Krale is Captured. The many friends of C. S. Clark, for-he has become a benedict. The wedding occurred at Philadelphia, Thursday, March

24. The bride was Miss Lucy Bowman,

and the cards announce that the happy couple will be at home in Hastings, Neb. after April 1. Clark, who has gained quite a reputation as "Krale, the News-paper Fieud," is not so fiendish as his favorite appeliation would indicate. He is a great hearted fellow, with plenty of brains, and has always been a favorite pere, outside as well as inside newspaper reircles. He is to be congratulated hear-tily on having established a home, in which he and his will doubtless be happy. The many friends here wish them the best and biggest slices which Dame For-tune can give them from the loaf of good tune can give them from the loaf of good luck.

The Johnstown, Pa., Tribune gives the following details of the event:

On Thursday morning, March 24, 1887, at the residence of the bride's parents in St. Alban's Place, Philadelphia, by Rev. George E. Rees, pastor of the tabernacle Baptist church, of the same city, Mr. Charles Sumner Clark, city editor of the Daily Gazette-Journal, of Hastings, Neb., to Miss Lucy J. Bowman, eldest daughter of Colonel John M. Bowman. The wedding ceremony was witnessed by a number of invited friends, and the bride was the recipient of many appropriate presents.

Colonel Bowman and his family are well known to most of the readers of the Tribune, and many of its old readers will remember the family of his son-in-law, Mr. Clark. He is the son of James S. Clark. who was a merchant at Ebensburg as early as 1850, and was county commissioner of Cambria county about 1854. Subsequently he was ticket agent for the Pennsylvania railroad company at Cresson, where he died about the beginning of the war. His widow resided for many years afterward at Ebensburg, with her two children, a son and daughter. The son is now the only surviving member of the family. He has resided for many years in the west, first in Iowa and afterward in Nebraska. When he went to lowa it was at the suzgestion of his term of office, His nephew has worked his way into a position of responsibility, and now does well to seek and find a wife in his native state.

It has been two years since a gathering of railroad notables has taken place in this city equal to that of yesterday, the occasion being a meeting of the superin-tendents of the different railroads centering in this city. The meeting was held in parlor No. 2, in the Union Pacific hotel, and was presided over by H. F. Royce, of Chicago, A. J. Earling, of Milwaukee, acting as secretary.

The matters discussed all pertained to the freight transfer in this city, the prin-cipal one being for a change from the present method of dividing the expenses thereof, there being considerable opposi-tion to the present way, but the matter was not settled, as the meeting adjourned in the hope of convening within the next month. There was considerable discussion in regard to the present way of handling foreign freight cars that were delivered by the eastern roads to the Union Pacific, those that are then sent west. It was finally agreed that William H. Burns, the manager at the trans-fer, should continue his present plans of disposing of the cars on their return from the west, until he received different or-

Among the regulars who arrived here yesterday a trio were determined to see the city. As they had to wait here half a day they slipped off up town and got jolly full. One was raising so much noise that the police nabbed him. His two companions insisted on being locked up if he was, so the three were put be-hind the bars. By night they were sober enough to continue their journey.

The annual house cleaning has its advantages as well as discomforts. It makes some agreeable changes, but discloses unpleasant surprises. A family residing on an avenue within half a block of Main street, in removing the bedding recently found a nest of mice. It appears that the nest had been made during the cold weather, and that the mice had played around the house in the day time, while at night they retired with the heads of the family, or rather the feet of the family, in their warm couch. One poor little fellow was found to have been too snugly nestled, and the life had been squeezed out. When the house cleaner is away the mice will play.

The Council Bluffs folks feel exceed-

The Council Bluffs folks feel exceedingly happy. While other cities have been troubled with floods, and while the nervous souls kept predicting that there would be water on the lands near the river, there is none seen as yet even in the lowest spots. The river is reported as falling, but even if it should go three feet higher than at any time yet, still there would be no trouble with it here. The new levce, the new systems of drain-age, seem to be giving perfect protec-tion, and this year's test is worth thousands of dollars in simply establishing more firmly the confidence that Council Bluffs is not in condition to be damaged by high water even with the treacherous

Mike Stenwick yesterday lodged a complaint against Harry Leland for thumping him. The other side of the story, as corroborated by some of the eyewitnesses to the affair, shows that Mike was the one at fault. He used to work for Harry Leland, and it is said that he borrowed a $12 watch, which he afterwards pawned. In settling with him, Leland kept out $5 until such time as the watch should be returned. Mike was determined to have the $5 or else pound Harry. He waited for bim at the Ogden livery, but when he hopped on he had to hop off again. Then he sought the courts. Harry is not pugilistic, and hence the statement that he acted in self defense is quite readily accepted.

A Batch of Saloon Injunctions at Last in The Sheriff's Hands.

A MEETING OF RAILROADERS.

C. S. Clark Captured By Cupid-Safe Blowers Seek Silver In Silver City -The Amusements-Dirt Still Changing Hands.

The Writs Issue.

Judge Thornell's appearance here yesterday was watched for with much interest, and his session of court, though brief, was an important and rather sensational one. The chief interest centered in the saloon cases. The first move was the statement made by Clerk Shea, through his attorney, Mr. Pusey. Mr. Shea explained the peculiar position in which he was placed. Judge Thornell had ordered the temporary writs of injuncition issued. Then the defendants filed supersedess bonds. The clerk thought these bonds might stay the writs, and following these came a peremptory order from Judge Thornell to issue the writs. Before he could do so Judge Aylesworth, of the superior court, issued injunctions restraining him from issuing them. In the historical statement the clerk called attention to the double fire between which he was placed. If he issued the injunctions Judge Aylesworth might punish him. If not, Judge Thor-nell might suspend him. He asked Judge Thornell to extend the time for issuing the writs until the Aylesworth injunctions could be dissolved or the difficulties otherwise removed. Attorney Sims, in behalf of the prohibitionists, asked that Judge Thornell should dissolve the in-junctions issued by Judge Aylesworlh, so that the clerk could proceed without danger.
Attorney Haldene, on the other side wanted Sims to make a showing as to his authority to ask to have the Aylesworth injunctions dissolved, the law being that the defendants only could make such a request, and it not appearing that Sims was acting in the interests or at the request of either of the defendants, the clerk or the sheriff.

There were also motions for continuances of the hearing of the motion to dissolve the Aylesworth injunctions.

From out of this tangle it seemed that a delay must result in the 1ssuing of the writs against the saloons. Judge Thornell called up the matters at 2 o'clock, and then Mr. Haldene was busy in the United States court. After waiting a lit. United States court. After waiting a lit-tle while, and sending for the absent at-torney, Judge Thornell concluded to take a recess until 3 o'clock, informing the parties concerned that the questions must be submitted that afternoon. A few min-utes later Mr. Haldene appeared. He in-formed the judge that a case in which he was concerned had just been called in the federal court, and that his presence there was necessary. He could not wait to attend to the matters in Judge Thornell's court. If the judge insisted on his being n two places at once, he would have to leave the matter as it was, and asked the judge to note his exceptions to the rulings.

The matters were then speedily dis-posed of. Judge Thornell expressed himposed of. Judge Thornell expressed himself as not censuring the clerk, nor being in any disagreement with him. As to the injunctions of Judge Aylesworth he promptly dissolved them, sustaining Mr. Sims' motion to that effect. He said it mattered not whether Mr. Sims was representing the clerk and sheriff in this matter, or not. They were not the parties interested in having the writs issued, and the law enforced. Mr. Sims therefore represented really the party interested in having the injunctions dissolved. It mattered not anyway, for he believed that a court had the inherent power to see that its own orders were carried out. As to the question whether supersedess bonds the question whether supersedeas bonds prevented the issuing of the writs, that had been presented to him on the 4th of February, and there had been plenty of time allowed to consider that. He did not believe the supersedeas bonds had that effect. As an instance he cited the St. Louis riot, where writs of injunction were issued retaining certain persons from their unlawful acts. If they could have filed supersedens bonds, and then kept on with their riot, it would have been nonsense. He therefore ordered the clerk to issue the writs. The writs could harm no one. They simply forbade persons from violating the law. If they were not violating the law, it would not inter-fere with their business.

fere with their business.

The dissolution of the Aylesworth injunctions made the request of the clerk unnecessary, as by their dissolution there was nothing restraining him from obeying the order of the court.

No sooner was the decision rendered than Clerk Shea jumped out of his chair, went to the desk and got the bundle of writs which had been prepared. He commenced signing them and affixing his seal, and within ten minutes the writs menced signing them and affixing his seal, and within ten minutes the writs were in the hands of the sheriff. They were against the following persons: D. J. McAdams, Mike Nolan, Holst & Spetman, Wm. A. Evans, A. Dorflinger, Max Mohn, Otto Lund, Metcalf & Beardsley, Charles Eisele, Frank Lauer, Fritz Meyer, John Mergen, Jacob Neumeyer, M. G. O'Connor, Rapp & Allen, Theo. Lund, H. Heitman, Oliver Lower, Peter Bechtele, Forrest Kinney, John D. Nicholson, A. L. Kahle.

The sheriff could give no positive information as to when he would serve the writs. He would serve them as soon as writs. He would serve them as soon as possible. He had first to make copies of the writs, which would take a little time, but probably the papers would be all served within twenty-four hours.

The number of saloons thus enjoined is twenty-two. The natural query arises as to what they are going to do about it. Will they close? Inquiry of several named in the writs, gave little definite information. They all seemed to be waiting for instruction from their advisers. Some suggest that the saloons will not close, but will keep on selling cigars, pop, lemonade and other articles not prohibited by law. Others intimate that there will be further appeal to the courts.

The favorite conjecture is that the next round will be fought in the federal courts. An attempt was made some time ago to get these cases transferred to the federal courts on the plea that a federal question was raised. Judge indirect refused to send the cases there, but this does not prevent them getting into the federal court. Yesterday the transcripts in a number of these cases were filed in the United States court, and before noon to-day they will probably all be filed there. If that court holds that some federal questions are raised in these cases there. If that court holds that some federal questions are raised in these cases, then there will be a sharp round there, and it is predicted that the writs of injunction will be of no avail for the present at least. If the federal court remands these cases to the district court of the state, then the defendants will have to look elsewhere for relief.

It has been hinted that if any of those

It has been hinted that if any of those against whom writs have been issued are fined, and imprisoned, for violating the writs, then an attempt will made be to secure their release by a writ of habeas corpus in the federal court, and the questions now raised will thus be got before the federal court.

tions now raised will thus be got before the federal court.

In view of all these rumors and pros-pects, it is not generally thought that all of the saloons enjoined will close their doors as promptly as the writs indicate.
