Mike Kildare was yesterday fined for disturbing the peace. Mike is said to be employed as a sort of special bouncer in one of the gambling houses, and when a disturbing element appeared he fulfilled his mission, and the house stood the cost of thus preserving order.

Sheehan & Coyne's comedy company appeared in the three-act comedy, 'Grogan's Elevation,' last night at Dohany's. There was a fair sized audience. The play is an exceedingly funny one and was loudly applauded. They appear again to-night. The Knights of Labor have been looking after Dell Perkins, the young man who had his foot taken off by a freight train, and who has been since at the Cottage hospital. There seems to be some dissatisfaction at the treatment Perkins has received, and the matter is being looked into, the chief cause being the character of the food furnished him.

There was a large attendance at the reception given to Rev. Dr. Phelps last evening at his residence. The ladies having the affair in charge entertained the callers well, and Dr. Phelps and family could not but feel that they are most heartily welcomed to Council Bluffs. As pastor of the Presbyterian church he has made a very favorable impression, and socially he and his will avidently be no less normals. evidently be no less popular.

The need of some action in regard to securing a new hook and ladder truck for the city is very apparent. As it will take at least three months to secure the truce after ordering it, it seems that there should be no delay in the matter. The old truck and ladders are pronounced comparatively worthless, and hence the city is virtually without any in case of a great fire, and at the best can not be given the needed protection for months to come, even if a truck was ordered now.

Arrangements are being made to push the Fifth regiment band into the front rank among the bands of the west, and the material is being got together for making it one of the best bands in the country. J. Pospisil, of St. Paul, arrived here yesterday to take a permanent place in the band. He is one of the finest placements of the country. clarionetists in the country, and is a musician of merit on other instruments. There are some others who are to be en-listed, and with the new members added to the old ones the organization will be made one of the largest and strongest in the state. With practice together, it will be not many weeks before the band will able to furnish the citizens of Council Bluffs an opportunity of hearing as choice music as ever broke upon Iowa

THE COUNCIL LAST NIGHT.

The City Council. There was a full board at the council meeting last night.

Petition of John Danforth for $1,000 damages to lots in Grimes addition, on account of the sewer ditch. Referred.

Property owners on Mynster street urged that the sewering and paving of that street be done as soon as possible. It was stated by the mayor that it was understood that Mynster street should be the first one to have sewerage this season, and that the paving would follow at once.

A committee of the Knights of Labor resented a communication asking that he resolution in regard to contractors doing city work be so changed as to make it compulsory for these contractors to employ home labor. The communication was accompanied by the draft of an ordinance to cover the request. Referred to the judiciary committee.

C. C. Despaine petitioned for the appointment of paving inspector this season, accompanying it by endorsements

A communication of citizens was presented, stating that the Northwestern and Union Pacific railroad companies had laid tracks and turnouts so as to eneroach on the highway leading to Mynster springs. They petitioned the council to take action to protect the public rights on the highway. Colonel Keatley spoke in behalf of the petioners. W. A. Mynster spoke on the other side of the question, claiming it was only a tem-porary inconvenience, but would finally a benefit. The petition was referred Petition for opening Seventh street and complaining of railway obstructions pre-ented and referred. The contract for sewer, with W. P. Wightman and George S. Miller, was presented, together with the bond of $15,000, the work to commence June 1 and be completed by November 10, with a forfeit of $25 a day for failure to thus complete the work. Approved and the mayor authorized to sign the same. The committee reported in favor of rejected grading bids, as they were higher than private parties were getting grad-ing done. Concurred in. The clerk was ordered to readvertise.

The committee reported in the matter of opening avenue H and Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth streets, that private parties were cultivating them, obstruct-ing them without authority. Concurred

An ordinance was presented giving the electric light and power company right to use streets for poles. Alderman Keller announced that if agreeable, a test of the new fire alarm would be made this morning, the council to meet at No. 3's house at 9 o'clock. This was agreed to.

Pinching a Detective.

There was an interesting case on trial in the district court yesserday. It was that of young Vannice, charged with obtaining money under false pretenses. It was claimed on the part of the prosecution that the young man was employed last fall in the Neligh detective agency in Omaha. His business was that of an office boy, and he was given some little work to do to give him a chance to learn something of what it was to be a detect-He was in the office several weeks, and had been used on a few occasions on some trivial work outside the office. Mr. Harris, who is the manager for the Russell manufacturing company in Council Bluffs, was suspicious that one of his traveling men was too fond of poker on the road, and he thought it would be well to satisfy himself on this point before discharging the traveling man. To secure the needed evidence, he bethought him that it would be well to satisfy himself on this point before discharging the traveling man. be well to employ a detective. He accordingly applied at Neligh's office, in Omaha, and found young Vannice in the office. Vannice told him that Mr. Neligh was out of the city, and learning what he wanted, told Mr. Harris that he was himself an experienced detective was himself an experienced detective, and could do the work for him. While talking with Mr. Harris Mr. Neligh en-tered the office, but Mr. Harris did not recognize him, never having met him. He asked Vannice, however, if that was not Mr. Neligh. Vannice replied, "No, that's a friend of mine." Mr. Harris, bing satisfied that Vannice was one of the detectives interested in the agency, made an appointment to meet him in Council Bluffs the next day and arrange details.
At this meeting in Council Bluffs Mr.
Harris furnished him with $50 to cover traveling expenses, and agreed to pay him $25 for his services in ascertaining whether the traveling man named Young, was playing poker on the road. Vannice went out on the road, but learned little about it, and a second trip was made, for which $60 more was put up by Mr. Harris. He also paid Vannice $5 on account of services. In rendering his expense account, Vannice accounted for spending so much money by claiming that he had to play poker himself, in order to keep in with the boys and get pointers on Young. He managed to lose the money thus placed on the cards, and failed to secure any information about Young. In fact, the work was bungling, and Mr. Harris realizing that he had been duped, had Vannice indicted.

On the other hand Vannice claimed that he undertook the job in good earnest.

that he undertook the job in good earnest, and intending to act squarely. He claimed that the prosecution was malicious, because he had left Neligh's employ, and Neligh was anxious to get even with him for not turning over the money which he had in his pocket for the traveling expenses. He insisted on the stand that he had not misrepresented his ability to Mr. Harris, and that he did not obtain the money by any false pretenses at all.

Harris, and that he did not obtain the money by any false pretenses at all.

Attorney Stow, of Omaha, is prosecuting the case, and Stone & Sims defending. The examination of witnesses threw a good deal of light upon the interesting workings of so-called detectives. It afforded much amusement to the listeners, especially when one witness, who claimed to be a detective, was pinned down to defining what a detective was. The best definition he could give was that he was doing what he was told to do. When pressed for a statement of any of the principles which governed the profession, the only one he could think of was that a detective should treat people about right.

about right. Trouble With Taxes.

There were a goodly number of taxpayers who called at the city building esterday to look over the raises made by the board of equilization. The total assessment has been raised from between four and five millions to between five and six millions of dollars. There are numerous opinions expressed. Nearly every one whose property has been raised thinks he is a little higner than any neighboring property of about the same value, and altogether out of proportion rived at Southampton from New York.

to other property. It seems conceded that the raised assessments even are not in excess of forty per cent of the cash value of the property, and the chief pro-tests will be on the ground that there have been discriminations.

It is stoutly asserted by some that the board has no right to raise the assessments. It is a board of equalization, and not one of assessments. If the board is to do the assessing, then there is little use of electing an assessor. If the board increases one assessment it should reduce some other one, thus making the total the same as originally. Such is the view taken of the matter by many. The mayor and other officials are equally confident that the board has been exercising simply the rights and powers given under the law.

It was amusing yesterday to see two men. One was wrathy about the in-creased assessment of his property, and bitterly denounced it as a scheme of the bridge company to realize more money out of the twelve-mili tax voted for by that enterprise. He had only got through airing his convictions when one of the bridge company came in, equally in-censed at the raise of his property. He was hot about the action of the board, and thought it was a scheme to help the city expenses along, when these should be met by some other way. There was a stream coming and going all day, and few of them smiled. There will evi-dently be some hot boxes before the assessment runs through to the end of

This batch includes all the saloons omitted in the former proceedings, so that the next batch of injunctions, if these are issued, will include all of those not previously enjoined. In becoming a property owner of this promising city he will not be found wanting for energy and vim to push improvements forward. In making the sale Mr. Tipton has done well in thus interesting such a man in the growth and prosperity of the city, and Mr. Cunning-ham will doubtless find it a profitable

Pearl st. Residence, 120 Fourth st. Telephone No 10. The Lantry Kiss.

New York Sun: There is nothing more talked about in theatrical circles than the kissing of Charles Coghlan and Mrs. Lantry in "Lady Clancarty." It was so deliberate, so utterly oblivious of the big fiddle, so unconscious of the bass drum. The seemingly rapturous kissing that Emma Abbott used to bestow on Castle never stirred a hair on Husband Wetherell's head. The kissing of Mary Anderson was the most transparent makebelieve in the world. When Clara Morgis used to keep Charlie Theorem 1972 ris used to kiss Charlie Thorne in "Ca-mille," she would take him on his knees before her, muss his hair, devour him with loving looks, dip down upon his face, and kiss him lingeringly on his nose, to his intense amusement. When nose, to his intense amusement. When Rignold was in the country he awoke the town kissing Susan when he played William. The women in the audience used to admire, but Susan suffered. Rignoid was a wiry, red-bearded man, who shaved twice a week and no oftener. He would powder the stubble on his face till his complexion was lovely, but poor Susan! A section of sandpaper could have hurt no worse. When he got home from sea in the play and met Susan, she would fly into his arms very much as the victim sentenced in the inquisition to undergo the virgin's kiss-knowing she had to, and was going to get hurt. He would hold that poor girl's head back, make a rush, kiss both eyes, root a second under her ear, and then kiss her straight on the mouth, and all the while the adacent field of cheek and mound of chin were taking out her cuticle like a nut-were taking out her cuticle like a nutmeg grater.

But this kiss of Coghlan's is realistic.
The remarks it elicits are funny. The other night, as the lingering kiss was pressed upon the upturned mouth of the famous Lily, a lady said with a sigh,
"What a pity it's in a play." An old fellow, who looked through a pair of glasses and over a lot of chin whiskers, just as Horace Greeley used to do, siapped his leg with a big freckled hand, and ejaculated, "Whew!" Everybody laughed almost as much as they did
