nature is capable of in their pas-sive resistance to such inhuman laws as those to which the British government would have them submit. The address says if nothing will satisfy the British government but the destruction of the Irish people, Ireland will be justified before God and man in selling her life at the heaviest price she can obtain, and in using every weapon the ingenuity of man can place within her reach. Consideration of the policy of the British zovernment by the American public is asked in order to help avert such a catastrophe. The address urges the reorganization of disbanded branches of the league and the establishment of new ones, and asks that the Irish people living on farms too widely separated from each other to form branches, send their names and sub-scriptions to Rev. Dr. O'Reilly, at Detroit, who will ackhowledge the same through the press. The address is signed by John Fitz-gerald, president of the league. sive resistance to such inhuman laws as those

The Missouri River Falling.

BISMARCK, Dak., March 26.-The river i falling rapidly to-day and workmen are able to repair the Northern Pacific bridge. No trains can run over the bridge before Monday, but transfer is being satisfactorily made by boats. A citizen of McLean county brings intelligence that the gorge seven miles below Washburn is six miles wide and the water

Washburn is six miles wide and the water covers the prairie for miles. If this is true then the worst has not come and the present fall in the river is simply a result of the upper gorge. The Sibley island gorge is firm. Snow has been falling for fifteen hours and this will greatly increase the vol-ume of water. YANKTON, Dak., March 26.—The Missouri river is still rising here and the water is backed into the James river four miles east and reports say it is nearly on a level with the bridge. The Milwaukee track at Bur-bank, about forty miles east on the Sioux City & Dakota branch, is washed out and trains are abandoned, the passengers being brought via Marion and Scotland. The water is thought to be at its highest now and no serious damage is apprehended, as the ice is all out.

Raising Rates on Coal.

PITTSBURG, March 26.-A disagreemen has arisen between the Pittsburg railroad coal operators and the railway people which threatens to shut out Pittsburg coal from the lakes. Last year the freight rate for coal from I'ittsburg to the lakes was 50 cents per from Pittsburg to the takes was 30 cents per ton. The railroads at first raised the tariff to $1 for this year. A committee reported this morning that the railroad people had finally offered to reduce the rate to 36 cents. The operators were unanimous in asserting that they would not accept such a rate, which would still be an advance of 15 cents over last year's prices. The committee was finally instructed to confer again at noon and ask that the 80-cent rate be continued. It is be-lieved, however, that operators will accept a lieved, however, that operators will accept a compromise of 90 cents.

The committee on the selection of bills reported a number of the same for general file and indefinate post-ponement. The report was adopted. Mr. Andres endeavored to have engressed for third reading house roll 323, providing for the payment to convicts discharged under the good conduct act 5 cents for each day confined, but without success. A number of bills were reported favorably by several committees. Just about this time it was noticed that there was a large number of absentees and about the same time the desire to loaf instead of working seemed to take possession of a number of those present. They indulged in a series of motions to adjourn, on both sides of which some of the sportive youths raised their voice. It was soon discovered that a secret attempt was being made to revive the libel bill, and the fillibustering was indulged to signalize the discomfiture which the anti-libellers were sustaining in the discovery of their game. At length the house was seduced to the committee of the whole, with Mr. Randall in the chair. The latter held that the enrollment, if not fatal, would certainly entail protracted and expensive litigation. Furthermore, the bill could not be withdrawn, and there was not enough time to pass another. He suggested the plan outlined in the BEE of inserting an item in the general appropriation bill, setting forth the general appropriation bill, setting forth the amount, $75,000, the object to erect the asylum in question, and the cause the erro-neous enrollment referred to. This was submitted to the governor, and received his approval. The sub-committee reported to the main commit-tee atter adjournment this evening; the ro-port was concurred in and the amount will probably be inserted in the miscellaneous ap-propriation bill, which will come up possibly on Monday and reach the house on Wednes-day. Maryland. Nothing further was heard from him, and there was considerable loubt as to his movements. His friend, John A. Eaton, who was a senator from Tennessee, learned that he would reach Rockville on the 20th, and, keeping his own counsel, he went to that village in a private conveyance, and there meeting the general, quietly escorted h.m to this city. Some pieces of ordnance were sta-tioned on the Heights of Georgetown to welcome the president-elect and to announce his arrival to the citizens. The streets were thronged with expect-ant citizens, but as the day wore on and he did not come there was great uncertainty. General John V. Van Ness, the chairman of the central committee mounted his horse and rode committee mounted his horse and rode toward Georgetown to learn, if possible, something definite. When on Pennsyl-vania avenue, near Georgetown, he met the carriage of General Eaton and saw General Jackson sitting by his side. The carriage had passed the men in charge of the guns without their knowing that it contained the president-elect, and so the salute was not fired. General Van Ness rode along by the carriage, and the en-tire party proceeded to the National hotel, where thousands of the citizens repaired and offered their congratulations. Genand offered their congratulations. eral Jackson was inaugurated on the 4th of March, on the eastern portico of the capitol, in the presence of 40,000 people The president-elect walked from his quar ters at the hotel to the capitol, where he took the oath of office and read his ininaugural address. He then mounted a horse and rode to the executive mansion, hat in hand, his head towering over the heads of the throng, and the air resound-ing with shouts and plaudits of the multi-tudes that lined the streets.
