

BETTER WATER FOR OMAHA.

The New Settling Basins Nearly Ready For Use.

DEDICATING ST. WENCELAUS.

Newsboys Strike Against the Three-penny Sheet—The Telephone Exchange in New Quarters—Successful Schoolma'ams.

Solids and Liquids.

For two weeks and more the water furnished the city by the water works has been of a character and kind that justly deserves commendation from all who are forced to use it for any purpose.

shape," said Manager Smith, to a Bee reporter last night. "Where we can give our subscribers satisfactory service. This we couldn't do in the other place. We hadn't nearly room enough for one thing and the operators were obliged to stand so close together that they were in each other's way in doing their work."

"We shall still employ sixteen operators," continued Mr. Smith in reply to a question, "but owing to these superior advantages work will be much easier than before."

NEWSBOYS' STRIKE.

They Complain of the Evening World's Treatment.

The Evening World was not on sale yesterday afternoon. The reason therefor was a strike among the newsboys. The grievance that the newsboys have is that they have had the price of the paper raised from one cent to one and a half cents per copy.

ODDS AND ENDS.

Stray Leaves From the Reporters' Note-Books.

S. S. Auchmoedy, deputy county clerk, is the possessor of several bright youngsters. At a juvenile party at his house the jovial deputy was importuned to join in the play of "Who has the button."

George Kay on baseball: "There are any number of people who sit up in the grand-stand at every ball game who haven't the least appreciation of the head work that takes on the part of a player at every point of the game."

THE GLORIUS FOURTH.

Final Meeting of the Committee of Arrangements.

The committee of arrangements for the celebration of the national birthday held a final meeting last night at Julius Meyer's rooms, corner Twelfth and Barnum.

SUCCESSFUL SCHOOLMA'AMS.

List of Those Who Passed the Examination This Week.

Following is a list of the teachers who were successful in their examination before the committee of examiners for the board of education this week: Mrs. E. Atkinson, Misses A. S. Cranston, Ida B. Jay, Mattie C. Ellis, C. G. Forest, Miss L. G. Gassner, Mrs. C. H. Hitt, Mrs. E. Hostetter, E. V. Kennedy, Agnes Kuleman, Mrs. M. E. Melville, Misses Ellie Moon, Julia Newcomb, Nettie R. Roberts, Jessie C. Scott, Ella Thorngate, Lizzie H. Witman.

thence to Thirteenth, thence to Cunningham's hall, where the A. O. H. will join, thence to St. George's hall, Farnam street, where the Catholics Knights will join, then to Douglas and Seventeenth.

CHICAGO & NORTHWESTERN R.V.

Excursion to Chicago.

Mr. F. V. Wasserman, receiving teller of the United States National bank of this city, who held one-tenth of ticket No. 32,740, which drew the first capital prize of $900,000 in the Louisiana State Lottery's drawing on the 14th inst., continues at his old post counting the gold and silver of would-be depositors.

Wheeler & Wheeler, 15th and Douglas.

General agents at Omaha for the Life Indemnity and Investment company, Waterloo, Iowa. About one dollar a year for $1000, or $24 deposited with the insurance department of Iowa to guarantee the payment of all death losses in full.

A Valuable Statistical Work.

There are numerous statistical works, but those of a thoroughly comprehensive character, and at the same time entirely trustworthy, are few. McCarty's Annual Statistician, issued in March of each year, is one among the few.

Notice to Contractors.

The Board of Public Land Buildings will receive bids at any time before July 11, 1887, at 2 p. m., for the heating, plumbing and sewerage for the Hospital for the Insane at Norfolk, Neb., according to the plans and specifications now on file with the Commissioner of Public Lands and Buildings.

Notice to L. A. 2845.

All members of L. A. 2845 are requested to meet at Exposition Building on Monday morning, July 4, at 8:30 a. m., for the purpose of taking part in the K. of L. procession and celebration.

Notice to L. A. 2845.

All members of L. A. 2845 are requested to meet at Exposition Building on Monday morning, July 4, at 8:30 a. m., for the purpose of taking part in the K. of L. procession and celebration.

Notice to L. A. 2845.

All members of L. A. 2845 are requested to meet at Exposition Building on Monday morning, July 4, at 8:30 a. m., for the purpose of taking part in the K. of L. procession and celebration.

Notice to L. A. 2845.

All members of L. A. 2845 are requested to meet at Exposition Building on Monday morning, July 4, at 8:30 a. m., for the purpose of taking part in the K. of L. procession and celebration.

Notice to L. A. 2845.

All members of L. A. 2845 are requested to meet at Exposition Building on Monday morning, July 4, at 8:30 a. m., for the purpose of taking part in the K. of L. procession and celebration.

Notice to L. A. 2845.

All members of L. A. 2845 are requested to meet at Exposition Building on Monday morning, July 4, at 8:30 a. m., for the purpose of taking part in the K. of L. procession and celebration.

Notice to L. A. 2845.

All members of L. A. 2845 are requested to meet at Exposition Building on Monday morning, July 4, at 8:30 a. m., for the purpose of taking part in the K. of L. procession and celebration.

Notice to L. A. 2845.

All members of L. A. 2845 are requested to meet at Exposition Building on Monday morning, July 4, at 8:30 a. m., for the purpose of taking part in the K. of L. procession and celebration.

Notice to L. A. 2845.

All members of L. A. 2845 are requested to meet at Exposition Building on Monday morning, July 4, at 8:30 a. m., for the purpose of taking part in the K. of L. procession and celebration.

Notice to L. A. 2845.

All members of L. A. 2845 are requested to meet at Exposition Building on Monday morning, July 4, at 8:30 a. m., for the purpose of taking part in the K. of L. procession and celebration.

Notice to L. A. 2845.

All members of L. A. 2845 are requested to meet at Exposition Building on Monday morning, July 4, at 8:30 a. m., for the purpose of taking part in the K. of L. procession and celebration.

CHICAGO & NORTHWESTERN R.V.

Excursion to Chicago.

Mr. F. V. Wasserman, receiving teller of the United States National bank of this city, who held one-tenth of ticket No. 32,740, which drew the first capital prize of $900,000 in the Louisiana State Lottery's drawing on the 14th inst., continues at his old post counting the gold and silver of would-be depositors.

Wheeler & Wheeler, 15th and Douglas.

General agents at Omaha for the Life Indemnity and Investment company, Waterloo, Iowa. About one dollar a year for $1000, or $24 deposited with the insurance department of Iowa to guarantee the payment of all death losses in full.

A Valuable Statistical Work.

There are numerous statistical works, but those of a thoroughly comprehensive character, and at the same time entirely trustworthy, are few. McCarty's Annual Statistician, issued in March of each year, is one among the few.

Notice to Contractors.

The Board of Public Land Buildings will receive bids at any time before July 11, 1887, at 2 p. m., for the heating, plumbing and sewerage for the Hospital for the Insane at Norfolk, Neb., according to the plans and specifications now on file with the Commissioner of Public Lands and Buildings.

Notice to L. A. 2845.

All members of L. A. 2845 are requested to meet at Exposition Building on Monday morning, July 4, at 8:30 a. m., for the purpose of taking part in the K. of L. procession and celebration.

Notice to L. A. 2845.

All members of L. A. 2845 are requested to meet at Exposition Building on Monday morning, July 4, at 8:30 a. m., for the purpose of taking part in the K. of L. procession and celebration.

Notice to L. A. 2845.

All members of L. A. 2845 are requested to meet at Exposition Building on Monday morning, July 4, at 8:30 a. m., for the purpose of taking part in the K. of L. procession and celebration.

Notice to L. A. 2845.

All members of L. A. 2845 are requested to meet at Exposition Building on Monday morning, July 4, at 8:30 a. m., for the purpose of taking part in the K. of L. procession and celebration.

Notice to L. A. 2845.

All members of L. A. 2845 are requested to meet at Exposition Building on Monday morning, July 4, at 8:30 a. m., for the purpose of taking part in the K. of L. procession and celebration.

Notice to L. A. 2845.

All members of L. A. 2845 are requested to meet at Exposition Building on Monday morning, July 4, at 8:30 a. m., for the purpose of taking part in the K. of L. procession and celebration.

Notice to L. A. 2845.

All members of L. A. 2845 are requested to meet at Exposition Building on Monday morning, July 4, at 8:30 a. m., for the purpose of taking part in the K. of L. procession and celebration.

Notice to L. A. 2845.

All members of L. A. 2845 are requested to meet at Exposition Building on Monday morning, July 4, at 8:30 a. m., for the purpose of taking part in the K. of L. procession and celebration.

Notice to L. A. 2845.

All members of L. A. 2845 are requested to meet at Exposition Building on Monday morning, July 4, at 8:30 a. m., for the purpose of taking part in the K. of L. procession and celebration.

Notice to L. A. 2845.

All members of L. A. 2845 are requested to meet at Exposition Building on Monday morning, July 4, at 8:30 a. m., for the purpose of taking part in the K. of L. procession and celebration.

Notice to L. A. 2845.

All members of L. A. 2845 are requested to meet at Exposition Building on Monday morning, July 4, at 8:30 a. m., for the purpose of taking part in the K. of L. procession and celebration.

Notice to L. A. 2845.

All members of L. A. 2845 are requested to meet at Exposition Building on Monday morning, July 4, at 8:30 a. m., for the purpose of taking part in the K. of L. procession and celebration.

HOWE & KERR, FURNITURE, 1610 DOUGLAS STREET, (Opposite Falconer's.)

Personal Paragraphs. S. Moss, of New York, is at the Millard. C. M. Thomas, of Deadwood, is at the Paxton.

W. E. Bennett, of Salt Lake City, is at the Millard. H. R. Stanley, of Council Bluffs, is at the Arcade.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Groos, of Kansas City, are at the Paxton. F. R. Ellsworth and W. T. S. Neigh, of West Point, are at the Arcade.

W. G. Atkinson, of New York City, registered at the Paxton yesterday. H. H. Wheelock, of Fullerton, is among Nebraska arrivals at the Millard.

J. M. Morris, of Chicago, representing the "New Era" road grader, is at the Metropolitan. R. R. Clark, a Minneapolis architect, has drawn plans for several Omaha buildings, is at the Metropolitan.

W. C. Muhlmyr, of the United States army, accompanied by his wife and children, stopped at the Paxton yesterday. George W. Ferrell, of Chicago, Ill., formerly book keeper of the Minneapolis Exposition association, is at the Merchants'. Mr. Ferrell will locate in Omaha.

Unity Church Festival. The festival of Unity church was held at the residence of Mrs. C. D. Woolworth, 2416 Capitol avenue, last night. The grounds were illuminated by Chinese lanterns, and a grandly number attended the festival, notwithstanding the threatening weather. The festival was a great success.

The Neighbors Complain. The people in the vicinity of Castellar and Seventeenth and Eighteenth streets make complaint against a disorderly house in that vicinity. They want the police to order the denizens of the place away, and to take any action themselves if the officers do not.

Postponed. The arguments for a new trial in the Vollmer murder case and the Jamieson robbery case have been postponed until next week. The arguments were to have taken place yesterday, but as one side was not ready they were continued.

Burglarized. The grocery of Andres Bros, 2601 Sandus street, was burglarized early yesterday morning. Two caddies of tobacco, four boxes of cigars and other articles were taken, to the value of $30. Entrance was effected through a window.

CHURCH NOTICES. BAPTIST. First Baptist Church—Strangers' Sabbath home, Corner Fifteenth and Davenport streets—Rev. A. W. Lamar, pastor. Preaching at 10:30 a. m. and 8 p. m. Morning service at 11:30 a. m. The Holy Spirit is the Mission of the Believer? Evening theme: "Christ's Method of Sheep Training." Sabbath school at 12 o'clock. Young people's meeting at 7:15. All are cordially invited. Seats free.

First United Presbyterian Church, 612 North Eighth street—Rev. Edwin B. Graham, pastor. Preaching at 10:30 a. m. and 8 p. m. Sunday school at noon. Central United Presbyterian Church, Seventeenth street between Dodge and Capitol streets—Rev. E. W. Foster, pastor. Preaching at 10:30 a. m. and 8 p. m. Sabbath school at 12 o'clock. Morning service at 11:30 a. m. All are cordially invited.

Park Avenue Presbyterian Church, Tenth and Leavenworth streets, near Davenport—Preaching by the pastor, Rev. John H. Gordon, at 10:30 a. m., followed by Communion and admission of new members. At 8 p. m. Sunday school at noon. Seats free; all are welcome.

North Presbyterian Church, Saunders street between William and Henderson, pastor. Services at 10:30 and 8 o'clock. Sunday school at noon. Young people's meeting at 7:15. Strangers welcome at all the services.

First Congregational Church, 1710 Capitol avenue—Services at 10:30 a. m. and 8 p. m. Services led and preaching morning and evening by the pastor, Rev. F. S. Sherrill. Sabbath school at noon. All are welcome.

Unity Church, corner of Seventeenth and Cass streets—Services at 11 a. m. No Sunday school. Rev. W. E. Copeland, pastor. Subject sermon this morning: "Independence Day." Annual parish meeting at close of service.

LUTHERAN. German Lutheran Church, 1005 South Twentieth street—Service every Sunday at 10 a. m. Sunday school at 2 p. m. E. J. Freese, pastor.

MISCELLANEOUS. Preaching at the Orchard Hill Mission Sabbath afternoon at 4 o'clock by Rev. E. W. Foster, cordial invitation to Orchard Hill and Walnut Hill people.

Saint's Chapel, Twenty-first and Clark streets, pastor, Rev. F. S. Sherrill. Sunday school at 12:30. All welcome.

The Swedish Evangelical Mission Church holds services at the corner of Sixteenth street and Capitol avenue, Sundays at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. Sunday school at 4 p. m.

Miss Wynn Curtis went east Thursday evening and after visiting friends in Keokuk, will go to Spirit Lake for the summer.

The Solution of the Labor Problem. Professor B. T. Ely, in Harper's Magazine for July: The best thinkers on economic topics seem to be more nearly unanimous than ever before in the opinion that co-operation is to be the ultimate solution of the industrial problems of our day. This view is present in it was by the Christian socialists of England thirty-five years ago, and at that time they had mapped out pretty clearly the form of co-operation which they thought the world should adopt.

Among them were some of the most gifted Englishmen of the century, who have demonstrated long ago that they were not mere visionaries, but that, on the contrary, they far excelled in practical wisdom their detractors. Many of these early Christian socialists, now old men, after a life rich in experience, still maintain their former opinion about co-operation. Mr. Thomas Hughes, for example, writes: "I still look to this movement as the best hope for England and other lands."

John Stuart Mill frequently gave expression to somewhat similar views, although he gave a more guarded and authoritative would play a more important role in future industrial society than did the Christian socialists. He sympathized—at any rate in his later days—to greater extent with the state socialists of the continent. Perhaps the result of recent studies in economics is the best given by Prof. Henry C. Adams in these words: "The co-operative principle is the one to which the wages system must give way; but what particular form of industrial organization will take no one can say."

The world has ever been restless under any social system which tolerated a separation of labor and capital. The things for which these words stand may, as the trite saying has it, be allies, not enemies, the same has not always been true of those who furnish capital and labor; nor can any labor and social relations be precisely identical. The point of divergence of interests is so sharp, and the ultimate separation so necessary, that a good deal of support to the doctrine that their unity lies in the nature of things. They have not always been so separated as they are to-day. In the middle ages production was carried on by the guilds of men who owned their tools, and employed their own hands. Capital was not an important separate factor, for it was, as a rule, united with labor in the person of the craftsman. Still later, we have slavery, which united labor and capital in the same hands, namely, the hands of the master. He owned labor precisely as the owned capital. Both, however, in the modern world, are separated. The advocates of slavery were powerful. Again and again they pointed out to the world the advantages of their system. The doctrine that their unity lies in the nature of things. They have not always been so separated as they are to-day. In the middle ages production was carried on by the guilds of men who owned their tools, and employed their own hands. Capital was not an important separate factor, for it was, as a rule, united with labor in the person of the craftsman. Still later, we have slavery, which united labor and capital in the same hands, namely, the hands of the master. He owned labor precisely as the owned capital. Both, however, in the modern world, are separated. The advocates of slavery were powerful. Again and again they pointed out to the world the advantages of their system. The doctrine that their unity lies in the nature of things. They have not always been so separated as they are to-day. In the middle ages production was carried on by the guilds of men who owned their tools, and employed their own hands. Capital was not an important separate factor, for it was, as a rule, united with labor in the person of the craftsman. Still later, we have slavery, which united labor and capital in the same hands, namely, the hands of the master. He owned labor precisely as the owned capital. Both, however, in the modern world, are separated. The advocates of slavery were powerful. Again and again they pointed out to the world the advantages of their system. The doctrine that their unity lies in the nature of things. They have not always been so separated as they are to-day. In the middle ages production was carried on by the guilds of men who owned their tools, and employed their own hands. Capital was not an important separate factor, for it was, as a rule, united with labor in the person of the craftsman. Still later, we have slavery, which united labor and capital in the same hands, namely, the hands of the master. He owned labor precisely as the owned capital. Both, however, in the modern world, are separated. The advocates of slavery were powerful. Again and again they pointed out to the world the advantages of their system. The doctrine that their unity lies in the nature of things. They have not always been so separated as they are to-day. In the middle ages production was carried on by the guilds of men who owned their tools, and employed their own hands. Capital was not an important separate factor, for it was, as a rule, united with labor in the person of the craftsman. Still later, we have slavery, which united labor and capital in the same hands, namely, the hands of the master. He owned labor precisely as the owned capital. Both, however, in the modern world, are separated. The advocates of slavery were powerful. Again and again they pointed out to the world the advantages of their system. The doctrine that their unity lies in the nature of things. They have not always been so separated as they are to-day. In the middle ages production was carried on by the guilds of men who owned their tools, and employed their own hands. Capital was not an important separate factor, for it was, as a rule, united with labor in the person of the craftsman. Still later, we have slavery, which united labor and capital in the same hands, namely, the hands of the master. He owned labor precisely as the owned capital. Both, however, in the modern world, are separated. The advocates of slavery were powerful. Again and again they pointed out to the world the advantages of their system. The doctrine that their unity lies in the nature of things. They have not always been so separated as they are to-day. In the middle ages production was carried on by the guilds of men who owned their tools, and employed their own hands. Capital was not an important separate factor, for it was, as a rule, united with labor in the person of the craftsman. Still later, we have slavery, which united labor and capital in the same hands, namely, the hands of the master. He owned labor precisely as the owned capital. Both, however, in the modern world, are separated. The advocates of slavery were powerful. Again and again they pointed out to the world the advantages of their system. The doctrine that their unity lies in the nature of things. They have not always been so separated as they are to-day. In the middle ages production was carried on by the guilds of men who owned their tools, and employed their own hands. Capital was not an important separate factor, for it was, as a rule, united with labor in the person of the craftsman. Still later, we have slavery, which united labor and capital in the same hands, namely, the hands of the master. He owned labor precisely as the owned capital. Both, however, in the modern world, are separated. The advocates of slavery were powerful. Again and again they pointed out to the world the advantages of their system. The doctrine that their unity lies in the nature of things. They have not always been so separated as they are to-day. In the middle ages production was carried on by the guilds of men who owned their tools, and employed their own hands. Capital was not an important separate factor, for it was, as a rule, united with labor in the person of the craftsman. Still later, we have slavery, which united labor and capital in the same hands, namely, the hands of the master. He owned labor precisely as the owned capital. Both, however, in the modern world, are separated. The advocates of slavery were powerful. Again and again they pointed out to the world the advantages of their system. The doctrine that their unity lies in the nature of things. They have not always been so separated as they are to-day. In the middle ages production was carried on by the guilds of men who owned their tools, and employed their own hands. Capital was not an important separate factor, for it was, as a rule, united with labor in the person of the craftsman. Still later, we have slavery, which united labor and capital in the same hands, namely, the hands of the master. He owned labor precisely as the owned capital. Both, however, in the modern world, are separated. The advocates of slavery were powerful. Again and again they pointed out to the world the advantages of their system. The doctrine that their unity lies in the nature of things. They have not always been so separated as they are to-day. In the middle ages production was carried on by the guilds of men who owned their tools, and employed their own hands. Capital was not an important separate factor, for it was, as a rule, united with labor in the person of the craftsman. Still later, we have slavery, which united labor and capital in the same hands, namely, the hands of the master. He owned labor precisely as the owned capital. Both, however, in the modern world, are separated. The advocates of slavery were powerful. Again and again they pointed out to the world the advantages of their system. The doctrine that their unity lies in the nature of things. They have not always been so separated as they are to-day. In the middle ages production was carried on by the guilds of men who owned their tools, and employed their own hands. Capital was not an important separate factor, for it was, as a rule, united with labor in the person of the craftsman. Still later, we have slavery, which united labor and capital in the same hands, namely, the hands of the master. He owned labor precisely as the owned capital. Both, however, in the modern world, are separated. The advocates of slavery were powerful. Again and again they pointed out to the world the advantages of their system. The doctrine that their unity lies in the nature of things. They have not always been so separated as they are to-day. In the middle ages production was carried on by the guilds of men who owned their tools, and employed their own hands. Capital was not an important separate factor, for it was, as a rule, united with labor in the person of the craftsman. Still later, we have slavery, which united labor and capital in the same hands, namely, the hands of the master. He owned labor precisely as the owned capital. Both, however, in the modern world, are separated. The advocates of slavery were powerful. Again and again they pointed out to the world the advantages of their system. The doctrine that their unity lies in the nature of things. They have not always been so separated as they are to-day. In the middle ages production was carried on by the guilds of men who owned their tools, and employed their own hands. Capital was not an important separate factor, for it was, as a rule, united with labor in the person of the craftsman. Still later, we have slavery, which united labor and capital in the same hands, namely, the hands of the master. He owned labor precisely as the owned capital. Both, however, in the modern world, are separated. The advocates of slavery were powerful. Again and again they pointed out to the world the advantages of their system. The doctrine that their unity lies in the nature of things. They have not always been so separated as they are to-day. In the middle ages production was carried on by the guilds of men who owned their tools, and employed their own hands. Capital was not an important separate factor, for it was, as a rule, united with labor in the person of the craftsman. Still later, we have slavery, which united labor and capital in the same hands, namely, the hands of the master. He owned labor precisely as the owned capital. Both, however, in the modern world, are separated. The advocates of slavery were powerful. Again and again they pointed out to the world the advantages of their system. The doctrine that their unity lies in the nature of things. They have not always been so separated as they are to-day. In the middle ages production was carried on by the guilds of men who owned their tools, and employed their own hands. Capital was not an important separate factor, for it was, as a rule, united with labor in the person of the craftsman. Still later, we have slavery, which united labor and capital in the same hands, namely, the hands of the master. He owned labor precisely as the owned capital. Both, however, in the modern world, are separated. The advocates of slavery were powerful. Again and again they pointed out to the world the advantages of their system. The doctrine that their unity lies in the nature of things. They have not always been so separated as they are to-day. In the middle ages production was carried on by the guilds of men who owned their tools, and employed their own hands. Capital was not an important separate factor, for it was, as a rule, united with labor in the person of the craftsman. Still later, we have slavery, which united labor and capital in the same hands, namely, the hands of the master. He owned labor precisely as the owned capital. Both, however, in the modern world, are separated. The advocates of slavery were powerful. Again and again they pointed out to the world the advantages of their system. The doctrine that their unity lies in the nature of things. They have not always been so separated as they are to-day. In the middle ages production was carried on by the guilds of men who owned their tools, and employed their own hands. Capital was not an important separate factor, for it was, as a rule, united with labor in the person of the craftsman. Still later, we have slavery, which united labor and capital in the same hands, namely, the hands of the master. He owned labor precisely as the owned capital. Both, however, in the modern world, are separated. The advocates of slavery were powerful. Again and again they pointed out to the world the advantages of their system. The doctrine that their unity lies in the nature of things. They have not always been so separated as they are to-day. In the middle ages production was carried on by the guilds of men who owned their tools, and employed their own hands. Capital was not an important separate factor, for it was, as a rule, united with labor in the person of the craftsman. Still later, we have slavery, which united labor and capital in the same hands, namely, the hands of the master. He owned labor precisely as the owned capital. Both, however, in the modern world, are separated. The advocates of slavery were powerful. Again and again they pointed out to the world the advantages of their system. The doctrine that their unity lies in the nature of things. They have not always been so separated as they are to-day. In the middle ages production was carried on by the guilds of men who owned their tools, and employed their own hands. Capital was not an important separate factor, for it was, as a rule, united with labor in the person of the craftsman. Still later, we have slavery, which united labor and capital in the same hands, namely, the hands of the master. He owned labor precisely as the owned capital. Both, however, in the modern world, are separated. The advocates of slavery were powerful. Again and again they pointed out to the world the advantages of their system. The doctrine that their unity lies in the nature of things. They have not always been so separated as they are to-day. In the middle ages production was carried on by the guilds of men who owned their tools, and employed their own hands. Capital was not an important separate factor, for it was, as a rule, united with labor in the person of the craftsman. Still later, we have slavery, which united labor and capital in the same hands, namely, the hands of the master. He owned labor precisely as the owned capital. Both, however, in the modern world, are separated. The advocates of slavery were powerful. Again and again they pointed out to the world the advantages of their system. The doctrine that their unity lies in the nature of things. They have not always been so separated as they are to-day. In the middle ages production was carried on by the guilds of men who owned their tools, and employed their own hands. Capital was not an important separate factor, for it was, as a rule, united with labor in the person of the craftsman. Still later, we have slavery, which united labor and capital in the same hands, namely, the hands of the master. He owned labor precisely as the owned capital. Both, however, in the modern world, are separated. The advocates of slavery were powerful. Again and again they pointed out to the world the advantages of their system. The doctrine that their unity lies in the nature of things. They have not always been so separated as they are to-day. In the middle ages production was carried on by the guilds of men who owned their tools, and employed their own hands. Capital was not an important separate factor, for it was, as a rule, united with labor in the person of the craftsman. Still later, we have slavery, which united labor and capital in the same hands, namely, the hands of the master. He owned labor precisely as the owned capital. Both, however, in the modern world, are separated. The advocates of slavery were powerful. Again and again they pointed out to the world the advantages of their system. The doctrine that their unity lies in the nature of things. They have not always been so separated as they are to-day. In the middle ages production was carried on by the guilds of men who owned their tools, and employed their own hands. Capital was not an important separate factor, for it was, as a rule, united with labor in the person of the craftsman. Still later, we have slavery, which united labor and capital in the same hands, namely, the hands of the master. He owned labor precisely as the owned capital. Both, however, in the modern world, are separated. The advocates of slavery were powerful. Again and again they pointed out to the world the advantages of their system. The doctrine that their unity lies in the nature of things. They have not always been so separated as they are to-day. In the middle ages production was carried on by the guilds of men who owned their tools, and employed their own hands. Capital was not an important separate factor, for it was, as a rule, united with labor in the person of the craftsman. Still later, we have slavery, which united labor and capital in the same hands, namely, the hands of the master. He owned labor precisely as the owned capital. Both, however, in the modern world, are separated. The advocates of slavery were powerful. Again and again they pointed out to the world the advantages of their system. The doctrine that their unity lies in the nature of things. They have not always been so separated as they are to-day. In the middle ages production was carried on by the guilds of men who owned their tools, and employed their own hands. Capital was not an important separate factor, for it was, as a rule, united with labor in the person of the craftsman. Still later, we have slavery, which united labor and capital in the same hands, namely, the hands of the master. He owned labor precisely as the owned capital. Both, however, in the modern world, are separated. The advocates of slavery were powerful. Again and again they pointed out to the world the advantages of their system. The doctrine that their unity lies in the nature of things. They have not always been so separated as they are to-day. In the middle ages production was carried on by the guilds of men who owned their tools, and employed their own hands. Capital was not an important separate factor, for it was, as a rule, united with labor in the person of the craftsman. Still later, we have slavery, which united labor and capital in the same hands, namely, the hands of the master. He owned labor precisely as the owned capital. Both, however, in the modern world, are separated. The advocates of slavery were powerful. Again and again they pointed out to the world the advantages of their system. The doctrine that their unity lies in the nature of things. They have not always been so separated as they are to-day. In the middle ages production was carried on by the guilds of men who owned their tools, and employed their own hands. Capital was not an important separate factor, for it was, as a rule, united with labor in the person of the craftsman. Still later, we have slavery, which united labor and capital in the same hands, namely, the hands of the master. He owned labor precisely as the owned capital. Both, however, in the modern world, are separated. The advocates of slavery were powerful. Again and again they pointed out to the world the advantages of their system. The doctrine that their unity lies in the nature of things. They have not always been so separated as they are to-day. In the middle ages production was carried on by the guilds of men who owned their tools, and employed their own hands. Capital was not an important separate factor, for it was, as a rule, united with labor in the person of the craftsman. Still later, we have slavery, which united labor and capital in the same hands, namely, the hands of the master. He owned labor precisely as the owned capital. Both, however, in the modern world, are separated. The advocates of slavery were powerful. Again and again they pointed out to the world the advantages of their system. The doctrine that their unity lies in the nature of things. They have not always been so separated