

GERMANY'S THREE INVALIDS.

The Condition of the Emperor, Bismarck, and the Crown Prince.

ALL THREE IN GOOD HEALTH.

The Kaiser Expected to Still Further Improve By His Coming Trip to Ems—Sunday Jubilee Services.

Germany's Royal Sick.

Copyright 1887, by James Gordon Bennett. BERLIN, June 19.—[New York Herald Cable—Special to the BEE.]—Three statements have concentrated the attention of all Germany upon themselves to such an extent that during the week politics and general news have given way to gossip about the health of one or that one of the famous invalids. The emperor passed the crisis of his illness last week, but nevertheless only on Thursday of this week began again anything like his regular routine. Bismarck's illness, though little spoken about, seemed for a day to be more serious than either of the others. I am told that neuralgia twinges kept the prince awake night after night until he was exhausted from the constant strain that seemed to threaten a general break up of his system. Early in the week, while the emperor was still fighting for his life, Berlin gossips whispered that Bismarck was too good a courtier to go before his master or to wait long after him. The house also seemed to be somewhat of this opinion, for stocks, which were only slightly affected by the emperor's illness, and not even momentarily lowered by the crown prince's danger, were for two days considerably depressed by the prince's condition. For two days also the "health of Prince Bismarck" formed the central point of every money article to the exclusion even of such exciting topics as the new Serbian cabinet or the prospective failure of the Italian loan. Bismarck was better on Thursday. He saw both the emperor and Prince William. This summer rest will, it is said, put his health again beyond the danger point.

THE CROWN PRINCE'S CONDITION.

Regarding the crown prince, I send here an interview with Prof. Virchow, the greatest living authority on cancer. By a microscopic examination of the sections cut from the prince's throat Dr. Virchow saved him from an operation seriously endangering his voice, and even life itself. At present accounts Virchow and other eminent authorities say the crown prince is not only no danger, but is in much better condition than many other persons who have been completely cured of this throat trouble. So far from being unique is the prince's disease that half a dozen more or less eminent speakers have been cured of the same disease in various European countries during the past few years. The truth seems to be that a wife's over-activity, together with repeated superstition that the emperor would be benefited by his grandson, led to entirely too much importance being attached to what, in a less excited personage be regarded as a very common place trouble. Add to this the sensational lying of one London and half a dozen Paris papers and the nervousness of several other London papers, and you have a disease new to them but old to throat specialists, and you have the secret of the great amount of fuss made over his illness.

THE EMPEROR'S HEALTH.

Unfortunately the great anxiety felt regarding the emperor has more serious foundation. A cold was caught at Niel when he refused to leave the winter quarters of his reviewing steamer because "Sailors are soldiers have a chance to see me hold with old soldiers contempt for carriages. I might as well be enclosed in a carriage as down below there in the cabin." This cold shook the emperor more than any illness since he began his second youth. His strength has more been exhausted by his recovery has been slower and more difficult than ever before. Bladder pains caused by gravel have repeatedly kept him awake at night and drained his strength. The wonderful old man, accustomed with surprising ease to throw off all sickness, has somewhat retarded his recovery by imprudence. Sunday, in the momentary absence of his attendants, he attempted to rise as usual. When being lifted up he said, with something between a laugh and a groan, "I thought myself strong enough to pull up the trees by the roots, help daunt, lehe coente, noch baume, ausziehen." Since then he has been more cautious. To ward the end of the week he without regular appearances at the window of the palace, he has been arranged for the emperor to start for Ems on the 25th, but he will be forced to make the journey in two days, as last year he fainted on arrival at Ems. Three weeks at Ems, three or four days on a little island near Constance, three weeks at Gastein from the summer programme. At Gastein two emperors will certainly meet, and it is said on good authority that a third emperor will be present. One great medical authority said to me recently: "The emperor's vitality is so wonderful that once get him away from Berlin into the open air and he will probably quickly get back his strength and be as fresh and strong as ever. Pleasant stories are continually coming to light to show how justly he is the most beloved ruler of modern history. Recently after eight-year-old peasant child of Erefeld wrote the emperor asking him if he would send his picture to her little brother and self. Her letter was addressed to king in Berlin, but signed simply "Marianna." Accordingly the emperor had the school registers that postal district searched till Marianna was found, and then his picture to her.

Amenities in Berlin.

Copyright 1887, by James Gordon Bennett. BERLIN, June 19.—[New York Herald Cable—Special to the BEE.]—Berlin is overflowing with Americans. I counted seven Americans among the twenty passengers in a single horse car the other day. They come mainly, however, for three or four days; then are off to spend time and money at the baths or in Paris.

Bishop Nind, Methodist, returning from a duty tour through the far east, was here with his wife and daughter last Monday, and preached at the German Methodist church through an interpreter. Tuesday he went to Cassel to preside at a conference of the Methodist church of Germany and Switzerland held there Sunday. The bishop goes to Scandinavia. Prof. Terry, of the Garrett Biblical Institute, who has been studying in Berlin, also went to the conference.

Among the more prominent residents of Berlin and New York R. Harold Fries, recently of Columbia college, has greatly distinguished himself. Berlin is a notoriously difficult university to pass examination, but Fries this week took the degree of doctor of philosophy before the "ex-professors." In granting the degree the "ex-professors" called attention to the fact that the university never before granted this degree of chemistry to a young applicant. Fries now goes to Paris and London for some months' work, and home in October.

Soiling, assistant librarian of the state department, is among the buyers attracted by Berlin's growing importance as a library center. Prof. Beck, of Philadelphia, has also been here on the same errand. Prof. Terry, of Evanston, though not buying books has been here partly as an advisor in the sale of the Ranke library. This library is now having a manuscript index by Dr. Wiedemann, Ranke's former assistant. There are also 3,000 volumes to be rebound, so it will not reach America until about six months. Senator Lowry, of Minneapolis, Henry Harstich, of Gould's St. Louis transportation company, and Gustave Schwab are among the more prominent Americans who have come and gone during the week.

Sale of the Lonsdale Effects.

Copyright 1887, by James Gordon Bennett. LONDON, June 19.—[New York Herald Cable—Special to the BEE.]—And now the Lonsdale town mansion and Tames villa are advertised for sale in the auction sale. The personal sale has been described in the Herald, and up to last night had realized $250,000. Some prices were extraordinary. A picture of Mme. de Pompadour brought $47,000; two panels of old Gobelin tapestry fetched $7,000; a Marie Antoinette bedstead brought $2,000; Lord Crew, brother-in-law of the late Lord Houghton, paid $15,000 for a landscape. A Gainsborough rural scene brought $5,000, being 75 less than the late Lord Lonsdale paid for ten years ago. Robespierre, an original portrait by Gruze, fetched only $750, but Charnesley Corday's brought $11,000. I understand that Mr. Rosebery and Lady de Gray, Gladstone and Countess Lonsdale, who attended every day, bought many lots through agents. There will be a large attendance to-morrow at an auction sale of the Chinese curiosities, which doubtless many American tourists have seen in the South Kensington museum, to which they were lent by the owner, who recently died. The sales of property of the family are attested weekly by frequently ten, sometimes twenty columns of advertisements in the Times of sales of estates, town mansions and contents, libraries and jewels. The most important sale of the latter is the Lonsdale sale, announced for next Friday by Lonsdale's auctioneers. These are the property of the family of a deceased millionaire. These circumstances are, as it were, evicting English landlords of their own household treasures. Even the queen's jubilee domains were yesterday invaded by the hammer of the auctioneer. His work was in the paddock at Hampton, sold for the sale of royal yearlings. The young Duke of Portland, on the advice of his trainer, a nephew of Matt Dawson, ventured $50 for a bright-eyed bay filly, which had Valour for a sire and Periwig for a dam, and Sherwood, the trainer, picked out two fillies, one of Hampton's, and two colts, one of Rosicrucian, which he paid $500 for. For other Rosicrucian colts, Dactyl, Dactyl Baird paid $5,000. For a chestnut filly, by Hampton, Lord Rodney gave a similar sum. He also took a Manchester brown colt for $300.

By the way, the statement cabled over to some American papers that the queen's cream ponies have false tails is a hoax.

THE QUEEN'S JUBILEE.

Visiting Royalty Attend Church Services in London. LONDON, June 19.—The prince of Wales and his sons met the duke of Sax-Coburg-Gotha, and Prince Merman, of Hohenlohe, on their arrival in London yesterday. The streets of the city were thronged with people, eager to see the visiting royalty. The prince of Wales, and his sons met the duke of Sax-Coburg-Gotha, and Prince Merman, of Hohenlohe, on their arrival in London yesterday. The streets of the city were thronged with people, eager to see the visiting royalty. The prince of Wales, and his sons met the duke of Sax-Coburg-Gotha, and Prince Merman, of Hohenlohe, on their arrival in London yesterday. The streets of the city were thronged with people, eager to see the visiting royalty.

A Cardinal's Kind Words.

LONDON, June 19.—Cardinal Manning, in a letter to the clergy under him, says: "No sovereign in our long annals has been more loved or has won the love of the people as her majesty Queen Victoria. She has shown herself to be the mother of her people, and her heart is bright and spotless examples for all who reign and pattern for all people. Yield him an am, with joy, extends to the heavenly Father thanking prayers for her majesty on the jubilee of her just and happy reign."

A Jubilee Riot.

LONDON, June 19.—A riot occurred during the jubilee celebration at Liverpool to-day between a party of Orangemen and a crowd of Irishmen. The riot was caused by the use of men on both sides receiving serious cuts and bruises. The police dispersed the rioters and arrested five of the leading participants.

O'Brien's Dublin Ovation.

DUBLIN, June 19.—William O'Brien arrived here this evening, and was received with the greatest ovation witnessed here in many years.

FAILED TO AGREE.

The Shellenberger Jury Discharged After Seventy-two Hours. LINCOLN, Neb., June 19.—[Special Telegram to the BEE.]—To-night the Shellenberger jury ended its seventy-two hours' existence in the jury room, and the empanelled jurors appeared before Judge Jones on his summons, and were discharged. From first to last in their long confinement they failed utterly to agree upon a verdict, and the long and expensive Mrs. Shellenberger murder case will have to be retried. Some of the jurors were loud in their complaints against the judge for their long incarceration.

Fremont's Street Railway.

FREMONT, June 19.—[Special to the BEE.]—At the election held yesterday to grant a franchise to the Fremont street railway company 254 votes were cast for and 8 against the proposition. Work will be at once, and two miles of road will be built this year.

He Just Doted on Thackeray.

Boston, June 19.—A lady of my acquaintance here in Boston, a great reader of fiction, and one of those fortunate people who are able to lose themselves completely in a book, told me that Thackeray's works were her only alleviation while suffering recently from a severe attack of rheumatism. She was a graphic description of herself, propped up in bed by means of pillows, groaning with pain, and reading the big library edition of "Vanity Fair," held in front of her by the nurse. This was a sight more eloquent than any pangency, and it is a thousand pities if Thackeray did not see it through shades which he wanders, suppose, in company with Fleming, Cervantes and Stiefler.

Wells College Commencement.

HESTER, N. Y., June 19.—Commencement at Wells college, Aurora, began this evening, when the baccalaureate sermon was delivered at the Presbyterian church by Dr. Edward Frisbee, president of the college. Mrs. Cleveland was present and also attended divine service this morning at the same church. Mrs. Cleveland is looking in excellent health and evidently having a very enjoyable time.

Another South Carolina Shake.

CHARLESTON, June 19.—The News and Courier reports a startling shock of earthquake at Summerville at 10:37 this morning, accompanied by the most prolonged roaring heard since October 20 last year. Charleston is quiet.

GENERAL DRUM INDIGNANT.

He Declines That He Advised Cleveland's Recent Rebel Flag Blunder.

MILES A MUCH INJURED MAN.

Army Officers Think a Great Injustice Has Been Done Him By Secretary of the War Endicott—National Capital Notes.

A Muffed Drum.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—[Special Telegram to the BEE.]—The long silence General Drum may break the silence about the battle flag drama. He has been charged with being a republican, and this he will not stand. Some of the newspapers, in trying to defend the president, have asserted that Cleveland was led into making his treacherous blunder by the republican adjutant general, who probably had sinister motives. This is what general Drum. He has been a life long democrat of the strictest sort. During the war, because of his southern relations and his suspected secession sympathies, he was not sent to the front at all, but was transferred to the Pacific coast. Then he came back to Washington he continued to make offensive to his political sympathies. Cleveland's election set him wild with delight and he has ever since worked to strengthen the hands of the democratic president. He thought this could be done by sending back the rebel flag on a quiet question.

Miles and Endicott.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—[Special Telegram to the BEE.]—The Sunday Herald, which is regarded as an authority on army matters, says to-day: "There is a matter in it claimed and believed by the army, excepting perhaps one or two of the staff bureaus, that the secretary of war has committed an act of great injustice. It will be remembered that when Secretary Endicott made his last annual report, by reason of inadequate and imperfect information, he commented upon General Miles and his conduct of the Geronimo affair in Arizona in a way which that officer's friends considered markedly unjust. General Miles has made a reputation in his management of Indian affairs that is unequalled by any other officer of the army. He has successfully repelled five Indian wars, by the capture of the hostiles, and has never been defeated in action. With such a record as this, his friends in the army and navy are indignant that he should be thus censured under a partial knowledge of the facts. The matter was reported to several army officers, and they currently reported that he promised to make the amende in some public form. 'If he has done so, it has not been heard of,' said an officer of rank, who has been in the range and other properties in the northwest. Considerable was done in all loans at 50 per cent, but as the week drew to a close the market returned to something like a normal condition, and plenty of money was available for the purchase of bonds and other exceptional transactions as low as 2 3/8 per cent."

THE CLEARANCE RECORD.

Monetary Transactions in the Country During the Past Week. BOSTON, June 19.—[Special Telegram to the BEE.]—The following table compiled from dispatches to the Post from managers leading clearing houses of the United States shows the average for the week ending June 18, 1887, with rates per cent. of increase or decrease, as compared with gross exchanges for corresponding week in 1886:

Table with columns: CITIES, CLEARINGS, Increase, Decrease. Lists cities like New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, etc., with their respective clearing amounts and percentage changes.

Weekly Crop Summary.

CHICAGO, June 19.—The following is the weekly crop summary printed by the Farmers' Review at this date of writing: The winter wheat crop in all sections has so far advanced to such a point that the ripening or rust should damage the ripening grain. Eight winter wheat growing states report the average condition of the crop at 89 per cent. Our reports on its condition in the different states is as follows: Twenty counties in Illinois report an average condition of 90 per cent. Insect and drought are little complained of. Eight counties in Indiana report the condition at 90 per cent. Kansas counties report an improvement in the crop; the damage by insects is very serious in Marshall, Smith, Franklin and Neosho counties. Kentucky reports an average condition of 90 per cent. with damage by insects in Hardin county. Michigan reports an average condition of 90 per cent. Missouri counties report the average condition at 100 per cent. Ten counties in Ohio report a condition of 65 per cent. Wisconsin counties place the average at 95 per cent. with damage by chinch bugs in Cottage county. The condition of spring wheat in the different states is as follows: Kansas counties report an average condition of 63 per cent. Seventeen counties in Iowa place the average at 94 per cent. Eleven Michigan counties report an average of 90 per cent. Nebraska counties place the average at 90 per cent., and six counties in Dakota at an average of 100 per cent. Hard frosts and crop from drought and insects is everywhere evident. Corn prospects are first class in all areas as short from drought. The fruit prospects are fair.

THE WEEK IN WALL STREET.

The Wheat and Coffee Callouses React Against the Share List.

OMAHA COMES OUT ON TOP.

The Lincoln Defeated By a Score of Fourteen to Twelve.

BUY IT TOOK TWO UMPIRES.

Saucy Players Promptly Fined For Their Impudence—Kansas City Defeats St. Joe—Other Sports—Lincoln Locked.

It was warm for the affluent in the grand stand. It was hot for the impecunious on the delectable boards, and it was incandescent for the hapless Lincoln's on the diamond. But notwithstanding the torrid meteorological condition of things, it is a very sizable crowd of men, young and old, that delights in a Sunday game of ball hereabouts. The sun poured down with a vengeance, and a sultry breeze was blowing, but for all that nearly 2,000 men and boys hurried through the turnstile at the Omaha park yesterday afternoon, filled the grand stand and crowded the 25-cent seats, till they were as a swarm of flies on a piece of bread and molasses. In the opening inning Swift went out from Hall to Beckley, then Walsh made second on a hit past Lang and a fumble by Tooley. Dwyer retired on a throw by Rowe to first. Walsh was out, where he was left, Krehmeyer picked out on a high fly to center.

For the Lincoln's Hall flew out to Bader. Beckley made second, three sacks over Messitt's head, and came in on Lang's safe to center. Shafter hit to short, forcing Lang to center. Messitt's head, and came in on Lang's safe to center. Shafter hit to short, forcing Lang to center. Messitt's head, and came in on Lang's safe to center.

Then in the fourth they evened it better. Shafter hit a corker which Rourke allowed to go through. Then in the fourth they evened it better. Shafter hit a corker which Rourke allowed to go through. Then in the fourth they evened it better. Shafter hit a corker which Rourke allowed to go through.

But you have heard how Leonidas, clad in the panoply of his armor, stood in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae.

But you have heard how Leonidas, clad in the panoply of his armor, stood in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae.

But you have heard how Leonidas, clad in the panoply of his armor, stood in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae.

But you have heard how Leonidas, clad in the panoply of his armor, stood in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae.

But you have heard how Leonidas, clad in the panoply of his armor, stood in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae.

But you have heard how Leonidas, clad in the panoply of his armor, stood in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae.

But you have heard how Leonidas, clad in the panoply of his armor, stood in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae.

But you have heard how Leonidas, clad in the panoply of his armor, stood in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae.

But you have heard how Leonidas, clad in the panoply of his armor, stood in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae.

But you have heard how Leonidas, clad in the panoply of his armor, stood in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae.

But you have heard how Leonidas, clad in the panoply of his armor, stood in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae.

But you have heard how Leonidas, clad in the panoply of his armor, stood in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae.

But you have heard how Leonidas, clad in the panoply of his armor, stood in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae.

But you have heard how Leonidas, clad in the panoply of his armor, stood in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae.

OMAHA COMES OUT ON TOP.

The Lincoln Defeated By a Score of Fourteen to Twelve.

BUY IT TOOK TWO UMPIRES.

Saucy Players Promptly Fined For Their Impudence—Kansas City Defeats St. Joe—Other Sports—Lincoln Locked.

Lincoln Locked.

It was warm for the affluent in the grand stand. It was hot for the impecunious on the delectable boards, and it was incandescent for the hapless Lincoln's on the diamond. But notwithstanding the torrid meteorological condition of things, it is a very sizable crowd of men, young and old, that delights in a Sunday game of ball hereabouts. The sun poured down with a vengeance, and a sultry breeze was blowing, but for all that nearly 2,000 men and boys hurried through the turnstile at the Omaha park yesterday afternoon, filled the grand stand and crowded the 25-cent seats, till they were as a swarm of flies on a piece of bread and molasses. In the opening inning Swift went out from Hall to Beckley, then Walsh made second on a hit past Lang and a fumble by Tooley. Dwyer retired on a throw by Rowe to first. Walsh was out, where he was left, Krehmeyer picked out on a high fly to center.

For the Lincoln's Hall flew out to Bader. Beckley made second, three sacks over Messitt's head, and came in on Lang's safe to center. Shafter hit to short, forcing Lang to center. Messitt's head, and came in on Lang's safe to center. Shafter hit to short, forcing Lang to center. Messitt's head, and came in on Lang's safe to center.

Then in the fourth they evened it better. Shafter hit a corker which Rourke allowed to go through. Then in the fourth they evened it better. Shafter hit a corker which Rourke allowed to go through. Then in the fourth they evened it better. Shafter hit a corker which Rourke allowed to go through.

But you have heard how Leonidas, clad in the panoply of his armor, stood in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae.

But you have heard how Leonidas, clad in the panoply of his armor, stood in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae.

But you have heard how Leonidas, clad in the panoply of his armor, stood in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae.

But you have heard how Leonidas, clad in the panoply of his armor, stood in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae.

But you have heard how Leonidas, clad in the panoply of his armor, stood in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae.

But you have heard how Leonidas, clad in the panoply of his armor, stood in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae.

But you have heard how Leonidas, clad in the panoply of his armor, stood in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae.

But you have heard how Leonidas, clad in the panoply of his armor, stood in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae.

But you have heard how Leonidas, clad in the panoply of his armor, stood in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae.

But you have heard how Leonidas, clad in the panoply of his armor, stood in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae.

But you have heard how Leonidas, clad in the panoply of his armor, stood in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae.

But you have heard how Leonidas, clad in the panoply of his armor, stood in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae.

But you have heard how Leonidas, clad in the panoply of his armor, stood in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae.

But you have heard how Leonidas, clad in the panoply of his armor, stood in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae.

But you have heard how Leonidas, clad in the panoply of his armor, stood in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae.

But you have heard how Leonidas, clad in the panoply of his armor, stood in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae.

But you have heard how Leonidas, clad in the panoply of his armor, stood in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae.

OMAHA COMES OUT ON TOP.

The Lincoln Defeated By a Score of Fourteen to Twelve.

BUY IT TOOK TWO UMPIRES.

Saucy Players Promptly Fined For Their Impudence—Kansas City Defeats St. Joe—Other Sports—Lincoln Locked.

Lincoln Locked.

It was warm for the affluent in the grand stand. It was hot for the impecunious on the delectable boards, and it was incandescent for the hapless Lincoln's on the diamond. But notwithstanding the torrid meteorological condition of things, it is a very sizable crowd of men, young and old, that delights in a Sunday game of ball hereabouts. The sun poured down with a vengeance, and a sultry breeze was blowing, but for all that nearly 2,000 men and boys hurried through the turnstile at the Omaha park yesterday afternoon, filled the grand stand and crowded the 25-cent seats, till they were as a swarm of flies on a piece of bread and molasses. In the opening inning Swift went out from Hall to Beckley, then Walsh made second on a hit past Lang and a fumble by Tooley. Dwyer retired on a throw by Rowe to first. Walsh was out, where he was left, Krehmeyer picked out on a high fly to center.

For the Lincoln's Hall flew out to Bader. Beckley made second, three sacks over Messitt's head, and came in on Lang's safe to center. Shafter hit to short, forcing Lang to center. Messitt's head, and came in on Lang's safe to center. Shafter hit to short, forcing Lang to center. Messitt's head, and came in on Lang's safe to center.

Then in the fourth they evened it better. Shafter hit a corker which Rourke allowed to go through. Then in the fourth they evened it better. Shafter hit a corker which Rourke allowed to go through. Then in the fourth they evened it better. Shafter hit a corker which Rourke allowed to go through.

But you have heard how Leonidas, clad in the panoply of his armor, stood in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae.

But you have heard how Leonidas, clad in the panoply of his armor, stood in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae.

But you have heard how Leonidas, clad in the panoply of his armor, stood in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae, and stemmed the tide of Persian footmen, but you ought to have seen the Omaha jump upon Mr. Hart in the park at Thermopylae.

But you have heard how Leonidas, clad in the panoply of his armor, stood in the