FIELD DAY SPORTS. Yesterday was field day at the State university and the sports opened with a 100 yard running race, five entries, with a prize in view of a $5 hat. The track was soft and the record was 154 seconds. A. M. Throyer, a freshman, was first, C. B. Newcomer second and L. Bryan third. The second contest was a standing jump without weights, won also by Troyer, 9 feet 54 inches, T. A. Williams second and C. B. Newcomer third. The prize was an athlete suit. Four wrestlers entered the wrestling match and Frank Almy was the winner. The wheelbarrow race was the winner. Ing contest and a decided go-as-you-please, the wheelers blindfolded, and the stake fifty yards distant. Frank Woods, a freshnian, was winner and secured "Robbins' Ancient Monarchies" as the prize prize.

The tug of war contest was between the different classes, tge freshmen win-ning from the juniors in the morning contest and the other classes having the contest yet to decide in the afternoon, A sack race and other contests were also

UNEXPLORED PATAGONIA.

An Unknown Land-Scenery of the Straits -Inhospitable Shores.

Characteristics of the People-Only a Step Removed from Cannibals-Lowest Type of Humanity -The Gold Fields.

Correspondence of the San Francisco Chronicle: Stern, wild and inhospitable are the shores of Patagonia and the adjacent island of Tierra del Fuego. There have been few explorers who have penetrated into their unknown interiors, and the general knowledge of these countries is necessarily contined and of no reliable value. In the middle of summer the climate is cold, the winds bitterly cold, and snow squalls frequent, so that the dark and long winters can be more easily imagined than described. In these inhospitable regions wander nomadic tribes, which manage to subsist on goat flesh and fish, bread being next to unknown, and vegetation being of the scantiest. There is a general impression that the Patagonian is a giant, 1 never saw one over five feet ten inches in height, and most of them were much shorter, and on the average stunted. The females have a muscular development equal to the males, and it is sometimes difficult to distinguish between the sexes, owing to the masculine appearance ot the gentler sex, the women in most cases supporting an incipient mustache and beard, which on the male never grows very luxuriantly. Both sexes dress alike. Bleak and cold as the climate is at the best of times, the usual dress consists of the skin of some wild animal loosely wrapped around the body. Little children can be seen running naked over the snow, their well-oiled brown skin apparently impervious to the biting winds. Those savages wandering to the Chilean settlement of Punta Arenas (Sandy point) have often been presented with various articles of clothing, but as a rule the aborigine discards shirts and trousers upon the first opportunity. The Valparaiso sewing circles industricusly continue contributing boxfuls of clothing, but it is a mystery what becomes of the garments. Most likely there are second-hand dealers who barter rum for the "duds."

As the Patagonian tribes are noma-dic, their temporary dwellings consist of branches of trees interwoven so as to form a basket-work defense against the weather. Skins, old sails and blankets also give a shelter which seems to content the tenants, who are notoriously in-different to the comforts or discomforts of home. Fish, of course, forms the sta-ple food, and it is thought that few in-habitants are in the interior, most living near the sea for the sake of its food and the wreckage which occasionally strews the coast. Many Horn-bound vessels which have never been heard of have doubtless been lost on the Patagonian and Fuegian coasts, and nearly every native has some trophy east up by the sea on their iron shores. There is a story of a crew having succeeded in getting ashore from a stranded vessel and being murdered by the savages, with the exception of the captain's wife, who is said to be still alive in the interior, dragging out a miserable existence as the wife of some dusky chief. Steamers passing through the Straits of Magellan are often met by the canoes of Indians (the women paddling), whe eag-erly look for ship's bread or any other article thrown them. I noticed one set of indians had a handsome ship's boat, said

I have used Railroad Remedy for rheumatism, pain in the back and kidneys, and have found imme-liate relief. I consider it the most reliable family medicine I ever used. The following is from Judge Forworthy: I was confined to my room over two months by a severe indury to my hip. I tried St. Jacob's Oil, Gargling Oil, Mustang Liniment, and Saivation Oil, without relief. By advice, I tried RAILROAD REMEDY, and enjoyed the first night's rest since my injury. The nervous pains and twitchings were instantly relieved by its soothing effects. It cures the worst headache in haif an hour. In colic, sore throat, wounds and burns, it has no equal. An never without it in my family. I was a confirmed invalid, from Rheumatism; could not walk; all medicine failed to relieve my suffer-lings. I tried RAILROAD REMEDY, and was entirely cured in three weeks. I gained jo pounds since I left my bed. Truly wonderful are the effects of this Great Remedy. I found also boot tracks, one foot of which showed boot tracks, one foot of which showed that there was a patch on the side, near the toe. We arrested Daggett, whose boot was patched in the exact place shown by the tracks, and he owned up and took his three years in jail. Now comes the odd part of the story. Two months after Daggett served out his sentence and got home Mr. Fellows' house was robbed again. The robbers had broken out the same pane of glass as had broken out the same pane of glass as had broken out the same pane of glass as before, opened the same window and stolen the same things, including the same revolver. We went for Daggett, but he would not own up this time. He wore a pair of stout prison shoes with hobnails in the soles. We found that the shoes and nails fitted exactly in foot-prints around the window which was opened. Dagget got five years this time opened.
