the particulars."

"Well, it was ten years ago that I took my first lessons in this art and demonstrated that I could discover names and numbers that persons centered their thoughts upon and other things of more or less interest.

"Did you continue the experiments?"
"Only as they relate to my business, and in this I find great advantage."

"Do you consider your rapid growth of business due to this faculty?" "Yes sir! to a considerable extent. It assists me to buy goods at the very lowest prices and enables me to show a customer what he wants without delay. You know "time is money" and Omaha people don't want to spend an hour or two buying a suit of clothes, so by being able to show them what they are looking for the first thing they are pleased and our sales increase in magnitude." "Do you get any sport out of your mind

"Well, yes; occasionally I do, when a prominent judge comes in ostensibly to make a purchase, but really to show his railroad passes and to borrow our last year's dress suit to wear to the opera, we smile at his long head, and when a prospective bridegroom calls to select his wedding outfit and is so afraid we will discover his secret that he acts as if he had a nest of hornets in his inside pocket, there is considerable fun in know-

Owing to the fact that all the details, for the new dummy service, have not been completed the Union Pacific management has decided to run trains the same as in the past until the first of May. The train will then run from Council Bluffs to South Omaha on very nearly the same time as they now run between Omaha and Council Bluffs. There will be two trains and four crews.

Mendelssohn &Lawrie Vs the County

Commissioners.

OMAHA, April 23.—To the Editor Omaha Ber: Will you kindly permit us to say a few words in reply to the remarks of County Commissioners Mount and O'Keefe, published in your paper of last Monday evening, in relation to the county hospital plans.

Mr. Mouat, there, takes occasion to admit his agreement to stand by us, "all things being equal," but he signally fails to say wherein things were not equal.

Mr. O'Keefe, there, states that he had been in favor of Mr. Myers' plans the last time as well as the first, because he considered them the best. In making this statement, the gentleman stuttines himself and shows his lamentable ignorance of the subject in hand. The former plans presented by Mr. Myers were unlike his latter plans, as finally adopted, and they were condemned by a committee of physicians as being unsuitable for hospital purposes. And yet, Mr. O'Keefe considered them the best in the first place, why did he change his general designs to conform, as near as could be, to the Cochrane and Mendelssohn idea? And if Mr. O'Keefe considered Myers' first plans the best, why did he hold the same opinion after they had been radically and totally changed? These gentlemen take occasion to say that our pavillion plan was inferior to Myers' and was nothing but a fire-trap. It inferior to Myers' plan, why did Myers, in the second competition, adopt our general design? If the commissioners had availed themselves of the opportunity and examined our plans and specifications, (still in their hands), they would have found that examined our plans and specifications, (still in their hands), they would have found that the floors are to be constructed with iron beams and terra cotta arches covered with cement floors; that all exterior and main interior walls were to be of brick, and continuous from bottom to two and the union partious from bottom to top, and the minor parti-tion walls of hollow terra cotta tile. The roof was to be of wrought and east iron cov-ered with slate. Nowhere was wood to be used, save for doors, window-sashes and floors in the administration building, and there it was optional as between wood and used, save for doors, window-sashes and floors in the administration building, and there it was optional as between wood and cement.

Our plans called for a fire-proof building in every particular. These gentlemen say that upon their return from the cast, they were satisfied that none of the slans should be accepted. In what manner were they so satisfied? They started with the plans, with the names erased, for the avowed purpose of going east to New York and other points, and submitting them to experts and obtaining their opinion upon them. The fact is they went to Chicago and Detroit. When they reached Chicago, the plass were locked up in the hotel saie until the commissioners were ready to leave the city, and in Detroit the same thing—was again done. If these plans were submitted to experts, will the commissioners please give the names and addresses of the experts?

Messrs. Mount and O'keefe say that inasmuch as our plans were entitled to only second place in the inst competition and we had not materially changed them, it follows as a matter of course, they-were still entitled to second place in the second competition. In the lirst competition, our plans were awarded a place second to Cochrane's, not Meyers' and if, as the commissioners say. Meyers had greatly improved his plans, and this improvement had been brought about by conforming to the general design of Cochrane and Mendelssoin, why can Mr. O'Keefe say that the Aleyers plan was best on the first competition? In the first competition Cochrane's plans were preterred to ours because more extensive and more expensive.

The pavillion plan is everywhere regarded as one of the greatest protections against fire. Having adopted the pavillion style, and having more make our building fire-proof within the estimated cost.

These gentlemen further say that our hollow the partitions invite dirt and filth. Will the gentlemen explain in what way terracottatile, which is of superior clay and harder than brick, and closely sealed and palastered on both sides, can possi they ascertained their inistake, our scheme of heating and ventilating took a tumble in their estimation.

Will Mr. O'Keefe please explain how he satisfied himself that Myers' first plan was the best, when he was ignorant, personally, of the matter in hand, and when such physicians as Mercer, Summers, Lee, Graddy, Avers and others had considered them?

Messrs. Mount and O'Keefe give the cost, per patient, under our plans at $908.08, and under Myers' plans at $574.30.

Let us see. Myers provides for 195 patients at a cost of $112,000. Divide $112,000 by 195, and you find the cost as stated by the commissioners. We provided for 200 patients at a cost not to exceed $150,000. Divide $150,000 by 200, and the greatest possible cost per patient under our plans would be only $750 per patient, and not $199.03, as stated by the commissioners, and the actual cost might have been much less. Why do they find it necessary to mis state the facts? If the hundred reasons they profess to have for their action are no better founded than their figures, they certainly would carry little weight with the tax-payers.

The public now understand that Myers has given a bond in $20,000 to complete this hospital, and to make it a tire-proof building with no wood but doors, complete in all its details, ready to be occupied by 195 patients, at a cost of $112,000.

MENDELSSORE & LAWRIE.

Bishop's Marvelous Mad Reading. A number of ladies and gentlemen attended the reception of Washington Irving Bishop, the famous mind reader, at the Paxton house yesterday atternoon. After a short introductory, in which he expounded the nature of his calling, he expounded the nature of his calling, he produced a formidable looking dagger and approaching Rev. Mr. Copeland handed the weapon to him "as the most murderous looking" personage in the gathering, asking him to enact a mockmurder scene. Mr. Rishop was then escorted from the parlor in charge of Mr. Gregory, of the Republican, and Mr. John Francis. While these were absent Mr. Copeland suddenly reached over Dr. Merriam and made a tragic lunge at that gentleman. But the dirk did not enter the person. Mr. Copeland then hid the dagger in the parlor grate. Mr. Bishop was then reconducted, blindfolded, to the parlor, and with his hands slightly touching those of Mr. Copeland, he proceeded immediately to the grate, picked up the weapon and then led Mr. Copeland back, and standing in front of Dr. Merriam enacted the same bloody scene which that gentleman had taken part in. taken part in.

The last test was discovering a scarf pin, which a committee, consisting of Rev. Mr. Copeland, Dr. Merriam, General Smith and Edgar Snyder, of the Excelsior, had hidden in a drawer, behind the counter in Max Myer's store. Mr. Bishop was blindfolded, a white band holding cotton bolting closely over his eyes. Over his head he wore a black hood, which rested upon his shoulders hood, which rested upon his shoulders and breast. He led the committee to a carriage in waiting and drove the team east on Farnam street, stopping at Max Myer's. He led the committee into the store and found the pin where it had been placed by them a short time before. A large crowd of admiring witnesses applauded the achievement.

A LARGE ESTABLISHMENT. Hayden Bros., an Eastern Firm, Open a l'irst Class Dry Goods Store Next Week. The new brick building on the west side of Sixteenth street near the corner of Douglas has been leased to two good firms, Kennard Bros., with paint, oil, etc., and the remainder to Hayden Bros., who will open in a few days a first class dry goods store.

Hayden Bros. are well known in the east as first class men and they will no doubt keep up their past record.
The stock is now being put in place
by a large force of clerks who are working like beavers so that they may be able to open up the first part of the week.

Hayden Bros have the reputation of being straightforward business men who have had a long and successful experience in the dry goods trade and come to Omaha highly recommended. The advent of a new dry goods house is always an event of interest to the ladies and from a casual glance at their large store and crisp new stock, neither the ladies or anyone else will be disappointed in the new store of Hayden Bros. which will be opened next week. They will oc-cupy two double floors and the basement with their stock.

Exposition Building Stock For Sale. The earnings of the exposition building during the fourteen months since it was opened have been, in round numbers, $14,000. The cost of the main building and the annex was about $62,000. The stock now issued amounts to $45,800, which compels the carrying of a floating debt of about $16,000. The directors desire to sell $15,000 of stock, and they feel assured, judging from the income up to the present time, and the very flattering outlook for the future, that it will be a dividend-paying investment from this time forward. Proposals for stock should be addressed to Max Meyer, president, or I. W. Miner, secretary.
