THE TRIAL OF DR. DOGGE.

Herold Gets Out of the Penitnetiary and Eeeks to Recovery His Porperty.

A VARIED MASS OF TESTIMONY

An Elk Creek Grain Firm Sues the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy For Rebates Due Them-Capital City News.

IFROM THE BEE'S LINCOLN BUR EAU.] The trial of Dr. O. H. Dogge and wife, In the district court, is attracting much attention from attorneys and spectators at the bar. The case is that of the credstors of C. G. Herold, who seek to recover from the Dogges money alleged to have been received by Dogge from Herold at the time of the latter's failure, when the two were in cellusion. Two years ago the case was somewhat different, when Herold was prosecuted and sent to the penitentiary, at which time Dogge helped to send him there. The case is reversed now, and Herold, pardoned out of the penitentiary, sits on one side of the table helping as best he can to prove that Dogge received his property at the time of his failure, and ought to surrender it now to the creditors. The love between Dogge and Herold at the present is not such as bound Damon and Pythias, and they never speak as they pass by in going to and from the court room. The case has aiready occupied four days, and if the mass of testimony receives the attention of Judge Chapman during the coming dog days, that gentleman will be more attenuated than he is at the present time. It is a study for an artist and an expert in perjury to sit and listen to the testi-mony. When one side is testifying the principals on the other side sit and smile incredulous smiles as though wondering at the depravity of the testimony, and when the parties are reversed the smile of unbelief gleams on the countenances of the other side, except when a shadow crosses the features indicative of remorse that they did not do better themselves when they were on the stand. Additional complications are given to the case through the fact that all parties have testified heretofore and the monumental differences in the testimony on the different occasions becomes very apparent to those who have watched the different yesterday was the showing on the part of the defense that Mrs. Dogge, who has all the family property in her own name, brought a large sum with her when she came from Wisconsin, and that it is this property and its accumulations that the prosecution are attempting to gain pos-session of in settlement of the Herald debts. When the testimony is all in and written out by the reporter it will make a volume of truly wonderful statements.

James D. Russell, of Elk Creek, Johnson county, assignee of McLure & Griffin, has commenced suit in the Lancaster county district court to recover rebate due McLure & Griffin from the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad on grain shipped by the above firm to Chicago over that company's lines. The petition recites that a contract was made between McLure & Griffin on the one part and the railroad on the other by which the company was as a common carrier to transport corn from Elk Creek, Neb., to Chicago for 30 cents per 100 pounds, and, further, that on payment of this the sum of 10 cents per 100 was to be paid back to the grain firm. The firm of McLure & Griffin, in the month of October, 1886, shipped corn over the railroad for which the company demanded and received the company demanded and received $1,670 as freight at 30 cents per 100. The allegation is that the 10 cent rebate was never paid back by the railroad, and that consequently there is due the plaintiff the sum of $566 as said rebate under the contract, and that this sum is now in the hands of defendant and wrongfully withheld under the contract. The defendant, it is claimed, has been repeatedly notified of the debt, but refuses to pay, and therefore judgment is asked for the entire amount, with interest from October 18, 1886, at 10 per cent. Judge S. P. Davidson, of Tecumseh, is the attorney of record for the plaintiff.

A COMING ATTRACTION. allegation is that the 10 cent rebate was

Mr. William Harrigan, the wide-awake advance agent of the Harrigan Park Theatre company, was in Lincoln yester-day arranging for a date for his people, and visiting with his old-time acquaint-ance, Hon. D. G. Courtnay, chairman of the republican congressional committee. The date secured for Lincoln precedes the dates selected for the company's appearance in Omaha, and the company will present the play, "Cordelia's Aspirations." There are forty-seven people in the company, and one of the great attrac-tions is Dave Braham's orchestra, that has an extended reputation in all sections

This will be five stories and basement and when completed will be one of the most imposing buildings in the capital city. The B. & M. will lay a track into the building for convenience in handling heavy freights and the company was engaged yesterday in laying a track from the new freight depot to the place. While graders were engaged in leveling the ground around the new B. & M. freight depot yesterday a valuable team driven by one of the men fell into an abandoned well. A crowd of unusual di-mensions was soon at the scene, a der-rick was secured, and in an hour both horses were recovered alive but some-

The post-mortem held on the remains of Byron; the man killed in the railroad wreck, was held under the charge of Dr. Hart Wednesday evening and everything was proven satisfactorily that his death was entirely from the accident and from no other causes whatever.

Judge Pound and Court Reporter Mullon arrived home from Nebraska City yesterday. They learned of the escape of Quin Bohanan only an hour before leaving, but Mr. Mulion in that time visited the jail and the cell from which the bird had wn. There was a pack of cards and a cribbage board in the cell, an ink-stand and other materials of that kind. Mr. Mullen states that Quin was a great chese player, having his own board and calling moves through a hole in the wall to a prisoner in the adjoining cell. Bohanan has lately been examined by the county superintendent of Otoe county for a teacher's certificate, and he passed a satisfactory examination. If he had the certificate with him, it would introduce him to appropriate

THE COURTS. What the Judges and Clients Did in Them This Morning.

Frank Fowler has sued Abram and William H. Pruyn on a note, $277.22, in the county court.

A very rich and racy divorce suit, that of Warren Cochran against Katie Ray Cochran, with Estabrook & Irvine for plaintiff and Shoemaker for defendant, is being heard before Judge Wakeley. Cochran wants to be liberated from martial ties on the grounds of bigamy and general looseness on the part of his wife, and she, in a counter-petition, asks for a decree of divorce from him, alleging extreme cruelty and neglect. Cochran is an old man probably seventy years of age, and with his bald head and long, white beard, resembles very closely patriarch that ornaments all Jacob's Oil signs; while I Cochran is a woman of not the thirty-three, petit in form, with big light-gray eyes and a profusion of taffy-colored angs. She is a woman of considerable intelligence, and tells her story with a glibness and a graphieness that greatly heightens its interest. She told how she had met the "wicked, old man," as she styles him, through an advertisement in a paper; how she was induced to leave er home at North Bend and marry him, by promises of a palutial home and a life of ease and luxury in Omaha; how she found an empty, barren cottage when she got here, how she cooked his supper, cut his beard and bathed him; how she dressed and cooked the chickens he surreptitiously entired from the coops of his neighbors, and how, finally, he with-drew the warmth of his love from her and bestowed it upon a raw German servantgirl; how he borrowed and squan-dered her money, beat and knocked her about like an old discarded pedal en-velope, and capped the climax one night by bodily firing her out of the door. Sh told all this and volumes besides, and made herself out a much-abused and maltreated creature. On the other side, it is alleged, that when Katie married Cochran she said she was a widow, that her dead husband's name was Joseph Rhul, but her story, at the time was considered by the old gentleman's friends as a trifle umbrageous, and after the infelbegan to crop out, they began to inquire into the matter, and a detective discovered that Ruhi was not dead, but that he was alive and conducting some sort of a joint in Rochester, in Y. Mrs. Cochran, on being apprised of this de-velopment, declared that she had never their marriage because she wanted to, and that there had never been anything criminal about her relations with Ruhl or any other man.

In the Vollmer murder trial, before Judge Groff, the argument was closed yes-terday morning by County Attorney Sim-eral, and at 12 o'clock the case was given to the jury, who, as yet, have not repor-been married to Rhul, but had lived with him, and that she had told the story of

It was 12 o'clock when the jury in the case retired. The judge charged the jury and in defining their duties and degrees of manslaughter and murder second degree, the latter being the charge upon which Vallmer was indicted, brought out the point that if the jury found that Vallmer believed the life of Schell was in danger when he fired the fatal shot, he should be acquitted of the charge. The various authorities were cited on the point. At 3:40 o'clock the jury filed back into the court room and announced that an agreement had been reached. There was quite a crowd pre-sent and upon the verdict being announced Vollmer was visibly affected. The jury found him guilty of murder in the second degree, with a recommendation for mercy. The lowest penalty for he crime is ten years in the penitentiary and the extreme punishment is life sentence. Valimer will be sentenced on Saturday.

The jury in the case of Winnie McDermott vs. the Omaha Belt railway, for $10,0000 damages, returned a verdict of $3,000 in favor of the plaintiff.

POLICE COURT POINTERS. George Hoffman appeared to answer to the charge of keeping a vicious and dangerous dog. He said their was no danger from the brute as he kept him chained, but as he had no license for keeping the dog, the judge said he ought to be shot. Hoffman pleaded and the case was continued until Monday.

Al. Benford also had a vicious canine, but as he was desirous of furnishing certain evidence, his case also went over until to-day.

Among the usual batch of drunks, dis-orderlies and vags, William Grey, a chronic and, Joseph Thomas were sent up for lifteen and five days respectively on bread and aqua distillati.

FOR DEPARTED BROTHERS. Free Masons Hold a Lodge of Sorrow

-Impressive Rites. For the third time in the history of the city the order of the Aucient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Free Masons held a lodge of sorrow in the Masonic lodge room at the corner of Sixteenth street and Capital avenue. The lodge was held in memory of three members of the order who have died during the past year: Enoch Benjamin Carter and Gustavus Stevenson, of Omaha, and Henry Baxter Nicodemus, of Fremont.

At the east end of the hall sat three empty chairs, and back of them were the shields belonging to each of the de-ceased brothers. Above them hung a silk banner in which was worked three beautiful black crosses on a pink ground. In front of the platform sat the venerable master, William Cleburne. On his right was Robert C. Jordan and on his left the primate, the Rev. James Patterson. All were clothed in the black robes of the order appropriate to the occasion.

The senior warden, G. M. Nattinger, sat on the platform in the west end of the room, and the junior warden, Fred J.

Bosthwick, occupied a similar position on the south side of the room.

In the center of the room stood a tall black catafalque containing a coffin. At the west end of the coffin a candelabra of seven lights was burning. At the four corners sat the guards of honor, J. G. Woodman, R. E. Jenkinson, Michael Cody and Frederick Winning. Henry C. Aikin, the master of ceremonies, occupied a chair facing the catafalque on the northwest. The programme consisted of chants, anthems, hymns, responsive readings from the Masonic manual, and appropriate addresses by the Rey. Will-iam O. Pearson and others.

About 150 people were present, among them being several from Fremont
