Discord in Music.

Sunday Captain Cormick, of the police force, and another officer notified the proprietors of the dance halls and beer gardens that hereafter they would have to dispense with music on Sunday. This was the order as nearly as could be ascertained, though some of the parties notified received it differently. One man told a BEE reporter that he had been told to simply discontinue dancing, and that nothing was said about music. Another said that he had been ordered to allow no music to be played, and so it went, each man having a different story. The places affected by the order, what-

The places affected by the order, what-ever that may have been, are the Casino, on Howard street, the Tivoli, Metz garden, on Tenth, in which the German Comedy company plays, Fritz Mueller's garden, on Vinton and Eighteenth, Spoerl's park, on the same streets, Paul Sent's, one block further south, Fritz Ruhe's, Charles Ditzen's, Henry Ruser's, on the Bellevue road, Savage's, north of the Bellevue road, Savage's, north of the fort, together with Hoffman's, Simanek and Kessler's halls, on South Thirteenth

John Hoffman was seen by a reporter and was full of indignation. He considered the order an outrage. It came suddenly, after he had made arrangements and hired his musicians for the day. It shut him out of one night's legitimate business. It was just shut him out of one night's legitimate business. It was just the same as throwing one hundred dollars into the street. It was unjust to deprive the people who wanted amusement on Sunday, without interfering with others from enjoying themselves. People who did not have great means, were entitled to pleasure, music and dancing on Sunday as well as those who played their pianos and danced at home. His place was as orderly on Sunday as any other was as orderly on Sunday as any other place in town, and to shut off the music was an outrage.

Fritz Mueller took ft quietly but said that it was an unjust order. Music did not harm anybody. His neighbors did not object to it. Those who patronized him came from the city to spend a day under the trees where they might find shade, rest and refreshment. He had hired his band and would have to pay. It was not right to give people such short notice, and the notice, anyway, should never have been given.

In Mueller's place, the band which the proprietor had engaged, played, but Mueller claimed they were not playing mueller claimed they were not playing Mueller claimed they were not playing for him, they were simply "practicing."

Spoerl was next seen. He was the most moved. "It was raining yesterday," said he, "otherwise I would have had my band playing and people dancing in spite of the order. They have no right to stop me. I want to know where that order came from. Why was it is sued? Whom does my music annoy? I Whom does my music annoy? I sued? Whom does my music annoy? I could just as well have my dance on Saturday night, if the people wanted it on that night. But they don't. They want their amusement on Sunday night and afternoon, and it's a shame to prevent them having it. They say there is murder being done out here. Am I responsible for what takes place on the street? There have been men killed in the city in saloons, why ain't those places closed up? A year ago Powell shot Leslie in front of a church in Florence. Was that minister out there to be held responsible for that out there to be held responsible for that crime? I am under big expenses here, and this will break up my business. If it does. I will stop plane playing on Sunday all over town. I keep an orderly place here, pay a thousand dollars yearly to the schools, keep special policemen and never have a quarrel here."

Paul Senf said he had hired his mu-sicians, they had come in the morning and he was compelled to send them home after paying them. Giving so short a no-tice was a poor way to do business. It was unjust and he was disposed to protest against the stopping of music. So were all the other garden men. was no good reason they should not be allowed to make a living. Sunday was about the only day that they could take in any cash, and on that day it was because the people wanted amusement. He employed two regular policemen, who worked on afternoons, and to each of these he paid $5 for their work. His place was orderly, and he was going to join with others to fight the business.

The Casino gave its concert, as usual, last night, until the rain interfered.

Attorney O'Connor Destroys Some of Mr. Kuhu's Masticators.

There was a lively scene yesterday morning in Judge Anderson's court, the end of which, it is claimed, has not yet been reached.

Max Kuhn, the attorney, was the defendant in a case in which Mr. Squires was the plaintiff. Mr. Kuhn acted as his own attorney, and J. J. O'Conner appeared for the plaintiff. During the progress of the case, O'Connor, it is claimed, announced that he had sent to the defendant four notices which Ruhn remarked that that was not the truth. This retort incensed O'Conner. He reached for Kuhn, who is a much older and heavier man, and struck him in the mouth, cutting the latter's lip and knocking out one of his teeth. Kuhn made no effort to repel the attack, simply contenting himself with the remark that O'Conner was a gentleman, and then picked up his missing molar. Judge Anderson was indig-nant at the attack and told O'Couner to appear before him at 3 o'clock to-day he and would take action in the matter. Kuhn went to the police court and had a warrant sworn out for O'Conner's arrest He asserts that after the latter is at tended to by Judge Anderson he will prosecute him for assault.

Reep Quiet. The latest feature in the question between Harrison and the army people regarding the practice of the latter and the Omaha Rifle club over his lot, which happens to lie upon the range of this department, was his announcement yesterday to some of the officers at headquarters that if he were given $1,000 by the government, he would make no further objection until the fail, but then the range would have to be abandoned. In view of the fact that his iot cost fifty dollars, Harrison's proposition is condered very remarkable.

TALES OF THE TOILERS.

Made by Them.

A joint meeting of the contractors and the carpenters and joiners was held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock at 1210 Douglas street for the purpose of arriving at an adjustment of hours and wages which will be satisfactory to both the employers and the carpenters and foiners.

carpenters and joiners have been agitat-ing the subject of returning to the nine hour system. A committee of carpenters and joiners representing Unions No. 58 and 271, have visited the leading contractors of the city and found the major-ity of them favorably inclined toward the proposition. This movement here was inaugurated in the spring of 1886. A number of contractors agreed to the proposition and during the months of April and May the nine hour system prevailed. At the end of that time, owing to the fact that all the prominent contractors had not agreed to obliged to go to work on a ten hour basis. These men are now paid from $2.75 to $3.00 for ten hours work. There was a large attendance of journeymen at the meeting, and a great deal of discussion was indulged in.

held a meeting at the G. A. R. hall for the purpose of acting on the demands of the carpenters and joiners union. About twenty-five carpenters were in attendance. The terms to which those present finally agreed are as follows: nine hours to constitute a day's work for competent carpenters and joiners and eight hours for Saturday, to be considered as a full day—overtime labor to be paid at one time and a half-The rate is 30 cents per hour. This agreement which will take effect on the 1st of January, 1888, was signid by all the present contractors, a copy of which will be held by the contractors, while the union will receive another one. The meeting was rather lengthy, lasting from 2 to 5 o'clock. George Coates presided.

BRICKLAYERS' TENDERS.

The following order has been made by the Bricklayers' and Plasterers' Tenders Union: That on and after the 1st of July, 1887, the laborers working with brick layers and plasterers, known as the Bricklayers' and Plasterers' Tenders will ask $2.25 per day, with same hours as bricklayers and with Saturday's estate dealers, but whose name for the present will be suppressed, was the hero of a very peculiar adventure Saturday night. He started for his room on Pierce street early in the evening. At the corner of Twentieth and Leavenworth he stopped under a gaslight to see what time it was. His valuable chronometer pointed to 9:10. Buttoning his coat he stepped down into the gutter to cross the street. That was the last he remembered till five minutes past 12 Sunday. He awoke in bed in his room with nothing on but an undershirt. The door was locked. A severe pain in the back of the head caused him to think he had been slugged. When he started from the city he had a bundle of underclothing and a package from a laundry. Both were gone. Likewise $2.40 was missing from his pocket, while his watch and chain remained. His shoes and pants nearly to the knee were covered with mud, but there was none on his cont, as there undoubtedly would have been had he either fallen or been struck down. Both hands were covered with dried mud, but there was none on the bedding, showing that he must have been out some time. He stoutly affirms that he cannot remember a single event from the time he put his foot into the gutter to cross the street until waking in his room; says he can't even remember raising the other foot from the sidewalk. Whether he was liar mental derangement is the question.

A NUMBER OF APPLICANTS. One Hundred and Thirty Would-Be Policemen.

The applications for positions on the fire and police forces continue to pour in. By far the greater number desire to wear the star and made of the guardians of the peace. Up to the present there are 130 applications for positions on the police force. The commissioners have had printed a number of blanks which applicants are required to fill out. The statement which an applicant is required to make involves a reply to twenty-eight questions, many of which are pertinent, and several of them are impertinent. Accompanying the statement is a blank requiring the signatures of five citizens, certifying to the truthfulness of the answers and the characters of the applicant. There is also a blank which the applicant is to fill saying that if appointed he will obey the rules and orders of the police or fire department and submit to such deductions of salary as are made for delinquencies plicants are required to fill out. The of salary as are made for delinquencies or punishments. All the blanks must be sworn to. The blanks are now in the hands of Chief Seavey and Chief Gailigan, of the police and fire departments, respectively, and there are a large number of calls for them by aspiring individuals.

ROBBED OF $50.

Mrs. Mertes bas Her Pocket Picked in the Post Office.

As Mrs. J. P. Mertes was endorsing a money order at the registry window of the post office at 11 o'clock vesterday morning, her pocket was picked of a pocket book containing $50. Mrs. Mertes noticed a tall, slouchy looking man, with light mustache and dark clothes and hat, brush against her, and the next moment her purse was missing. She lives near Harris' packing house. Last February her house burned to the ground and several weeks ago her husband fell from a Union Pacific train and was permanently crippled. The old adage that misfortune never comes singly is exemplified in the case of Mrs. Mertes. The police are

Was Done in the Tribunals Yesterday Morning. For the past two months journeymen

Judge Brewer arrived from Leavenworth yester lay morning and immediately took up several cases in the United States court.

The first was that of the now celebrated waterworks case, in which Marshal Field of Chicago is the complainant. In response to the latter's request, an injunction was granted restraining the company from transferring stock or material to others or making the contemplated removal to Florence.

General Webster and Judge Lake appeared for the plaintiff pesterday morning and moved to set aside the injunction for a number of reasons, among them being the fact that the American Waterworks company and the Farmer's Loan and Trust company were not made defendants; that the facts, as stated in the petition did not entitle the plaintiff to relief; that there are other stockholders who are not made parties to the suit; that the whole equity of the bill is denied, and several other reasons.

Their reasons are based upon affidavits of John H. Dumont, S. R. Johnson, Milton Rogers, W. V. Morse, W. A. Underwood, S. L. Wiley. These affidavits are voluminous, that of Wiley tending to show that the works as built in 1880 were but addressed to show the statement of the sta but adequate to supply water to a city of not more than 30,000 inhabitants; that the engines of the works were not equal to the strain upon them, the pipes too small to supply the demand, and as a consequence it was necessary to make the improvements now contemplated by the company. The other affidavits tend to show that Field through his agent Bliss was informed of the changes and moves which were contemplated and made.

In the police court yesterday morning there was an uncommonly arge nun ber of prisoners to face the judge upon the announcement that the court room was open. Fifty culprits were ranged about the bar. The greater number were charged with disturbing the peace, caused by a too free indulgence in the cool and foaming lager, and there were also a good number of vagrants. ### AMUSEMENTS.

The Elks Benefit One of the Greatest Successes of the Year.

The remarkable success which has attended every undertaking of the Elks since their organization in this city less than two years ago received another striking exemplification last night in their first annual benefit at the Boyd. Every seat in the house had been sold, and eager friends of both the association and the star stood out the performance in parquet, circle and balcony. Like the members of the order, the greater number of those in the lower parts of the house were from the leading social circles of the city. In appearance the au-dience suggested that which greeted the first appearance of Booth a few weeks ago. It was a deserved compliment not less to the star than to the benevolent organization of which he is a member. "Humbug" has been played here fre quently enough to be familiar. It is a continual succession of surprises. One complication has hardly been formed in the development of the plot before another succeeds which serves to heighten the interest to the utmost. In the last act, when there is every reason to be-lieve the climax of ubsurdity and novelty of complication has been reached, the auditor is disappointed to find that still another is to be added to the list. And the last is by far the funniest. Mr. Reed of cours sustains the weight of the comic features. He worms him-self out of all difficulties with masterly cheek and impudence and no small amount of incenuity. At the same time he keeps the audience in the best of humor, the applause frequently being loud and general. His company is a good one and give him excellent support. Between the second and third acts Mr. Reed and Miss Patrice were called be-fore the curtain. After they had been applauded Miss Patrice retired, and Mr. Reed turning toward Mr. Boyd's box ad-dressed Exalted Ruler Babcock, setting forth the pleasure it gave him to take a part in a benefit for their beloved association, the benevolent order of Elks. He recounted with pleasure the enjoy-ment he had experienced at their hands on his last visit, and the devotion to the order he had seen manifested. As an evidence of the appreciation of this spirit he took the liberty of presenting to the Omaha lodge the Elk's head which hung before them. He then digressed into a neat and comic little speech, happily touching up the rapidity with which the Murray building is being completed, the prohibition question, the quantity of water in our recent rains, the "horns" which the Elks enjoyed and several other interesting features. one of his sallies was received with peals of laughter and applause. At the close of his address, Edward Larkin, in behalf of the order, accepted the elk's head in a short speech. The head stood to the right of the proscenium arch and the shield was draped in the colors of the order. It is the most beautiful clk's head ever seen in Omaha, and its owner, when in life, must have been a veritable monarch of the torest. After the performance the lodge held a social, at which Mr. Reed and company were in attendance.

Doubless a great deal of their success is due to the untiring efforts of their musical director, Mr. Young, who deserves compliments for his work. The concert will be one of the best ever repdered here, and it has already attracted a great deal of attention of the people of the city.

They will be gone about four months, and both will visit the old homes and friends in Denmark. They will sail from NewYork on Saturday next in the steamer Hecla.

Those Gas Burners. The gas burners found on Saturday last by three A. D. T. boys are still at the office of the company, on Douglas street, and if not claimed soon, will be disposed of for the benefit of the finders. They were undoubtedly stolen from some gas fitting shop, and are worthy of being looked after.

TYPES ARE STUPID

When we want them to tell a convincing story about our clothing. The types will tell you that the prices are the lowest in the city, but an examination of the garments alone will convince you how good they are, and that they are really sold far below their value. Our stock is unquestionably the largest and most comprehensive in the city and is not exceeded in extent or variety by those of even the most important houses in the east. Knowing we have a large trade and perfect facilities, manufacturers and importers give us first choice on lots on which they are overstocked, and which they have to sacrifice. If the goods are strictly desirable we command the lowest prices by paying prompt cash, no matter how large the lot. The system of selling every article at a very small profit and marking down at even less than cost, those goods which do not move quickly, is a ruling principle of our business.

Today we are opening several lots of flannel and mohair coats and yests, bought at about one half the price that was asked for them early in the season, and we have marked them accordingly.

All goods marked in plain figures and at one price.
