H. R. Stewart, the crayon artist, has just returned from Des Moines. Among the latest bits of work done by him is a portrait of Mrs. Cleveland, a wonderful picture, which excites the admiration of all who visit Chapman's art store, where it is on exhibition for a few days. it is on exhibition for a few days.

Captain Overton has brought back from Texas a genuine centipede, a large one. He lives in a glass house and is not handsome. Many visitors to the captain's office yesterday looked at the many legged fellow, but none seem to care to handle him or take any undue familiarity with him.

C. S. Lawson on receiving his appoint-ment as postal clerk between here and Marion, got orders to report at once at the latter place. He presented the letter as a pass, but was informed that he must pay cash fare, full rates, or else walk. He concluded to do neither, but wait here until he could receive instructions.

The literary editor of the Nonpareil attends also to the distribution of the books given as premiums for the weekly. Yes-terday one subscriber insisted on being given a copy of "Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress." There were none on hand, but the distributor finally satisfied the complaining patron by inducing him to take Jules Verne's "Around the World in Lighty Days," telling him that "it is an equally good historical work." He gave his personal assurance that the subscriber would find it one of the greatest "histories" ever written. tories" ever written.

The Register is continually harping about the wonderful growth of Des Moines, It is a good city and a growing one, but the Register need not put on airs, and sucer at the idea of other Iowa cities growing. A count of the number of houses advertised to rent in the Register, as compared with the number of houses advertised to rent in Council Bluffs, is something of a criterion, and it shows that there are over seven times as many vacant houses in Des Moines than in Council Bluffs. There is not that difference in the size of the cities, By this straw it seems that Des Moines has a boom, Council Bluffs has a boomer.

Judge Thornell could see no way by Judge Thornell could see no way by which he could legally release from jail young Wilson, whom he sentenced to nine months for stealing an overcoat from L. C. Baldwin's residence. Wilson is said to be dying with consumption. The judge joined with the district attorney and county physican in a petition to Governor Larrabee to pardon the fellow. The petition was about to be forwarded when it was discovered that it was addressed to "Governor Laramie." The dressed to "Governor Laramie." Col. Keatley, who recently went to Sioux City to take editorial charge of the new democratic paper there, will return to Council Bluffs, the paper having gone to pieces at the end of the first week. The financial end seems to have been weak, as stated in yesterday's dispatches, and no amount of editorial ability could carry it along against such odds. Col, Keatley is said to feel greatly humiliated by having allowed himself to be drawn into such a windy scheme. It is understood that Col. Keatley will now renew his extens to secure an appropriate to secure and sec that Col. Keatley will now renew his exertions to secure an appointment as one of the United States district judges. There are over two dozen applicants for the woolsack on which he has his eyes set, so that there seems little chance for him to get anything but his eyes on it. His many friends here regret that the fates have dealt so rudely with him of late, but they will think none the less kindly of him because of the disastrous and speedy wreck of the new venture, with which his name is so unpleasantly connected.

THE SUNDAY BEE. TO BEER OR NOT TO BEER.

Shea Ordered by One Court to Act and by Another Not to Act.

WHICH ONE SHALL HE OBEY?

The New Shingles Appearing Al About Town-Another Scheme to Help the Hospital--The Houses of Worship.

The Saloon Injunctions. The saloon injunction cases, as predicted in yesterday's BEE, had a field day of it yesterday. Clerk Shea, of the district court, found himself placed in a queer predicament. Judge Thornell, who was here yesterday, and who had already ordered the temporary writs of injunction issued by the clerk, made a peremptory order that the clerk proceed to issue the writs. He said he did not blame the clerk for being in doubt as to whether the filing of supersedeas bonds had not served as a stay to issuing the writs. It was a question which had puzzled him somewhat. The clerk was naturally puzzled over the question also, and was not to be found fault with for waiting for further light as to what his duty was. Judge Thornell was prepared to shed that light, and he cast a bright gleam over the path of the clerical duties by ordering him to issue the writs. Clerk Shea called his honor's attention to the fact that Judge Aylesworth, of the superior court, had issued injunctions re-superior court, had issued injunctions re-straining him from issuing the writs, and the sheriff from serving them. These in-junctions were issued by Judge Ayles-worth on the strength of an affidavit that no district judge was within easy reach.

Judge Thornell insisted that the clerk should go ahead without paying attention to the injunction from the superior court. This placed Shea in a tight place. If he obeyed Judge Thornell's order, Judge Aylesworth would be liable to fine him for contempt. If he disobeyed Thornell then he would be liable to give the plant of the superior of t nell, then he would be liable to suspen nell, then he would be liable to suspension from office, or a fine, or both. Attorney Sims, who has been prosecuting the cases, insisted that the writs should be issued forthwith.

This gave Clerk Shea little time to deliberate. Sims had the writs all prepared, ready for the clerk's signature. The clerk made the point that he had no time to compare these prepared writs to time to compare these prepared writs to see whether they contained more or less than what was set forth in the petitions and whether the records were correct. He could see no need of such special haste, It was unusual. He did not propose to decline to issue the writs nor to disobey the order of the court, but he did not intend to allow himself to be crowded by unseemly haste into an act of this sort. He intended to take time to compare the writs with the record before is-sung them.

Judge Thornell did not see why the writs could not be issued at once, neither could Attorney Sims. The judge simply reiterated his order for the clerk to issue the writs, and then told the sheriff to adjourn court until Tuerday morning. The understanding is that it will be bet-the understanding is that it will be better for the clerk to issue the writs before the court meets again Tuesday, and it is understood that he will do so, unless some new stop is made.

It was reported yesterday that before the writs issue the clerk will be served with an injunction from the federal court, but there is not much credence placed in this report.

placed in this report.

A more plausible report is that the writs will issue and be served. The saloon men will disregard the writs, and violate the requirements to close. Then one or more of them will naturally find themselves before Judge Thornell for disregarding the injunction. Judge Thornell will fine and imprison them for contempt. Their attorney will apply to the federal courts for a writ of nabeas pus, and thus drag the questions into another tribunal.

It is evident that the attorneys who have fought so ably and so persistently for the defendants will not yield until the very last chance is gone. It is believed that they will keep raising issues, and making new moves, as long as possi-ble. The contest is a hard one, but the prohibitionists seem to be confident as to the final outcome, and many who are not of their party join in the belief that the open saloon in Council Bluffs will, ere many months, be closed.

A PARLOR MUSICAL.

For the Benefit of the Cottage Hospital. On Thursday evening next, March 31 the parlors of Mrs. John N. Baldwin will be generously thrown open to the public for a concert to be given in aid of the hos-

On this occasion the citizens of this city are to have the rare treat of listening to a young violinist, of whom the Worcester, Mass., Gazette says: "Miss Botsford has Mass., Gazette says: "Miss Botsford has

The New York Tribune says: "Miss Botsford is a young woman who deserves a word of praise for her bowing, which is astonishingly bold, free and vigorous for one so young."

She will be ably assisted by many of our city's best musicians and elocutionists.

A hospital is something that has long been needed in Council Bluffs, and the one now started should receive warm supnow started should receive warm support, as its board of mapagers comes from all christian denominations, and physici-ans of any school, and either sex, may practice within its walls. The patients may send for any doctor they wish. Many of our physicians have generously offered to treat the hospital inmates free, unless they are able to pay. The hospital receives patients on the same terms. To those who are poor and deserving all is given, but those who can pay for bed, board and nursing, pay only in part.

The ladies have leased and fitted up a nice little cottage in the south part of

This is a charity that should appeal to all, old and young, rich and poor, for in the revolution of the wheel of fortune all are liable to lose money, friends, or be ill and have nowhere to lay their weary heads. Many seem to know little about this hospital and its workings. All should inform themselves and take an active, practical interest in it. A large number of the citizens contribute funds each month to its support, and many each month to its support, and many merchants and all the newspapers gen-erally aid it in their different lines. A Lecturer's Experience. Josh Billings, when he started on his first lecturing tour, began with a small town in New Jersey. He had books and bundles of scraps of his writings, and intended to read selections from them. His expectations were great, but there were only six persons in the aupience. He says: "When I got back to the hotel I called the landlord into my room and had him bring me all the old newpapers he could find and a ball of cord. I took out my book, wrapped a dozen or so of news-papers around it and then began winding the cord. I wound the entire ball about the bundle and tied the ends in a double the bundle and tied the ends in a double knot. The landlord had watched the preceedings intently, and when I had finished my wrapping he inquired what the proceedings meant. I told him I was going back to New York to go to work, and I did not propose to untie that book until I could do so in his town and before an audience that would fill the house. I went back to the city," continued Mr. Shaw, "and struck out on a new lead. Two years after I received an inlead. Two years after I received an invitation to lecture in this same town. I had been waiting for this. I took out my old book and took it along to see how things looked. When I came on the platform I found an audience so tightly packed that the last man had to leave his cane in the vestibule for lack of room. I took out my book and unwrapped it be-fore them, telling the story as I did so. It was this shutting up of the past and beginning again that saved me—or at least made me what I am."

Phillips Brooks Swore.

Philladelphia Press: When I was in East Gloucester, Mass., last summer I heard a remarkable story concerning Dr. Brooks, for which Oliver Wendell Holmes was said to be responsible. The genial autocrat was fishing one day in the yacht of a well-known character of East Gloucester, named Captain Cook, who follows the sea for a livelihood. In conversation Captain Cook informed Dr. Holmes that the last fisherman who had hired his boat was Dr. Brooks. "He was very pleasant company," Captain Cook was kind enough to say, "but he swore a good deal for a clergyman. "He did what?" inquired Dr. Holmes aghast. "He swore," stoutly reiterated Captain Cook. "Oh, nonzense, I don't believe it," said the doctor. "Well, what do you call this?,' inquired the old fisherman. "He got a haddock on his hook and he had a great deal of trouble to get it near the boat. At last he landed him, and I said, said I, 'Well, for a haddock that fish pulled d—d hard.' 'Yes, he did 'said Dr. Brooks. Now, what's that but swearing?" Phillips Brooks Swore.
