MRS. POTTER AGAIN FIZZLES.

The 'Ostler Joe Heroine Makes a Very Poor Showing in London.

"CIVIL WAR" A FLAT FAILURE.

The Trouble Said to Be With the Play and Not With the Acting-A Brilliant Audlence

Present.

Another Potter Fallure. [Coppright 1887 by James Gorgon Bennett.] LONDON, June 27 .- [New York Herald Cable-Special to the BEE.]-Mrs. Brown Potter was again unlucky, not in her action, which showed that she had improved in pose, emphasis, naturalness, repose and stage technique, but in choice of the play, called War." Commonplace dialogue, wearying tale telling and absolute absence of action are its characteristics. The audience looked politely bored for nearly three and everyone going out to appreciate the mot of seemed to Manager Henry French, temporarily here, pleasantly spoken: "I infer that Irving's surrender of the English rights in this French play is another proof of his shrewd-The audience was even more distinguished than that which first greeted Mrs. Potter. While the tide of talk rose higher and higher scene by scene the auditors had the relief of viewing each other.

In the royal box they saw next to the proscenium the young king of Greece, quisically eying his sister princess of Wales, who, chatting with the duke of Sparta, seemed as brave as a Spartan herself awaiting incidents. The Prince of Wales seemed awed by certain comment of the society press on the last occasion of Mrs. Potter playing, and refrained from any applause. He appeared trying to prevent his young relative, the princess of Saxe-Meinenger, from falling asleep at the dull dia-

Wearled of contemplating royalty, the auditors turned their lorgnettes upon the jubilee Earl of Lonesboro, who occupied the box with George Lewis; or upon the three Rothschilds-the baron, Mr. Leopold and Mr. Alfred-or the gorgeous toilettes of the ladies accompanying them; or upon the large representation of Americans, which included Mr. Blaine, who gallantly applauded whenever he could; Judge Ingraham, Mine Host Breslin, Colonel and Miss Cody, Manager Gilmore, Mrs. Ronalds, Mrs. John Sherwood, Mrs. Bradly Martin, etc.,

Many ladies amused themselves from yawning by investigating the princess of Wales' toilette-cream satin dress, fichu point lace, pearl embroidered, and at the throat a cream ribbon, in the center of which was a Maltese cross of pearls and ruby, a diamond bracelet and a white rose in her coiffure and cream suede gloves, with no earrings. Mrs. Potter's three toilettes further interested the lady auditors. First she wore a white nun's veiling, trimmed with gold embroidery, the sleeves of gold meshed pale lavender silk, the sash and waist a la surpliceher. The second dress was a turquoise cashmere and silk bands or irredescent blue beads, embroidery on the sleeves, pongee summer cloak, lightly drooping from the shoulders, a cream colored Tuscan straw hat, side. Her third toilette was of widow's weeds, crape cap bonnet, coquettishly worn leg of mutton sleeves, to a crape dress emoldered, black silk stockings, but diamonds clasped at the throat and three diamond rings on each hand. But neither nice occasions, nor millinery, and especially not merely distinguished audiences, can make a success of any drama or address. So dull a play has not been on the London stage for years. Herman Merivale seemed to think it would prove a failure. because only this morning he published a card in which he said: "I am in a singular position, not knowing how my supposed work ends. For the last five weeks I have done all in my power to avoid a public protest, but I was not consulted about the production at the Galety though at the eleventh hour I feel obliged to say this much, having no alternative but an injunction, I sincerely hope to be obliged to say no more."

In the opinion of many present only the presence of the prince and princess, and some sympathy for the lady who appears doomed to be mismanaged, prevented 'civil war" from actually occurring among the auditors. This notwithstanding an excellent company supported Mrs. Potter. Kyrle Bellew, fresh from Wallack's, as a wounded young soldier, or as a juvenile lover, or as a successful sculptor, and Amy Rosselle as a tender mother, with many others mentioned in the Sunday dispatch. each give their dialogue in a manner far above its value. Yet to no one, not even to Mrs. Potter, was given what, in theatrical parlance, could doubtfully be called acting. Under such circumstances it would be unfair and tedious and prove waste of time and space to enlarge upon the plot or at all criticise the acting.

However, it may not be amiss to add that London critics generally condemn the play, while some admit Mrs. Potter's vance in acting since the first night in "Man and Wife." The Telegraph says: "The curtain had scarcely been up five minutes before every one felt that the actors had lost heart. They were nerveless spiritless and continually disappointing,' Of Mrs. Pytter it adds: "She has unques tionably improved and may be congratulated on her steady and persistent work. Much has still to be learned, much study gone through, much practice to lead on to perfec-But the spirit of address is here and it would be ungenerous not to encourage."

The Chronicle says: "It is to be feared that Mrs. Potter has not been well advised in producing "Civil War," as the piece is so ill constructed as to entirely fail to hold the attention of the audience, and she herself is incapable of expressing the strong emotions

THE LAND GRANT RAILROADS

Lamar Hears From All of Them Regarding Their Unearned Possessions.

PLAUSIBLE PLEAS PUT FORTH.

The Claim Made That the Interior Department Has No Jurisdiction at Present-Miles' Arizona Indian Campaign.

Replies From Ratiroads. WASHINGTON, June 27 .- The secretary of the interior has received answers from all the land grant railroads named in his rule dated May 23,1887, requiring them to show cause why several orders of withdrawal from settlement of lands within their indemnity limits should not be revoked and the lands embraced therein restored to settlement. The St. Paul & Sioux City railroad company in its answer takes the position that it is beyond the power and jurisdiction of the secretary of the interior, as the law stands, to restore to settlement any lands within the indemnity limits of that company, certainly not until the grant shall have been fully adjusted. It holds that so far as the indemnity lands are concerned the acts of 1857, 1864 and 1865, being in pari materia the last two amendatory of the earlier grant and all operating upon precisely the same subject matter, stand and must be construed as one enactment and into that enactment in its entirety is incorporated the provision which congress saw fit to enact in the seventh section of the act March 3, 1865, viz.: A direction to the secretary of the interior to withdraw from the market the land embraced by the provisions of the act, and hence it follows that the withdrawal of all indemnity lands! ying within twenty miles of the line of their road was legislative withdrawal. That when the secretary of the interior issued the necessary executive or administrative order to carry limits of that company, certainly not until executive or administrative order to carry that withdrawal into effect he exhausted all the powers of the land department over the subject matter; that as the public lands of the United States are only disposable under the direction of congress, it requires legisla-tion by that body before its enactment dedi-cating the lands in question to this particucating the lands in question to this particu-lar purpose can be repealed, modified or set aside; and that congress not having repealed its legislation with respect to the grant, any attempt on the part of an executive officer by way of revocation of the act of his predecesor is in direct opposition to the expressed or is in direct opposition to the expressed direction of congress.

The Northern Pacific railway sets forth "that it has thus far promptly asserted its rights to lands within its indemnity limits rights to lands within its indemnity limits rights to lands within its indemnity limits to the extent that the action of the government and land department will permit; that it can go no further until the covernment surveys the remaining granted and indemnity lands and no further than these surveys' progress and until the completion of the surveys of sections in granted limits and the adjudication of the rights of the company thereto. Neither the company nor your department can definitely determine to what extent it is entitled to land within indemnity limits."

Anything to Beat Cleveland. WASHINGTON, June 27 .- | Special Telegram to the BEE.]-The disaffection among emocrats towards Cleveland is beginning to take definite shape. An Ohlo democrat who has been in Washington for some days, grew merry over a bottle of wine with a friend a day or two ago and disclosed the interesting fact that there is in Washington a regular organization for the avowed purpose of defeating Cleveland for a renomination. The Ohio man refused to talk for some time, but when the wine began to work he admitted that the presence of himself and other rominent democrats who have been gather ing in Washington for some time had that object in view. He himself is counted one of the smartest democratic workers in Ohio and the headquarters of the organization are on Pennsylvania avenue over a fancy goods store in charge of an ex-democratic constore in charge of an ex-democratic con-gressman from Ohio. Circulars have been prepared, which will be sent all over the country, arraigning the administration for not "turning the rascals out" and charging that it is influenced by "mugwump republicans" and not run in ac-cordance with the aims and purposes of cordance with the aims and purposes of democracy. No preference is expressed for any one man. The battle cry is, "Anybody to beat Cleveland," but the tone of the circu-lar sounds very much like the "faithful" were preparing to center around Governor Hill as being a better exponent of true dem-ocratic ideas from the spoils standpoint. The organization has been but recently per-fected and is known to but for more it. The organization has been but recently perfected and is known to but few people. It will without doubt prove the entering wedge to a tremendous opposition to Cleveland inside of the party and its development will be watched with pleasure. There are a great many democratic politicians here now, and many of these are continually dropping in at the headquarters. As yet it is difficult to connect any names definitely with the movement.

Wisconsin Town Completely Destroyed By Fire.

MILWAUKEE, June 27 .- Fire almost swept the town of Marshfield out of existence this afternoon, and 20,000 people are homeless. The loss is not less than $1,000,000. Communication by whe is cut off and it is almost munication by while is out off and it is almost impossible to learn particulars. A locomotive spark started the blaze at noon in the lumber yard of the Upham furniture factory, and it rapidly developed into a roaring fire that spread toward the town. Insufficient lire protection facilities prevented any resistance to the flames and soon several flourishing factories, business blocks along the main street and adjoining residences were wrapped in flames. People gathered such household effects as they could and fled to the woods. The heat was so intense that 2,500 feet of Wiscone'n Central track, which runs through one street of the town, was bent and twisted into the most grotesque shapes. Travel cannot be resumed on this account until towards. scount until to-morrow. Specials from Stevens Point and Chippewa Falls conveyed fire engines to the place, but the lire was be-yond all control. But one store and a few half built houses remain of the flourishing

It is impossible to obtain detailed particu-lars of the fire to-night. But few have availed themselves of it, however, most of the people being housed for the night under the people being noused for the hight under warons, rudely constructed sheds, blankets and such household furniture piled up as was saved. The scene is pitiable. Wearied men and depressed women are watching the remnant of their homes and possessions promiscuously scattered around in the surrounding woods, tered around in the surrounding woods, which are lit up by the glow that comes from the still burning mass that covered acres and represented a thriving village. The Wall Street Flurry.

NEW YORK, June 27 .- | Special Telegram to the BEE.]-Speaking yesterday to the World reporter about the Wall street flurry Friday, Russell Sage said: The disturbance was something that has not occurred before in a quarter of a century from a like cause Booming had seized the people's minds all over the country. Those who made invest ment last were the ones to be left, as the saying is. There has been a particularly great boom in real estate. Village and city lots from the Indian territory to the British possessions have been inflated. Booming is one of the causes of the present pause in speculation. Another cause is the disasters in coffee and wheat. They, in fact, prepared the way for the collapse in Wall street that we have just witnessed. I do not fear any lasting consequences, however. The outlook is good for general ousiness the remaining is good for general ousiness the remaining part of the year, and growing crops promise to give us a healthy market from early fall. Cyrus W. Field thought the trouble was due to the fact that many people were suddenly frightened by false rumors. I think the smash in wheat was an excellent thing. The price was held so high that we could not sell against the Black sen, India, Egypt and New Zealand. When it broke our wheat immediately began to go forward. We are going to have immense crops of wheat, corn and cotton, and I look for general prosperity throughout the year. We do not want high prices. They result disastrously. We want sale for what we produce, and it is certain we could not have it if we held our articles too high."

Harvard Outrows Columbia. NEW LONDON, Conn., June 27 .- The eighth annual four mile straight away race between the eight-oared crews of Harvard and Columbia was rowed this afternoon on the Thames course, and proved to be one of the most hotly contested races ever rowed, both crews beating the record of 21 minutes 31 seconds made by Yale in 1884. The official time is: Harvard, 20:20; Columbia 20:29, All conditions were favorable for fast time. All conditions were favorable for fast time. Both crews went away in a spurt of 38 strokes, Harvard catching water first, drawing gradually ahead. At the first quarter Harvard had a lead of a length, but Columbia here pulled up and at the half mile was even. Harvard then showed temporary demoralization, and Columbia drew ahead. Harvard quickly recovered, however, and sent the bow to the front just as they passed the mile. The rowing up to this point was phenomenal, the front just as they passed the line. The fow-ing up to this point was phenomenal, the first and second half being rowed in 2:10% and 2:11% respectively, and both crews were lifteen seconds ahead of the record. After this the strain seemed to tell on Columbia, and besides slackening her stroke her cox-swain made an unfortunate swerve from the course that cost the boat a length. She never caught Harvard again, and the latter crossed the line a winner by three lengths, defeating the best crew Columbia has ever had and beating the record by eleven seconds. bia's time is two seconds better than the pre vions record.

Swinburne, young man, is locked up here on suspicion of having robbed his father's house. The old gentleman, William J. Swinburne, is one of the leading merchants of the place, and for several years was mayor and has been in the legislature. He occupies a handsome residence at the corner of Bull street and Broadway.
