"Where can I throw some rubbish?" asked a citizen of the city marshal yes-terday. He was only one of many, and the same answer comes every time. A new enterprise has been started in Council Bluffs, it being that of a yeast cake factory at No. 150 Broadway. When the Grand Army gave a campfire here for the benefit of the Cottage hospital, the citizens contributed of provisions so liberally that there was quite a quantity left over. Although the entertainment was for the benefit of the hospital, still some of the veterans who were on the committee concluded that it would be a just and generous thing to turn a part of the unused provisions over to the home of the friendless. To this there was some opposition, as the avowed object of the entertainment was only the hospital, and those who gave did so with that understanding. Still the veterans

THE CONTRACT DULY SIGNED

The Work on the Manawa Railway to Commence at Once. .

GENERAL DODGE AT HOME. He Talks Freely But Evades Reportorial Queries-The Business Men's Club-Brief Mentions and Happenings.

The Manawa Contract Let. J. K. Graves, of Dubuque, arrived here yesterday to close the preliminary arrangements in regard to the building of the motor line to Lake Manawa. Those interested met yesterday afternoon, and the details were arranged satisfactorily and the contract drawn up and signed. This makes the enterprise secure, beyond any shadow of doubt. Mr. Graves, as all know, is a man who means business, and his agreement to build the line settles all questions. Mr. Graves says he will order material to-day and that it will be here by Friday of next week. He expects to start work at once, and to have the road running within thirty days, although the contract gives him until the first of July. The line agreed to is from the dummy depot on Broadway south on Ninth street depot on Broadway south on Ainth street to the city limits, then west to Eleventh street and south to Ray's landing, then east to Marks' landing. There are to be two Baldwin noiseless motors. The de-tails all having been put in black and white, and the contract signed, work will commence as soon as possible, and those who have watched Mr. Graves in his work elsewhere know that the chances are great that he will rush through the work long before the date fixed in the contract.

General Dodge at Home. General G. M. Dodge, one of the directors of the Union Pacific railway, arrived here yesterday, and was greeted heartily by his old friends and fellowtownsmen. He is looking as vigorous as though passing time and the weight of business were touching him but lightly. General Dodge is known among reporters as one of the easiest men to interview and one of the hardest to get anything out of. He is approachable, greets an eager questioner so cordially and chats so freely that the novitiate has his hopes raised high and sees a column or more of interesting reading matter growing out of the golden opportunity. The veteran reporters who have had the pleasure of meeting him before, know better what to expect. General Dodge talks, talks freely, but when any subject is opened up that means business he can talk around it more skilfully than any of the prominents. The eager interviewer is aggravated by the "thou art so near and yet so fat" situation that he has to retire in despair, and as he takes his leave from the genial general the latter remarks: "Now, don't you report anything as coming from me." In nine times out of ten the reporter could

General Dodge did impart the informa-tion, however, that he was en route for Denver. He stopped off here to see his old home, and expected to meet Presi-dent Adams in Omaha. He would also stop here on his return from Denver. It was simply a private business trip. It is understood that his real purposes in making the trip are concerning the Union Pacific. As to the details of the matters to be looked after, one conjecture is about as reasonable as another. It is understood that among the minor matters to be considered is the Tenth avenue project. The company has not taken any action as yet, and the delay has been caused by the change in the officers. Mr. Potter will have numerous matters to consider, and this will be among those to which his attention will be called early. It will take him a little time to become conversant with the situation, so that a little delay is unavoidable. There seems to be no doubt but that the Union Pacific will accept the ordinance, and build its freight depot as asked.

freight depot as asked.

General Dodge was asked about the union depot. On this he talked a little plainer: "You folks take hold of things the wrong way. You try to make the tail shake the dog, instead of the dog shaking the tail. The Iowa roads are more interested here than the Union Pacific, and they should be the ones you ought to move on for securing a union depot. If they want a union depot, and if they go in to build one, the Union Pacific will run into it, of course. That is my belief."

"What would be done with the transfer then?"

then?'

"You needn't worry about the transfer.
We have uses enough for that. Those who think that the transfer buildings stand in the way of the Union Pacific running into a union depot, if one is built, are mistaken."
On being asked about what the Union Pacific company was going to do on this

On being asked about what the Union Pacific company was going to do on this side of the river, General Dodge replied that the last time he talked with President Adams about it Mr. Adams said he was going ahead with the plans already outlined some time ago.

"It is all right then to report progress?"

"I don't care what you report, but you mustn't report me as saying anything."

They Laughed First. Yesterday Justice Barnett delivered a written opinion in the cases of the three young men, William Hummel, Thomas Murphy and William Brown, charged with disturbing the religious services of the Salvation army. He doubted whether the Salvationists had any right to forbid any in the congregation leaving the hall, except when singing, and doubted whether they had the right to lock the congregation in. If there was any necessity for any one to leave he ought to be allowed to do so and had the right to leave. In such a case, however, a person should approach the door as quietly as possible. In this case it seems that the whole gang started for the door with such a rush, and talked so loud, and burst open the door so violently as to disturb the entire congregation. The evidence showed that there was a regular gang who went there for fun and who had been disturbing previous meetings. The defendants admitted belonging to this gang and it was evident that they disturbed this meeting wilfully. In view of the fact that the Salvation army was rather noisy in its meetings, and it was leave. In such a case, however, a perrather noisy in its meetings, and it was so peculiar an organization as to perhaps justify persons in being less solemn than in other places he made the fine light—$10 each and costs.

Cutting a Forest. The evangelist, Ed Forrest, who lately held a series of revival meetings here, is now on the Pacific coast. He is evidently still indulging in his slang, and his talk about "sealskin Christians." The San Francisco Post says of him: "He brings to the aid of the gospel the vocabulary of the street blackguard and the hanger-on of gambling-houses. Christ, he tells his audience, has 'dealt him a full hand,' and he assures them that it is a 'winner every time.' Episcopalians displease him in the manner in which they 'do the prayer act.' Regular clergymen who preach their sermons in the orthodox manner are 'fine-haired ducks.' As for SPECIAL NOTICES.

himself, it is his ambition to give divine truth to sinners 'right in the neck.' It is apparent that Forrest cares more for notoriety than for the welfare of San Francisco sinners."

A Stray Opera Glass. Some time ago some of Jim Wilson's family went in a hack from the opera house, and somewhere on the way lost a valuable opera glass. Wilson offered a reward of $10 for its return, but could hear nothing about it. A few nights ago Officer Beswick was standing at the dummy depot, and overheard some hackmen talking about the number of articles found in backs, and swapping experiences. One driver told about finding an opera glass last winter. The officer overhearing this, and remember-ing that Wilson had lost one, tackled the fellow, and learned from him that he had pawned the glass in Omaha for $3. On finding that Wilson would still pay $10 for its return he went over to Omaha, redeemed the glass, and claimed the re
