BOARD OF TRANSPORTATION,

Only a Short Time Before the Railway Commission Loses Its Title.

BUT NOT ITS WORTHLESSNESS.

Lancaster County's Commissioners Offer a Reward For Quinn Bohanan-Second District Paving - Capital News.

[FROM THE BEE'S LINCOLN BUREAU.] On the 1st of July the new law comes into force that changes the old railroad commissioner system into what will be known as a board of transportation, which will be, like the commission, an evasion and farce insofar as controlling corporations and affording relief to the people. It is simply a case like a rose by any other name smelling as sweet, and the change made by the legislature leaves the law with the scent of the inoperative, expensive, farcical and utterly useless commission still upon its garments. Under the change in the law five instead of three state officers comprise the board, the land commissioner and state treasurer being added to the old board that consisted of the auditor, secretary of state and attorney general. The number of secretaries to the board remains the same; three in number, with the exception that one of them now must be a democrat. These three secretaries will be appointed prior to July 1, it taking the votes of four of the five members of the board to elect any one of the secretaries. In the select on of these secretaries it is generally understood that Judge Mason and Mr. Ager will be retained as the republican members, and that Mr. Buschow will quietly retire to make room for the democratic member. Who the democrat will be is yet an unknown question, there being a number of applicants, but among those more likely to be selected might be mentioned W. H. Munger, of Fremont, Colonel Webster, of Central City, and Beach J. Hinman, of North Platte, and it is fairly safe to state that it will be some one of the three. Mr. Munger is not an applicant for the position, but is understood that he would accept if selected, and one of the board, Attorney General Leese, has expressed himself as in favor of the man from Fremont. Both the other parties mentioned have good endorsements that have been made to different members of the board. A REWARD FOR BOHANAN.

The county commissioners yesterday, after twenty-four hours' inexcusable delay, awoke to the fact that Lancaster county was under some obligations to attempt to recover Quinn Bohanan and offered a reward of $500 for his appre-sension and return to continement. A great many citizens, including the governor and attorney general, expressed opinions freely that the county ought to move in the matter speedily, but it took twenty-four hours for the commissioners to gather themselves together sufficient to act in the premises. Governor Thayer would have offered a reward on behalf of would have offered a reward on behalf of the state had the law permitted, but the section covering cases of that kind ex-pressly provides that rewards shall be of-fered for persons who escape prior to conviction and who are to be returned for trial and sentence. The same ques-tion arose during the administration of Governor Dawes in the Zimmerman case and no reward was offered on the part of the state at that time owing to the wordthe state at that time owing to the wording of the law.

AT THE STATE HOUSE.

Articles incorporating the Pawnee county creamery were filed with the secof state yesterday. The capital stock is $5,000, in shares of $100 each, the indebtedness being limited to $2,000, the amount of stock to be subscribed before commencing business, $4,000; business to commence June 15, 1887, and to continue twenty years. The incorporators are G. A. J. Moss, M. A. Webb, L. E. Smith, W. W. Cornell, J. C. Atkinson, E. J. Hempstead, C. D. Robinson, J. N. Eckman, J. B. Erven, J. W. Beckley, F. A. Beele, R. R. The city council, that has been waiting on the kickers for a month over the question of material to be used in the second paving district, met Friday in special session and ended the foolishness by letting the contract for a cedar block pavement to correspond with the first district. The property holders in this district declared a month ago by a three-fourths majority in favor of blocks, and of late every effort has been used to upset this expression. In the meantime valuable time that ought to, every day of it, been used in getting the city out of the much has goon to of the mud, has gone to waste, and the impression was gaining as a bluff and a boom racket, and that the year would pass with nothing done. In putting a stop to this uncertainty that was a direct disadvantage to the city, the council has done the proper thing in the eyes of thousands of property holders in Lincoln who voted the bonds for paving, and are not directly interested in the and are not directly interested in the warfare that has been fomented since blocks were decided upon. "What the city wants is paving," said a prominent citizen yesterday entirely outside the warring district, "and the council has waited long enough. It has got to such a pass," continued this citizen, "that the council might wait five years, and there would still be warfare." Yesterday there was talk of injunctions to prevent carrying out the contract awarded by the ing out the contract awarded by the council, but such proceedings are danger-ous in the present progress of Lincoln.

Four of them, who were proprietors of the resorts from whence they were taken, were fined $25 and costs, and the inmates were fined $10 each and costs. Four men who were caught in the resorts were hauled up to pay $10 each and costs, and the cash rolled into the judge like half dollars in the ticket wagon of a circus. The Production Last Night of the "Pearl of Savoy."

A fairly targe and certainly a very appreciative audience greeted the production of "The Pearl of Savoy" at the Boyd last night, for "sweet charity's sake," by the Boyd dramatic company. The per formance was a very creditable one from beginning to end, and great credit is due to the entire company for their individual efforts put forth to make the presentation so successful. Mrs. W. E. Rockwell, in the role of Marie (the Pearl of Savoy), evinced talent of an unusual character, and she was more than once recalled. She possesses most attractive stage presence and acts with a studious conscientiousness which always makes her presence agreeable she made an excellent Marie and was universally appreciated.

Miss Anna Bogue, as Chanchau, enacted her part with a sweet naivety, which proved perfectly charming. Her acting, while requiring considerable cultivation, had a freshness and vivacity about it that was quite captivating. Mr. Joseph Murphy as Arthur, proved himself an actor of no mean order. has a spiendid voice and good stage presence. He had evidently studied his ines well, and took with the audience from his first appearance on the stage.

"The Pierrot" of Mr. Geo. Ostrom and

Correspondence Farmers' Review: We hear it remarked frequently that the myriads of fruit, plant and vegetable derouring insects with which we must contend to secure even a portion of either is enough to discourage those engaged in their production. From this despondant view I dissent, as we have found by the aid of science a remedy for such difficul-ties in each case as fast as they are presented, and usually the medies being a ple; indeed the main remedies being a pulication of sented, and usually the means are simpersistence in the application of the means of extermination. It some times takes a number of seasons to suffering, and the expounding, "line upon line," to awaken some to the fact that there is a remedy, and the real necessity of thorough use. Having from childhood been the watchful guardian of plant life in and out doors, I confess to a blood-thirtiness for the destruction of all such pests and a propensity to destroy them, so when our learned scientists show us a way I make haste in its prac-tice. Wormy apples have been a "thorn in the flesh" with us as with every orchardist we know for years. We have kept the swine in the orchard from the first falling of green apples and until they were fattened, have plowed, planted, seeded by turns, with no perceptible diminution of the enemy which forestalled us in the possession of spy and baldwin, and all other delights of this orchard, until disgust took the place of appetite for apples. Last spring the remedy proposed by, I think, Prof. Cook, to spray the trees with London purple or Paris green, was in this wise: If only one spraying can be attended to, let it be when apples are the size of peas, but if two, which is better, let the first be done when the flowers fade. We sprayed at the time when the fade. We sprayed at the than and no larger, fruit was the size of peas, and no larger, The and it was emphatically the thing. The yield was immense, of good sound fruit, and bushels of apples with never a worm.

It seemed miraculous. I advise every one who owns an apple tree to spray it with a solution of Paris green. This spraying comes at a busy season, but it is a job that can be hurried through, and 300 to 400 trees can be done in a day with water handy. I think the best guide for strength of solution is the color of it, and should be only a pale green, as no doubt if too strong the foliage and likely the fruit will be blackened, or as if scorched, and enough is just enough. We put a quantity in a pail and half filled it with water, and dipped from that into the thb we pumped from. As I have made this so long I will defer the "doctoring" the aphis of the cherry tree, apple tree and current bark insects until another time. or until requested, as that may have been well tried away from this vicinity.

Willows for Fence Posts-

Exchange: The fence-post question is one of much importance to the American farmer, owing to difficulty of procuring suitable wood for the purpose respondent of an exchange advocates the use of willows for this purpose, the trees being readily obtained for trans planting and easily grown. He says: It is frequently recommended to plant trees along the line of the fences, hat when the trees have attained suf ficient size their trunks may be used as posts. Thus live posts that will not rot are had, already securely set, at the cost of setting out the trees only. But to this there is the objection that the swaying of the trees loosens the nails ing the wires, whether the nails or staples are driven into the tree or into a piece of timber fastened to the tree. One of our Western subscribers has discovered that when the willow is planted this objection is avoided, for the top of the willow can be kept cut down so closely that the trunk will be swayed little, if any. The tree should not be used as a post until the trunk obtained a diameter six mehes a foot from the ground; and even when it has reached this size, the tree may be cut off five feet from the ground, making a post of the desired height, without killing the tree. Such cutting off would be fatal to any other tree that could be used for this purpose; but the willow will send out a thick bunch of shoots, which will soon become respectable branches and may be cut off in their turn. Thus we may have a thick, stocky trunk five feet high, with so little top that the wind will not loosen the nails or staples. The branches cut off make good bean-poles, or the summer fire-wood par excellence. They cut very easily when green, dry out rapidly, and when dry make a quick, hot fire that dies down at once—just the fire the housewife wishes during the summer. Other points in favor of the willow for live tence-posts are the case with which it can be got to grow and the rapidity of its growth. slips are stuck into the ground in the spring, when the ground is moist, they will at once root and grow. Where fence-posts are scarce this use of the willow can be confidently recommended; and likely it will pay to so use the willow even where post are cheap. The willow is slow to die and will make a firm post for many years.

S. P. MORSE & CO. LOCKED HIS JAW LAUGHING.

A Case Illustrating What Fun They Have West of the Susquehanna.

Harrisburg Telegraph: Franklin county is next door to Cumberland. Tickle Cumberland and Franklin Laughs. I'll give Cumberland a chance to laugh. Up at Mount Alto not long ago a party of men were telling funny stories and one of them laughed so hard he dislocated his jaw. A physician (a German who lives in the vicinity) was sent for and he immediately pronounced it a case of lock-jaw. He put a big mustard poultice on the man's jaw, plastered a fly-blister on the back of his neck, plunged the sick man's feet in boling water, and then told him if he had any-thing to say he better say it, as he would never get well—he was beauty to die never get well—he was bound to die. Colonel Wiestling was going down to the sick man's house to administer spiritual consolation when he met a medical student, who went with him. When they entered the house they found the patient encased in plasters, his poor legs par-boiled to the knees in hot water and a blanket over his head. The student wanted to see the man, but the numerous wanted to see the man, but the numerous weeping friends and mourners explained between sniffles that it was no use, he was going te die, and nobedy could do him any good. The student asked how the man came to get lock-jaw, and they told him that he was laughing and his jaws "got clinched." Then the student removed the blanket, held up the pa-tient's head, thrust his finger into his mouth and hit him a smart rap on the jaw, and it swung back into place and all was lovely.
