Judge Aylesworth on the charge of bur-glarizing the boarding house opposite the city building, on Bryant street. He was bound over to the grand jury in the sum of $500. Some of the stoien property was found upon his person, and there appears to be a clear case against him.

The young ladie's "Lawn Social" to-morrow (Friday) evening will be given at the residence of Mrs. J. M. Palmer, Harmony street. An interesting pro-gram of music will be given. Ice cream, raspberries and cake served for 25 cents. The grounds will be lighted and everything arranged for an evening of pleas-ure and social enjoyment. The proceeds will be used to purchase a small pulpit for Harmony Mission Chapel.

An Omaha couple, John Morris and Laura Malcol, were before the court yesterday for being drunk and driving too fast through the principal streets. Laura was fined, and John had his case continued. John had about twenty dollars, but he showed no eagerness to pay the woman's fine, and she is obliged to board it out. It is another proof of a fact long since established in police circles, that a man is never so ready to help a woman out of a scrape as a woman is to help

J. Smith, the colored fellow charged with trying to carve up another attendant at the colored ball, had a hearing yesterday. It was shown that Smith and Sones were shaking dice in the saloon. Smith claimed the dice were wrong, and a row ensued. Smith struck Jones, and Jones clinched Smith, and set his teeth late Smith, and set his teeth into Smith's lip. Smith then drew his razor, but a bystander ran the back of a chair between the fighters and stopped the carving. Smith was fined $50 not being able to pay, went to jail. Smith was fined $50, an

Judge Aylesworth and City Attorney Holmes are busy getting the ordinances of the city in due form for publication. Over 150 pages have been printed and more copy is being made rapidly. The proof sheets look cleaner than those which were presented to the council under the old contract. It seems that the forthcoming volume will meet the demand. It will be a blessed relief to the officials not to have to depend upon an old scrap book to find out the laws of the city. Judge Aylesworth and City Attorney

H. P. Niles, the artist, has placed above his Broadway establispment a unique sign, showing how competition in business sometimes results. The sign consists of four pictures—the first the meeting between two rival painters, the second the greeting, which is evidently warlike; the third the brush, one painter giving the other a full blow on the nose, decorating it with the enthusiastic use of orating it with the enthusiastic use of the brush. The last picture is the crush, the victorious painter having his competitor down and pouring the contents of both their buckets over his prostrate form. The pictures are worth gazing upon. They furnish a funny text from which many practical sermons could be

These lectures are free to all and the public is cordially invited to attend. First service this evening at 8 o'clock.

Manawa Opening.

It is now decided that the formal opening of the Manawa season, the new motor line, the hotel, the bath houses, etc., will be on Monday, July 11. Excursion trains are to be run in on all the roads center-ing in this city. The Congregational church of this city will have the excur-sion under its auspices and it is expected that there will be thousands of visitors to this city on that day. There will be nu-merous entertainments besides those merous entertainments besides those which are under the auspices of the Congreational church. There will be numerous and varied attractions, and the day will see Council Bluffs at its best.

COUNCIL DOINGS.

The Gas Ordinance was Innocently Given a Second Reading.

MANAWA'S GRAND OPENING.

It is Announced For Monday, July 11 -Narrow Escape at Manawa-Personals and Brief Rita of Local News.

The announcement that Frank C. Wasserman, of Omaha, had drawn $30,000 in a lottery caused scarcely less excitement here than in Omaha. Mrs. Wasserman is a daughter of Colonel John Fox, of this city, and many of the fortune which has befallen the young couple. There are many interesting details concerning this event which have not been made public, as Mr. Wasserman and his friends have kept very quiet about it. A year ago Mrs. Wasserman, then Miss Fox, was lucky with a lottery ticket, getting $150. The young folks used to buy a ticket together before their marriage, just to try their luck, and the goddess seems to have smiled upon them. It was, Mrs. Wasserman who bought the ticket this time, and as she did so she laughingly remarked that this was her lucky month, as she had drawn the $150 a year ago. It proved to be a year ago. It proved to be a lucky month indeed. When the circular came, giving the numbers of the lucky tickets, Mr. Wasserman did not take time to look it over, but on going home tossed it to her to look through. She had the number of her ticket well in mind, and as she opened the circular she glanced along the numbers and the prizes until she dis-covered that the great prize was awarded to a ticket, the number of which was very much like that bought by her. The paper was doubled over in such a way that the last figure was hidden from view, the other figures corresponding exactly with those of her ticket. She will never forget that moment of suspense when her trembling fingers were unfolding the paper so as to disclose the last figure. paper so as to disclose the last figure. On that one figure depended $30,000. It was not to be wondered at that she nervously unfolded the paper, and that she almost doubted her own eyesight when she saw that each and every figure corresponded with those of her ticket. She could not speak, and her husband and she sat for several minutes looking at each other in astonishment. Then he remarked, "Don't let's say anything about it."

"Don't let's say anything about it." She thought that silence was better, and the agreement was entered into to keep the good fortune a secret for the time at least. But the easy winning of $30,000 could not be kept still. The family were let into the secret, and then intimate friends, and in the meantime the news was speeded along by those interested in the lottery. The money was sent in bills, by express, forming a large bundle. The cost of sending it by express was $180, but this was a trifle in comparison with the amount secured. Mr. Wasserman had considerable means before this gift of fortune, but with this in addition he is placed in independent financial condition. Mrs. Wasserman's friends here rejoice with her, and congratulate her on her lucky month, which on two different years has proved so lucky in-

The Gas Ordinance. A taxpayer and gas-bill-ridden citizen wants to know how it was that the city time at the last meeting of the council without its being called for. Also, after the clerk had committed the error, if it was simply an error, why neither the mayor nor any alderman reprimanded him for it. The facts, as the BEE learns them, are that the ordinance was upon the table with other documents, and that the deputy clerk, John Burke, picked it up and gave it its second reading without any advice or suggestion from any one. Mr. Burke says that if the aldermen did not want him to read the ordinance a second time they should have posted him, and he would not have done so. Yesterday some of the aldermen were chiding him about it, but it seems that the time to have stopped him was that evening. It is claimed that the ordinance can be easily killed on a third reading as at any other time, but there seems to be no assurance but that at some future meeting the ordinance may be found on the clerk's table, picked up and given a third reading. Then it will be still nearer to the point where the passage of the or-dinance can be sneaked through. The public have paid exhorbitant rates for gas until no nettence is left, and there will be public have paid exhorbitant rates for gas until no pationce is left, and there will be no quiet submission to any ordinance extending the charter on any such terms as are proposed. The idea of the gas company seems to be that after for years getting two or three times as much for gas as is paid in other cities, if they make a little reduction the public will feel so grateful as to acquiesce in an extension of exhorbitant prices and privilegas. Every step in the proceedings is being watched eagerly. It will not do for the council or its clerk to allow the ordinance to slip along in any such easy process as has thus far marked the record.

It is all well enough to say that there is time enough to kill the ordinance yet. The best time to put out a fire is on the start. The best time to smash a scheme is in the egg. There seems to be no good is in the egg. There seems to be no good reason yet advanced for considering this ordinance at all, much less tampering with it, passing it to a second reading, and then to a third, and then running the risk of having it passed by the council when the members opposing the ordinance chance to be absent. If an ordinance is to be considered at all, let it contain from the very start reasonabl conditions, conditions which can at least be considered. But the asking for a monopoly for furnishing the city with gas at $3 a thousand, is not reasonable enough to even merit a declination.

The council do not seem to realize what a public feeling there is concerning this matter. They will doubtless do so by the time the constituents interview them personally. The present board of aldermen have thus far shown a disposition, at least a majority of them, to follow the public wish when that wish became clearly and frankly expressed. There was a strong tie on one important measure, but at last that was broken, and the public will prevailed. It is believed that when the council realize the public that when the council realize the public feeling on this gas question, they will act in accordance with the public demand. They cannot blame the public for feeling nervous about so important a matter.

Wrecked on the Lake. The storm Tuesday night came up so suddenly and was so fierce that it caused trouble with those whom it caught out in boats upon the generally placed surface of lake Manawa. There were two sail boats, in one of which was J. H. Clark, the court reporter, one of his sons, and Mr. Beebe. In the other boat was his older son, George Clark. Both boats were capsized by the wind, but the one in which Mr. Clark and the two others were, was washed ashore, the three clinging to it. The other boat with Mr. Clark's son could nowhere be seen, though anxious eyes looked in every direction as the flashes of light-ning gave glimpses of the surface of the lake. Row boats were manned and sent out, and the search was kept up unsuc-cessfully for some time, but at last it was discovered that the boat had been washed ashore on the other side of the lake. Young Clark was found hanging to some willows, nearly exhausted. A few minutes later he would have been obliged to let go and would have gone down. The escape for all was parrow but expecially escape for all was narrow, but especially for the young man.

THE DRUMMER BOYS. Chit Chat About Commercial Travellers.

St. Louis Republican.

Secretary Pannell of the Missouri division had more fun than anybody. Carleton of the blonde moustache has well earned the title of "the badger." The boys of St. Louis post will once more pick up the grip and start out to conquer new worlds. New York, Virginia and North Carolina delegations left in a special car over the Bee Line.

Charlie Peake of Kansas City was obliged to go home before the close of the convention. He was greatly missed. J. W. Broomfield of S. J. Lang & Sons is stirring trade in the "Sucker" state. "Broom" is still in the ring.

The travellers, as they marched down to the exchange Friday, nearly all wear-ing plug hats, were mistaken for Haver-ly's minstrels.

George M. Hayes picked up his grip yesterday afternoon and went to work. He secured several orders before dark, and then left for Cincinnati. E. S. Lewis, secretary and treasurer of the executive committee, is the man who now holds the bag. It could not be placed in better hands. Shelby, the magnificent, the Apollo Belvidere of St. Louis post, has held the dual position of legislator and host this week, and the boys are proud of his success in both cess in both. J. W. Jordan, of Minneapolis, says that, notwithstanding the fact that the next convention will be held in June, the Minneapolis boys will manage to rig up some kind of an ice palace.

Adolphus Lang has returned from a successful trip on the Iron Mountain. Adolph says the "skeeters" are larger and more bloodthirsty this year than ever before known in the history of Arkansas. One of the most pleasant, affable and popular men in the convention was C. S. Kelsey, of Battle Creek, Mich. When on the floor he was always given a respectful hearing, and the measures proposed by him were invariably adopted.

C. P. Van Alstine, the fat man from Michigan, has his delegation classified as follows: Jones, of Oshkosh, the sporting man; Mantz. the heavy man; Campbell, the talking man; Baumgartner, the gen-leman; and he himself, the chairman.

The souvenir badge which was brought out by the local T. P. A. boys the last of the week and given to each one of the visitors, was a very handsome affair and worthy of preservation. It is similar to the local committee badges, but bore only the words: "Souvenir T. P. A., St. Louis, 1887."

The Western Commercial Travellers association has made hay while the sun shone, and during the last week the mem-bership has been increased fully 100. In this number are included commercial travelers from almost every state from New York to Colorado, and will give the organization over which Mr. Wetmore so proudly presides and "Father" Ryan so well conducts the biggest advertisement it has ever had.

The T. P. A. is probably the only or ganization in the country which main-tains a standing press committee in its tains a standing press committee in its national, state and local organization. The travelers appreciate the value of such a friend as the press, and these committees have done considerable towards strengthening their relations. E. P. Burnham, as chairman of the national committee, was untiring in his efforts to assist the local press while the convention was in session. tion was in session.

"Parson" Haines was given an opportunity to talk on the "King Temperance Army," his favorite hobby. The "parson," it is sald, was at one time worth $150,000, but drank it up, and now he is a strong prohibitionist. The K. T. A. is not an organization in the strict sense of the word there being neither officers nor the word, there being neither officers nor constitution. Mr. Haines only requires a pledge of total abstinence. When that is given he gives the reformed commercial traveler a badge, to be returned to him if the pledge is broken.

The order and decorum maintained by the commercial travelers while in St. Louis has been commented upon by everyone. It was somehow expected that the town would be turned up side down and the sky painted a lurid red, but the citizens were agreeably disappointed. But for the two parades, the handsome badges and the notices in the papers, no one would have known of their presence outside of those interested in their enteroutside of those interested in their enter-tainment. At the banquet not a single man became in the least disorderly, and at all times the visitors carried themselves as gentlemen.

The national board of directors of the T. P. A. held a meeting in parlor No. 5 of the Lindell hotel, and straightened up the new constitution and by-laws for publication. It seemed to be the general opinion that the new system would greatly benefit the organization, and that its adoption was the beginning of a new era of prosperity. D. K. Clink, state president of Illinois, appeared before the board and requested the indefinite suspension of the new constitution. Mr. Clink has been one of the most bitter opponents of the "Ohio idea," but this move was sat down upon by the board. They decided that they could not suspend for a moment a constitution adopted by a two-thirds vote of a representative convention. The national board of directors of the convention.

The "Ohlo idea," adopted by the convention will revolutionize the T. P. A. It was organized at the wrong end, and for five years has been standing on its head. When first established it was simply a national affair, and it was not until two years ago that state divisions were created. The local posts were organized, but with no definite powers. By making local organization compulsory, and by making these local organizations the foundation of the association, the whole framework is turned right side up—placed on its feet and fixed upon a firm, substantial basis that is not likely to crumble. But when Simon says "thumbs down" the turn may crack the framework, it being now somewhat unwieldly. There is the only danger, but the cracks being repaired the order will be all the Growth in Children.

M. Guyot Daubes in Popular Science Monthly for July: The rate of growth of children varies according to sex. Thus, at the age of eleven and twelve years, boys are larger and heavier than girls, but from that age on the evolution of the girls is more rapid, and they soon overtake the boys and pass them, till the age of fitteen years is reached, when the boys regain the ascendency, while the girls reof fitteen years is reached, when the boys regain the ascendency, while the girls remain nearly stationary. A curious relation has been discovered between the growth of children in stature and in weight. M. Malling-Hansen, director of the deaf and dumb institution at Copenhageh, has for three years weighed and measured his pupils daily, and he has observed that their growth does not take place regularly and progressively, but by stages separated by intervals of rest. Weight also increases by periods after intervals of equilibrium. While the weight is increasing, the stature remains nearly stationary, and vice versa. The maximum of increase vice versa. The maximum of increase of stature corresponds with a minimum period of augmentation of weight. The vital forces appear not to work on both sades at once. The variations are subject to the influence of the seasons. During the autumn and early winter, according to M. Malling lansen, the child accumulates weight, while his stature increases slowly; but during spring, stature receives a veritable push, while weight increases but little. Some local habits have an influence on the stature. habits have an influence on the stature. Stenhal remarked that many Roman girls had deformed vertebral columns, or were a little humpbacked, and found that it was the result of a popular be-lief prevailing in Rome that parents eould promote the growth of their chil-dren by punching them in the back!
