BRIEF BITS FROM THE BLUFFS

Words Between Two Citizens Leads One to Cane the Other.

A BIG PIECE . OF MONEY.

Mysterious Breaks In the Fire Alarm Circuit-The District Court Opens -A Noiseless Motor For Lake Manawa.

From Words to a Blow.

Yesterday morning there was an exciting meeting between two citizens, James Madden and J. J. Kinney. It appears that Kinney had lately been discharged from the gampling house where he had been employed, and he had been informed that Madden had been the cause of his employer's dissatisfaction. As they met yesterday on Broadway near the Pacific house, talk opened about this matter. Madden insisted that he had nothing to do with any of the relations of Kinney and the gambling house, and that he had not busied himself in any way with Kinney's affairs. Kinney insisted that this was not true, and as words were getting warm Madden turned to walk away when Kinney struck him with a loaded cane which he had in his hand. Madden was felled to the sidewalk, and by-standers sprang in and prevented his being further mauled. Kinney is a much larger and younger man than Madden, and seems perfectly able to care for himself without using any other the Pacific house, talk opened about this for himself without using any other weapons than those with which nature has furnished him. Information was lodged against both the men, but that against Madden was dismissed. Kinney pleaded guilty to assault and was fined.

A Motor For Manawa. The only obstacle in the way of starting work on the new Manawa railway was removed by the council Monday night, the charter being changed so as to remove the objections of those who are to build the road. The old ordinance prohibited the use of any steam motor power until Tenth avenue was reached. From there to the lake an engine could be used, but it must be detached and horses sub-stituted while running through the residence portion of the city north of that avenue. By the change in the ordinance the company can use a Baldwin noiseless engine from the intersection of Ninth street and Broadway south to the lake the entire distance. Another change was made by which the company is relieved of the obligation to build a belt line of railway around through the eastern por-tion of the city. With the ordinance changed so as to suit the men who propose to build the line, and with the $15,000 bonus already secured, there seems nothing now to prevent the work starting immediately, and it is said that the line will be running within forty days.

The Largest Piece of Money. Frank Levine, who has probably the largest collection of coins in this part of the west, has lately added some curious Swedish money. One of these pieces is probably the largest piece of money ever seen here. It is of copper, and 104 inches long by 94 inches wide. It weighs 6 pounds and 10 ounces. It bears the date of 1727, when Frederick was king of Sweden. On each corner of the piece of money, which looks more like a platter than a coin, is the royal coat of arms and the date, so as to prevent the coin being clipped without detection. In the center is "4 dalers, silf mynt" (silver of much reserved disposition from child-money). He has three cutter and the content of the center is "4 dalers, silf mynt" (silver of much reserved disposition from child-money). He has three cutters are the content of the center is "4 dalers, silf mynt" (silver of much reserved disposition from child-money). money). He has three other smaller pieces of the same kind of money and of about the same date. This big piece of money represented $4 at that time, but it could not be had now for several times that amount, even if it is make of copper.

Breaks in the Cir cuit. There have been several queer freaks of late in the new fire alarm circuit Not long since it was discovered that some one had thrown a wire with a tin can attached across the wires, so as to break the circuit. Yesterday, in searching for the cause of another break, it was discovered that a piece of iron barrel hoop had been put over the wire so as to connect it with the telegraph wire below. There have been so numerous cases of this kind of late that it seems that some mischievous boys are disposed to bother the department or that some person maliciously inclined is determined to cause trouble. The impossibility of constantly watching every part of the wire renders it difficult to catch such offenders, but when one is fairly tapped it will be a sorry day for the one caught.

Settling a Title.

E. C. Patton has commenced a suit against Cook & Morgan to set right the title of lot 11, block 20, in Bayliss & Palmer's addition. The petition sets forth the claim that the plaintiff put the lot in their hands to sell for him at a certain price; that soon after they reported to him that they had a customer for the lot, and wanted a bond for a feed. He made out the desired bond, disposing of the lot, and afterwards learned that Cook & Morgan had put their own names in as purchasers of the lot, and had changed the terms of the lot, and had changed the terms of the agreement, making the price less and the time of payment longer. The petitioner now wants the court to set aside the bond for the deed so as to clear the title, and give such other relief as the court sees best.

Organizing the Club. There was a goodly gathering of business and professional men at the Ogden house parlors to take the preliminary steps towards organizing a social club. Hon. J. Lyman was chosen chairman and H. W. Tilton, of the BEE, secretary. The following committees were chosen: On Organization-F. J. Day, William Moore, S. P. Macconnell. On Rooms—Messrs. Champ, Van Brunt and Eiseman.

On Membership — Messrs. Oliver,
French and Kimball. Adjourned to meet Friday evening over J. M. Mueller's store.

The District Court. The district court opened yesterday with Judge Carson presiding. The petit jury will not be impanelled until next week. The grand jury was expected to go to work yesterday, but few of that body appeared, there evidently being some misunderstanding in regard to the date. Little was done yesterday of pub-

Hard Luck of an East Indian Bride. BOMBAY, Feb. 17.—I belong to the second class of castes, in which, fortunately, widow remarriage is allowed. In 1867 my own father died, leaving me an orphan of two and one-half years of age, in the care of my mother (then seven teen years of age) and my maternal grandfather. Six years after that my mother was remarried with a celebrated doctor in Bombay, who proved an unsually kind step-father to me. He protected and loved me as his own child throughout his life, but by the will of the Almighty his useful life was cut short, and for these twenty-two months he rests very far from us, leaving his widow and five children behind lamenting in vain. I was married at the age of eleven years with a boy of nineteen, on conditions that he should thoroughly be provided by us, but that he should study and become a good man. To these conditions he, his mother and relations had quite agreed. However, in a few months after the marriage in 1876 he began to neglect his duties, leaving the school, and, disobeying my father and grand father, fell into had company and grand father, fell into bad company. The consequence of which was that he fell sick and was attacked with consumption, confined to his bed for three con-tinuous years, in such a state that he years to complete Marathi studies, I began to learn English at home after leaving the school. Day by day my love for education and social reform infor education and social creased, and I continued to pursue my creased, and I could. The habits studies as much as I could. The habits of the man with whom I had been given in marriage, added more to my natural distaste for married life. However, my father, considering his constitution, hab-its, and unfitness for any work, resolved not to send me to his house to live as his wife. He also seemed indifferent to the matter, but in the hope of getting my little money, he was induced to file a suit asking me to go and live as his wife On the 19th of March, 1884, he filed it in the Bombay high court, thinking that by this mere action my father would be afraid of his losing his reputation (because to have a suit of this kind in a court is considered a greatest disgrace among us Hindoos), and would quietly send me to his house with all that I possessed. Our party having resolved long before never to send me to his house, did not care for his suit in that point, and so we began to prepare our-selves for the defence as it became neces-

On the 21st of September, 1885, the humane decision was given in my favor by Mr. Justice Pinhey without taking our defence. The decision, if it had been supported, would have altered the fate of millions and millions of daughters of India, and the longed-for freedom would have been easily secured. In the same way Mr. Justice Pinhey's name have been easily secured. In the same way Mr. Justice Pinhey's name would have been made immortal. But it seemed the will of God that it should not be so; for the man appealed the case, on which it was decided on the 2d of April, 1886, by the chief justice, Sir Charles Sargent, and Mr Justice Bayley that the first decision should be reversed, and that the case should be sent back for retrial. It is still nending in the court. is still pending in the court.

RUKHMABAL.

SOME STRANGE ARRIVALS.

A Wingless Bird and an Egg-Laying Quadruped. Philadelphia Times: The rare collec-tion of animals at the Zoological garden was yesterday enriched by two specimens was yesterday enriched by two specimens which, if they live, will enjoy the proud distinction of having no counterparts in this country. The first is the speniscus demersus, or black-footed penguin, and the other the tachyglossus hystrix, or ant-eating echidna. The first is a genuine bird that cannot fly and the other is The penguin was purchased along with a mate in Hamburg, Germany, to which place they had been taken from South Africa. On the way to the garden the mate died, and yesterday the wingless mate died, and yesterday the wingless bird was warming its milk-white breast and glossy black coat in front of a warm fire. When standing up it is eighteen inches high, with a two and one-half inch bill, and with its flappers, which are like a seal's, pressed closed to its body, it looks like a little soldier on dress parade. Although it cannot fly it can hop around on its feet, which are webbed like a duck's, and its flappers with movements

The echidna is considered by naturalists one of the rarest and most peculiar creations of the animal kingdom. It is the first cousin of the duck-billed platypus. The specimen of the Zoo, except a stuffed one at the Academy of Natural Sciences, is the only one in America and was brought direct from Australia, where it was captured.

It is about the size of an ordinary porcupine, which it greatly resembles, being covered with long quills, but it has a big-shaped nose nearly three inches long from which protrudes a narrow tongue six inches in length. Its mouth is exceedingly small and it has no teeth. Its legs are short and powerful and its feet are armed with thick claws that can bur-row so rapidly that the animal can al-most instantaneously disappear in the earth. Unlike other burrowing animals, he burrows with all four feet at once, and instead of going in first he gracefully sinks into the earth, with his spine curved and bristling with a formidable armor of quills.

On its right hind leg is a sharp spur, smilar to a fighting cock's three inches long. A little canal, connecting with a gland, runs through it and keeps it supplied with a poisonous liquid, which is plied with a poisonous liquid, which is said to produce instantaneous death. The most peculiar feature of this strange creature, however, is that it regularly lays eggs of a dark purple hue. Superintendent Brown said yesterday that he was sorry the animal did not arrive last Saturday, as was expected, as in that event it would probably have laid some nice easter eggs for the Sunday visitors. When on its native heath its diet con-When on its native heath its diet con-sists of ants and other insects, but yes-terday it enjoyed a hearty meal of con-densed milk and the white of an egg.
