MINOR MENTION	Who Can Must Pay,

Dr Cross Free Again.

The report quickly spread yesterday morning that Dr. Cross had arrived in the city, having been released on bail.

It was the theme of talk for many. The fearful tragedy of the night of September

24, 1883, by which Dr. A. B. McKune was shot down in the street by Dr. Cross, can never be forgotton, and even the details of the affair are still fresh in the minds of many. Dr. Cross has undergone a trying ordeal already, and the end is not yet. He has been through a long, closely conviction of murder, and he was sen-tenced to be hung. Taken to Fort Madi-son, he was there locked in the dead cell,

The wheelmen, who delight in their bicycles, should be more careful about frightening horses on the streets. Some complaints are heard, and ladies who are driving are especially entitled to protection from any possible accident. Some horses are quite shy about these fast flying wheels.

J. M. Phillips rises to correct the an-nual report of the city clerk as to there being but one dog taxed in the city last year. He shows up two receipts for two of his dogs on which the license had been paid in August. The clerk finds that he construct these in which the which may counted these in with the building permits, instead of the dog tax.

The city council met yesterday as a board of equalization, and will, in accordance with law, meet from day to day until the equalization is made. The assessor's books are not quite ready, there having been so many changes in real es-tate of late as to make the work double that of previous years.

The evening papers seem to differ as to the date of the murder of Dr. A. B. Me-Kune by Dr. E. D. Cross. The Herald says, "In the spring of 1883," while the World states it as "October 26, 1883." The Globe doesn't know anything about it, and consequently doesn't say any-thing. The correct date is given in another column, September 24, 1883.

The Union Pacific is laying the new dummy track. It extends from near the dummy track. It extends from near the ice houses to Eighth avenue, where it in-tersects with the old track. The track on which the dummy train now runs, along by the transfer, is to be used for passenger coaches, and supplied with pipes for washing the coaches. These coaches are to be kept on this side of the river, and to be cleaned here, the trains made up here, etc., instead of this work being done in Omaha as previously.

light is thrown upon it. City Council Meeting. The city council met last evening, with all the aldermon present. A large amount of routine business was transacted. The Nonpariel lost its grip and the dear old grandmother will be surprised this morning when she awakes and reads in her scrap-book that the Globe hereafter is to be the official organ of the city, as per resolution offered by Lacy. She will probably wipe the tears away and console herself with the news that one of her children has just received an appointment from the governor. The Tenth avenue ordinance was not taken up as the "big three," which is composed of Keller, Danforth and Hammer, voted down a suspension of the rules. The bond of Chief Templeton of the fire department was approved. The committee reported favorably on the petition of W. H. Maurer for reduc-tion of taxes. Concurred in by the council and referred to county supervisors. A resolution by Lacy selecting the Globe as the official paper was adopted

The home of Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Hesse, No. 503 Oakland avenue, has had a deep shadow come upon it, by the death of their baby, Elmer, a son but ten months of age. The little one had just recovered from the measles, but was troubled with some chest difficulties. Death came very suddenly Monday night, paralysis of the heart being the cause. The funeral serv-ices will be heid at the residence of E. W. Burnham, at the head of Oakland enue, at 2 o'clock this afternoon, Rev. G. W. Croft officiating.

The decision has been fully reached by Major Dale to have the headquarters of the Salvation Army removed to this city. The project of having a building put up here is well under way. The plan is for a building to cost $10,000. The army will soon have a brass band, and other need-fuls for so enthusiastic a religion. The meetings here are still very largely at-tended, and the results have been quite satisfactory to the leaders. The public also is well satisfied, the army having had in some respects at least a helpful tendency.

Money For Insane Cases.

The county board of supervisors has discovered that the county has been paying all the expenses of the patients sent to the insane hospital, and that some of these patients have means of their own, or relatives amply able to pay the bills. Action has been taken to enforce the payment of amounts due from such patients. For years there has been little attention paid to this matter, and no patients have paid the county. Now all who can will be called on to pay.
