

ENCOURAGING THE ERRING.

Governor Thayer Addresses the Convicts of the Penitentiary on Sunday.

JOKING WITH A BARRISTER.

Incorporation Notes—New Notaries—Criminal Matters—State House News—City Water Permits—About the City.

[FROM THE BEE'S LINCOLN BUREAU.] Sunday morning Governor Thayer and Senator Micklejohn attended church services at the chapel in the penitentiary and were guests of the remainder of the day of Warden Hyers. Sunday services at the penitentiary with the three hundred and odd convicts filling into the chapel in line, the choir made up from among the convicts and the sensible talk that Elder Howe gives the prisoners, is always interesting to outsiders and always greatly appreciated by the convicts. At the close of the services Sunday the governor was called upon by the elder to talk to the men, who he did in his usual strong and sensible way and Senator Micklejohn also spoke to the men. The Bee has been unable to verify the report that the senator prefaced his remarks with "gentlemen and fellow citizens," but his talk was highly appreciated. At the close of the services there was a great demand on the part of many of the prisoners to hold conversation with the governor and he held private interviews with a dozen or more of the convicts. It was remarked by some of the prisoners that it was the first time in ten years that a governor had publicly talked to them and they seemed greatly to appreciate it.

There is a life prisoner in the pen named Dick Foster, who years ago murdered a negro in Nebraska City. He is one of the oldest prisoners in service, his prison number being 33. Foster, with others, was very anxious to see the governor and talk with him, but he had failed to attend the church services, the guards informed him that the visitors would not want to see him. This old prisoner is a harmless, somewhat simple-minded convict, and as he would not leave the penitentiary if he could, he is allowed almost unlimited freedom. He fishes a good deal from the briny banks of Salt creek, near the penitentiary, and has charge of the poultry that is raised in the prison for the use of the convicts. "Old Dick," as he is familiarly known throughout the institution, has no desire to attend church at the prison chapel on Sunday, and has resorted to an ingenious method to appear very busy on that day. He has secured each spring the copy of an almanac, and for two or three summers it has been his constant study. He has a book and, in the management of the poultry, set the hens so that Sunday is always a day for a half-dozen broods or less to hatch, and consequently he is busy enough without fear of being charged by Senator Micklejohn, in conversation with the Bee, was very warm in his indorsement of the sanitary and other regulations of the penitentiary, and especially commended the discipline and management of Warden Hyers and his deputy, Dan Hopkins. "The institution was never in better hands or better condition," was Mr. Micklejohn's verdict after his visit.

ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION

Of the Farmers and Traders bank of Wakefield, Dixon county, were filed yesterday. The capital stock is fixed at $10,000 in shares of $100 each, to be paid in full at commencement of business. Following are the incorporators: J. H. Culver, W. P. Manley, F. B. Moore. The Citizens Street railway of Hastings also filed articles of incorporation, the balance to be paid upon the call of the board of directors. The corporation shall commence business on the first day of June, 1887, and shall continue for the term of ninety-nine years, and the highest amount of indebtedness is limited to $50,000. The incorporators of the company are Henry Shedd, R. A. Beatty, Charles L. Jones, Delavan S. Cole and Morris L. Alexander. The Missouri Pacific railway has filed notice that the capital stock of the company was on the 16th of May increased $5,000,000. The signature of Jay Gould to the notice would puzzle a New York Tribune "punch" in the days of Greeley.

OFFICIAL BONDS FILED.

Dr. E. A. Kelley, superintendent of the hospital for the insane, at Norfolk, has filed his official bond with the secretary of state, in the sum of $10,000. W. Saxe, Frank E. Moore and William F. Bechtel are sureties. J. R. Nichol, steward of the same institution, has filed his bond, in amount $200, with R. Wilson, C. L. Harris, N. D. Jackson, Carl Roher, A. J. Anderson, H. Kruger, J. E. Wilder, J. M. Colman and John J. Roche as sureties. The bonds of Sam B. Jones, E. E. Howard, Mrs. Grant, W. C. Webster and L. A. Bates, members of the visiting and advisory board of the soldier's home, have also been filed with the secretary.

NEW NOTARIES.

The governor yesterday commissioned the following new notaries: L. A. Seeley, Humphrey, Platte county; H. L. Strong, Kearney; Gustav Kroeger, Omaha; L. Rosenthal, W. P. Foster, Platte county; Gering, Cheyenne county; L. A. Re-nau, Ainsley, Custer county; Charles H. Nixon, Atkinson, Holt county; H. W. Mathews, Atkinson; James J. Jordan, Grant; Robert I. Hummer, Platte; Lincoln; W. H. Cartwright, North Platte; Richard M. Lyman, Crawford, Daves county; Frank D. Brown, Armada, Buffalo county.

STATE HOUSE NOTES.

Deputy Commissioner of Lands and Buildings C. M. Carter, has gone to Daves and Box Bluffs counties to conduct a sale of school lands in those counties. The Syracuse insurance company of Minneapolis, Minn., has complied with the state laws and been admitted to transact business in the state. The Masonic Mutual Benefit society of Indianapolis, Ind., has been admitted to transact business in the state, as has also the Knights of Pythias endowment rank. Prof. G. B. Lane, superintendent of public instruction, has gone to Iowa to official business at the state normal school. Deputy Auditor Thomas H. Benton is in St. Louis this week.

STATE HOUSE MATTERS.

County Attorney Stearns was out to the penitentiary yesterday afternoon, holding a preliminary hearing and obtaining testimony in the murder case of the colored man Jackson, who killed Gleason. This case will undoubtedly be tried on an information for murder in the first degree, and it is not at all improbable that a hanging will follow within the walls of the penitentiary.

Yesterday morning, before Justice Cochran, Thomas Gleason was given a hearing. It appears that Gleason and his wife are seeking a separation in the courts, the suit of which is pending. Gleason, however, has been amusing himself by kicking in the door of the house which his wife lives in, and in consequence will serve a term in the county jail. The trial of Mrs. Lee Schellenberger has not yet been set for hearing.

A JURY WITH TWO ENDS. A few days ago a citizen and an attorney agreed to a joke and proceeded to formulate it. The citizen went to a well known barrister, who was selected as the victim, and complained that he could not get a deed from the attorney, and instructed him to commence suit at once. The barrister was loth to commence proceedings against a brother attorney with whom he was on intimate terms, but the citizen wanted a suit, and after a visit to the attorney, who refused to settle, and said to go ahead, the barrister drew up a voluminous petition, filed it in the district court, had process and summons issued and the case was regularly on the docket. The next day the citizen again asked the barrister if he was pushing the suit, and was told that it was under way. In the meantime the citizen and attorney were holding secret meetings and laughing themselves tired over the excellent joke they had on the barrister, who suddenly took a fall to himself and realized that all his work had been a joke. But he was not at all disconcerted. He immediately went to a justice shop and commenced suit for twenty-five dollars fees for the work he had done, and went to it as eagerly as only a man can who is enjoying at present. Yesterday morning he obtained a judgment for the amount in Judge Brown's court, and it looks as though the citizen, with the district court fees on hand and the twenty-five dollar judgment, had put the joke himself, and all efforts to settle with the barrister for ten dollars have been laughably spurned.

ABOUT THE CITY.

The Lincoln Fuel Gas company filed articles of incorporation with the county clerk yesterday. The company is organized to secure a franchise and furnish better and cheaper gas to the city than is being at present. The capital stock of the company is fixed at $200,000 in shares of $100 each, business to commence with the filing of the papers and continue for ninety-nine years. F. A. Karsmeyer, J. A. Johnson, W. H. Wilman, Sam D. Cox, and N. C. Abbott are the incorporators. L. A. Dorrington, of Plattsmouth, president of the Young Mens Republican club in that city, was in Lincoln yesterday. This republican club is no fairly historic. It was organized on June 10, 1884, incorporated under the state law and has held to the line since, holding on each anniversary day an annual picnic, each one of which heretofore has attracted more than state attention. Mr. Dorrington states that the coming banquet of the club on the 10th of June will be more to celebrate all former efforts. A number of the state officers, including the governor will attend, and the club expects to secure Senator Ingalls, of Kansas, among the guests from outside the state. The district court yesterday the case of the traveling man against his house occupied the forenoon. County court was quiet and police court showed up with a very light docket. H. Z. Zerkowicz of the county clerk's office, has handed in his resignation to take effect June 1, after which time, he will enter the real estate and abstract business, giving especial attention to the latter.

The demand for city water still continues, the total number of permits up to yesterday morning numbering 871. Manager Shriver and O'Leary, Ross and Hart, the peddlars, departed at 8:50 yesterday for Omaha.

The popular blood purifier, Hood's Sarsaparilla, is having a tremendous sale this season. Nearly everybody takes it. Try it yourself.

EXTRAVAGANT SALARIES.

Items of interest from the "Souvenir" of Maurice Strakosch. It is estimated that Madame Patti, during the season at Atlantic, seven months ago cleared upwards of $500,000. The receipts averaged $5,000 per night, and the "prima donna" was not only on sharing terms, but had a certain sum guaranteed. The "souvenir" of the opera singer Maurice Strakosch, Madame Patti's brother-in-law, which have lately been published in France, contain some interesting facts. In 1860 the late E. T. Smith engaged Patti to come from America to London at the rate of $500 per week, but Mr. Smith (according to Mr. Strakosch) sold his Drury Lane season to the late Mr. Gye, and for the sum of $30,000 gave that manager the monopoly of opera at the Strand. The first year, $100,000 per month for the second, $1,250 for the third, $1,150 for the fourth and $2,000 per month for the fifth year. She was to sing no less than twice a week, and thus her fees for five years were $1,000,000 per month. This salary was paid to Madame Patti during the whole five years, although Mr. Gye graciously gave her a present for extra nights. Until her death Madame Patti married the Marquis de Caux, Mr. Strakosch, who then managed all her business, declares he never received from Mr. Gye more than $600 per night in her life. Grist and Mill, according to the same authority, received in the zenith of their fame, $250 per representation, but during his farewell season Marie Martin was paid more. Strakosch states that in 1863 Madame Pauline Lucca was paid at the Berlin opera house $300 per month. By the time she reached Paris Madame Patti was a great star, and the empire was at the height of its rooklessness. Yet the prima donna received only $400 per night for the first season and $600 for the third. Patti's engagement for Russia were at the rate of $1,400 per night, and the era of extravagant salaries was at its height. Patti and Nilsson were in fierce rivalry until artists' salaries rose still higher, until they culminated in the disastrous American season of Mr. Abbey a few years ago.

It is to be hoped that the climax of a system which renders efficient opera giving with a reasonably efficient ensemble, financially impracticable, has been reached.

SHE WILLED FOREST IN PEACE

But Nature with Majestic Stride Destroyed the Beauty of Her Tomb.

A MARVELOUS MAUSOLEUM.

Caroline von Ruling's Strange Preparations for Her last Resting Place—A Mysterious Chest—A Romance of Titled Heads.

There is a remarkable tomb in the graveyard surrounding the Garden church at Hanover, Germany. Mausoleums of noted men have not attained the celebrity that this grave has, though the Caroline von Ruling whose name is on the marble would have been wholly forgotten but for a certain occurrence connected with her burial place. Few go to Hanover without stopping to look at this house of the dead. It is an attraction for the curious, the poetical and the religious—an elegy and sermon combined.

A young German named A. Hinrichsen, who lately paid a visit to his native land and visited the spot, brought back with him to San Francisco a photograph of this tomb. To a reporter who visited him at the Russ house, where he is employed, he gave the following account of the grave: The churchyard in which the grave is situated is in a central and very fashionable part of Hanover. It is on Marion strasse, about five minutes' walk from the National opera house, which is located on the principal avenue in the city. The church itself is a small building, it is very old and plainly shows its age; but it has, nevertheless, a wealthy and fashionable congregation. It still bears the name of the Garden or Market church, which was in existence more than a century ago, when the locality was chiefly the home of the market gardeners, who cultivated their vegetables there, and went to this little church every Sunday morning, to pray and sing. The churchyard became surrounded by residences of richer people and those belonging to the nobility, and when they died they were buried in this cemetery. That is how Caroline von Ruling's grave came to be placed in this particular cemetery. As the "von" in her name indicates, she was a woman of rank. There are some people living in Hanover now who have been von Rulings, and I am informed that they are descended from the family to which she belonged. They are persons of wealth. According to the inscription on the tomb, she must have been a young woman when death claimed her. The epitaph states that she was born in 1736 and died in 1782. The statement is also carved on the tomb that "she died after bearing three sons to heaven." This inscription is also on the tomb.

Parting is the fate of mortals. How bitter to be left so soon! The rest of life is sought but darkness: But death will lead the way. To meet again eternal light. The tomb was made of big, heavy blocks of sandstone. The top one on which these inscriptions are is an immense piece of granite, which was fashioned a black cloth resembling a pall that partly conceals the representation of a torch that has been extinguished and is still smoking. It is on this stone cloth that the inscription is carved. The words are engraved. The most remarkable words—in those in fact, that lend an interest to the grave—are on the highest of the two sandstone steps below. This inscription, like the others, is in German and is thus placed:

Dises aufewig Erkaufte Grab darf nie gestohlet werden.

Its meaning in English is: "This burying place, bought for eternity shall never be opened." This inscription is in German and simple people who resided in the neighborhood never read it but with awe. It was not the mere result of a whimsical wish, apparently, for it was whispered that something terrible was buried in this tomb, which Caroline von Ruling and her family wished to have forever concealed from the knowledge of man. Not only was it sacrilege to touch a grave, but to open it, a crime for which German law made it a crime for the tomb to be opened against the express will of the deceased. Consequently the von Rulings presumed that they could take for eternity on Ruling's grave, the German law made it a crime for the tomb to be opened against the express will of the deceased. Consequently the von Rulings presumed that they could take for eternity on Ruling's grave, the German law made it a crime for the tomb to be opened against the express will of the deceased.

Every druggist should keep Athlaphoros and Athlaphoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist in the neighborhood, as we shall state here, will send either carriage paid on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlaphoros and 50c. for Pills. For liver and kidney diseases, dyspepsia, biliousness, indigestion, constipation, impure blood, etc., Athlaphoros Pills are unequalled.

Wolves Killing Deer. Oswego Palladium: A pack of wolves are said to be making great havoc among the deer in the vicinity of Bog Lake, Lewis county. George Muir of Lewisville, who is well known as a successful hunter and trapper in the Adirondacks, reports that he has seen the carcasses of as many as six deer in one day's travel, all of which had evidently been killed by wolves, as they were partly devoured. Early in the winter one of a pack of six wolves was killed in the Bog Lake region by a hunter, and they have since been pursued by the wolves without success. Mr. Muir has killed two panthers this winter. His dog, treed one of them and he brought him down with his rifle. The other was caught in a trap and afterwards killed. The wolves are killing off the deer in the woods faster than a dozen sportsmen parties could do in the open season, and unless they are exterminated it is believed there will be few deer found by hunters in the vicinity of Big Deer pond this year.

In cases of Fever and Ague, the blood is as effectually, though not so dangerously, struck to some extent, as in cholera, and it is very old and plainly shows its age; but it has, nevertheless, a wealthy and fashionable congregation. It still bears the name of the Garden or Market church, which was in existence more than a century ago, when the locality was chiefly the home of the market gardeners, who cultivated their vegetables there, and went to this little church every Sunday morning, to pray and sing. Sam Small Denounces Bernhard. Chicago Inter-Ocean: At the revival meeting at the Minneapolis Exposition held on Wednesday Sam Small was the chief preacher. He turned his attention to theatres, taking as a text the fact that Sarah Bernhard opens her engagement here this evening. "Not all the oxen in the northwest," he said, could draw him in how Caroline von Ruling's grave came to be placed in this particular cemetery. As the "von" in her name indicates, she was a woman of rank. There are some people living in Hanover now who have been von Rulings, and I am informed that they are descended from the family to which she belonged. They are persons of wealth. Twenty-Eight Important Improvements

To the separator alone, which makes it beyond doubt, the most perfect machine offered to the trade for the year 1887. It threshes everything a farmer can raise—wheat, oats, rye, barley, fax, timothy, millet, clover, and peas, requiring no change of parts, except concaves and sieves. Why does it do all this? Because it is neither a VIBRATOR nor an APRON machine, but surpasses either in all the essential requirements of a perfect thresher.

We call your attention with pride to the "Chief's" Cylinder, Side-gear, Elevator, Straw Stacker, Shoe Separating Table, Ragger Attachments, Wagon Loading Elevator, style of frame, finish of machine and above all its simplicity of construction. We also wish to
