Mr. Burr's petition, which was taken on session Wednesday took up the petition of friends of R. C. Burr, the Lincoln attorney, who asked his reinstatement for practice in the courts of the state. The court unanimously acceded to the petition and issued an order remitting one year from the judgment, which will reinstate Mr. Burr May 26. This is the first act in connection with the case and Mr. Burr was yesterday receiving congratulations from friends over the fact that he is again a full-fledged attorney.

State Superintendent Lane has issued a circular to county superintendents in response to the State teachers' association that requested the state superintendents to prepare a general manual covering the work of county superintendents during the coming summer. The state superintendent was also requested to reissue and revise the course of study for country schools. Mr. Lane's reply to the circular asks the different county superintendents to aid him at once by sending plans of work and other information that he can use in the work of both the manual and the pamphlet.

ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION of the Knights of Labor Co-operative association of Beatrice, Neb., were filed with the secretary of state yesterday. The object of the corporation is the manufacture of building material, furniture, etc., and the capital stock of the company is $25,000, divided into shares of $100 each. The company is to commence business at once, and its directors and incorporators are Henry Bromley, J. S. Rutterford, John McIntyre, E. Sanford, F. M. Woodcock, J. E. Hudson, N. D. Hubbard, G. W. Gow and W. A. Wagner.

THE CORONER'S JURY took the evidence in the case of the man found dead in his wagon near Bohannon's stable, in this city, returned a verdict that deceased came to his death from unknown cause, although the evidence all tended to show that it was either suicide or an overdose of laudanum taken when the man was drunk. The dead man was named G. F. Lewis. Papers on his person showed that he came from Colorado, and he had letters showing that he had formerly lived in Ray county, Canada. He had been in Lincoln some ten days, drinking most of the time, and only some $9 were found on his person.

ABOUT THE CITY. In the district court yesterday the trial of Herdman against the Stock Yards company was occupying the attention of court. This is one of the most important cases of the term, involving the use of a water power on Oak creek and covering several injunction suits. Messrs. Courtney and Woodward appeared for the Herdman and Hall and Kelley for the stock yards.

Messrs. Franklin and Hedgeson yesterday closed the sale of the thirty-acre Allen tract, lying near the city, the purchasing party being Colonel A. J. Roe, of Piqua, O., and the consideration $16,000. The sale is an index of the influx of eastern capital to Lincoln.

A cricket club has been organized for Lincoln, some twenty enthusiasts in the game holding a meeting at the Hurbit house parlors and selecting Rev. Alex. Allen temporary president, W. H. Hargreaves temporary secretary and A. Bird captain. The club will hold a meeting on next Monday evening for permanent organization.

Lincoln. Committees from the different lodges have the business in charge. The Hon. A. S. Weaver, who in connection with Judge Thomas and P. E. Beardsley, enters the law business in Lincoln, is in the city. The manager of the base ball club is in St. Louis hunting players for the Lincoln club. It does not make an assuring outlook.

Let us be thankful that any poor sufferer can buy with 25 cents a bottle of Salvation Oil. Vennor's predictions, though in the main pretty accurate, are not infallible. Bull's eye, however, was never known to fail to cure a cough.

THE STORY OF AN INVENTION Revived by the Death of a Ruined Speculator Late. New York Times: John Rider, once a wealthy speculator in this city, died lately in the seventy-third year of his age, at the Old Gentlemen's Unsectarian home, on King's Bridge road. He died a poor man who for several years had lived upon the charity of friends, although his two sons and his wife are living with sufficient means at Norwalk, Conn. Rider came of a well-known and well-to-do New England family. His father had a contract for carrying the mails between Boston and New York before the days of the railroad. Rider was a fine looking young man, and was in the New England mercantile, termed "smart." He was born in Worcester, and began to make money early in life as captain of his own ship plying between China and Boston. Then he engaged in the rubber business, and contested with Goodyear & Co. the right both claimed as inventors of the process of vulcanizing india rubber. He also accepted several government contracts in carrying out which he made much money. He added to his fortune by speculation, which, however, caused his ruin in the end. When penniless his relatives deserted him, and the number of years he was taken care of by Mrs. Berry, of 113 West Fortieth street, and Horace Leland also aided him. Circumstances, however, led to his recently being admitted to the home. In his prosperous days he owned the present Grand hotel property and some real estate on Thirty-first street. In politics he was a staunch republican. Mr. Rider's death was due to acute rheumatism and was sudden. The way in which the process of vulcanizing rubber came to be discovered by the Goodyears was told to a Times reporter some years ago by John Dixon, one of Goodyear's employes. The man had a habit of chewing rubber much as the modern school girl chews gum. One day, while Dixon and an Irishman were carrying some rubber on an iron handcar to the oven, the Irishman was taken with a fit of coughing and he passed a barrel of sulphur, and involuntarily spat out his rubber cud. It fell into the barrel. Scolding down the barrow, he made a grab for it and recovered it. The sulphur, however, adhered to its moist surface, and he threw it down with an expression of disgust. It fell upon the barrow, and was put into the oven with it. When the barrow was taken from the oven Dixon saw that the little piece of rubber had assumed a new appearance. He examined it carefully, and became convinced that he held in his hand the key to the discovery.

Mr. Goodyear had been searching for it. He took the little thing to Mr. Goodyear, who, when he saw it became much excited. Dixon told him the circumstances under which the change had been effected, and Mr. Goodyear at his side and Dixon at work experimenting. It was several months before they succeeded, but they finally learned the secret of making vulcanized rubber.

An Imperative Necessity. What pure air is to an unhealthy locality, what spring cleaning is to the household, so is Hood's Sarsaparilla to everybody at this season. The body needs to be thoroughly renovated, the blood purified and vitalized, the germs of disease destroyed. Scrofula, Salt Rheum and all other blood taints are cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, the most popular and successful spring medicine.

A Little Girl's Appeal. Washington Letter in the Cincinnati Enquirer: A little girl eight years old, residing at Gordon, Dakota, has written the following letter to Secretary Lamar. It was printed on a small piece of paper with a lead pencil, in a style peculiar only to children when they are writing their first letters. Every letter is a capital, and reads:

"Mr. Lemars: Won't you please decide the case that is in your office now. Ma has to work out, and minnie is sick, and I have to do the work. I am only eight years old. We hain't no money, and Lige Moon is trying to get our money."

"Ma wants to get some money so we can get some close and get a horse. It is awful cold here at Mitchell, Dakota, and we have to burn fire, and can't hardly keep warm."

"Gordon, Dakota. ADA FRENCH." The letter was referred to Commissioner Sparks, and went through the routine of the land office, and an official letter was written to the girl informing her that the commissioner had decided the claim in favor of her mother, but an appeal had been made to the secretary of the interior where it is now pending. The little girl wrote another letter, similar to her previous one, begging the commissioner "to get Mr. Lemars to decide ma's case, Lige Moon," she says, "told me that if you decide in ma's favor he would not give her any more trouble, but Lige Moon lies."

This letter was also answered and the correspondence sent to the secretary to hurry his action.

damage. No lack of good faith no violation of agreement, no promise that the dinner should be of a particular quality, no habit of providing dinners which the plaintiff knew to be had is charged; not even an excess of price beyond what the dinner was worth, but the charge was in effect simply that the plaintiff, being a caterer, on a single occasion provided a very poor dinner, vile cigars and bad wine. Such a charge is not actionable without proof of special damage.

ADDITIONAL COUNCIL BLUFFS. Partners Disagree. D. Gray, who has been in the harness business at No. 15 South Main street, was somewhat surprised last evening on returning from supper to see the stock of goods loaded on wagons about to be moved. He stopped the teamsters and learned that this was the work of E. Albertson, who some months ago became associated with him in the business. The two had had a disagreement, and Mr. Gray says that for some time he has been insisting on a dissolution and settlement. The two had a woful confab several days ago. Mr. Gray says that he has been trying to get the matter settled by arbitration, offering to leave it to three business men to decide as to each one's interest in the business. It seems that while Gray was at supper Albertson sought to steal a march on him, and to have the goods removed. In this he was stopped by Gray, who had the goods unpacked and placed back in the shop. A new lock was then put on the door, so as to prevent Albertson from using his key again.

A Tender Skin is greatly injured by cheap adulterated toilet soaps. Use Colgate's Cashmere Bouquet: the purest and best.

Short Paul Honeycomb. On the 8th of February Justice Barnett tied the happy knot which made Alvy Chambers and Calaline Hudson husband and wife. Yesterday the bride returned to the justice's office and poured forth her tale of woes. She claimed that the man whom she had married had abused her terribly, and that he followed her along the streets calling her all sorts of names, that he had pulled a revolver upon her, and otherwise conducted himself so that she could stand it no longer. She wanted to have him arrested on some charge so that he might be locked up. She was sent to the district attorney for that official to decide whether there should be a warrant issued.
