The Parmalee-Hardin match shoot for $100 a side, 25 pairs double birds, did not come off yesterday, owing to the non-appearance of Parmalee, who forfelts the $25 staked to bind the match.

Mr. Gill, of New York, was in attendance to-day, but feeling indisposed, did not take part in the shooting. He has, however, joined the Omaha gun club, and will make a strong acquisition to the team.

Mr. Fred Gross, president of the Minne-apolis rifle cub, which is considered one of the best teams in America, has located in Omaha, and will hereafter shoot with the Penrose and Hardin rifle club.

Dr. Worlay is practicing so much at his duck pond that he can't find time to attend even the regular club shoots. He has killed as high as twelve decoys at a single shot several times this summer, and next fall when the birds come in he'll glut the market.

ANOTHER DEFEAT RECORDED

Omaha Plays Poor Ball and Hastings Easily Wins the Game.

A SUCCESSION OF BIG ERRORS.

Omaha Drops the Game. The one thing the Omahas need more than another is the services of an undertaker! As ball players, it seems, they have become

They have lost all their vim and vinegar. and bat and field and run bases like a lot of basket makers.

What are they being fed on?

Who's the hoodoo? Surely they are a sturdy looking set of young fellows, tough and indurated with practice and exercise, and undoubtedly have an abundance of ability.

Or is it true that all that glitters is not gold? That must be the stuff. Yesterday afternoon's game satisfactorily exemplified that. Hastings, yes Hastings, whom they par-alyzed and petrified three weeks ago, literally wiped the chalk off the home plate with

They couldn't catch, nor they couldn't bat, and when one did get on a base providenti-ally, it took a derrick to move him.

And the Hastings, while they were having a wild and untethered midsummer picnic, are also an educated and scholary set of muffers, according to yesterday's statistics. They would make just as good critics of Domenichino. Raphael and Titian as they are ball players, and could babble color and shade, breadth, depth and size as well as they master the intricacies of the great national

They play with almost the same intrepid-

They play with almost the same intrepldity of ignorance that the Omahas do—only yesterday was their turn to win—they just simply couldn't lose.

If they made one error the Omahas would make four, and if the Omahas made one run they'd make three, while the Omahas were prestidigitating with the ball.

It was a horrible game, and the two or three hundred people who saw it, sat sad and silent, like Prometheus chained to the bleak and barren crag of untoward circumstance, and while conscious of the fires of genius burning within the Omahas, the vulture of inexorable fate kept gnawing away at their burning within the Omahas, the vulture of nexorable fate kept gnawing away at their hearts.

Will they ever win again?
There is yet a faint hope.
They play again to-morrow, and should they take the ball it will be like a lilt of melody suffusing our lives as the fields are overflooded with the skylarks' bewildering note.
The game yesterday opened up promisingly. After Walsh and Mclaughlin had retired, Krehmeyer reached his base on a must by Reising, and Dwyer brought him in on a three-bagger to right. Bader dying at first, the Hastings came in.

Reising wielded the willow and sent a ball curving like an arch of hope in the sky to McLaughlin, and McLaughlin must dit in the highest style of the art, to use a new expression. Ebright then sent a similar fly to McLaughlin, and McLaughlin muffed it in the highest style of the art, to use a new expression. Ebright then sent a similar fly to Bader and Bader even eclipsed Mac's work, and then, the next minute, when he let Curtis' grounder get by him, the air for a few minutes was thick enough to cut, for Reising and Ebright both ambled home. After this three men were quickly retired.

In the second, it was one, two, three for Omaha, but the Hastings added another brace of tallies to their side. Walsh opened up the serenade, but was extinguished at first by a circus stop and throw by Krehmeyer. After this on Wehrle's clean hit, and another execrable muff by McLaughlin, the ball going under the new inside fence, not only did Wehrle score, but Reising, the batter, too.

In the third Walsh hit safe to center, and was followed by McLaughlin with a two baser to same garden, Walsh scoring. But that was all they could do. Hastings, however, went them two better on one hit and two outs, three errors and a beautiful drive for a home run over right field fence by Fatty Weish.

a home run over right field fence by Fatty

Welsh.

In the succeeding inning Messitt made a three sacker, and tailled on Bandle's long fly to center, starting home after the ball had settled in Curtis' hands. Genins also got settled in Curtis' hands. Genins also got home in this inning on errors. For the Hastings Reynolds was hit with the ball, and on Genius' muff of Peoples' ily scored.

Neither side scored in the fifth or sixth, strange to relate, but in the seventh Healey happened to hit a three-bagger, and was helped home on errors. For the men from the west Hughes bunted the ball, Lanman made a two and Welsh a three bagger, Hughes and Laumen scoring.

In the eighth by a two bagger by Dwyer and several chump plays by Reising, Peoples and Curtis, he and Messitt both succeeded in crossing the plate. The Hastings falled to score, as did the Omahas in the ninth, and thus the beautiful dream faded.

A Big War Cloud. LINCOLN. Neb., July 9.- | Special to the Bus. |- There is a small war apparently in the Western league and a manifest desire on the part of the southern towns to run things with a high hand. A short time ago l'resident J. H. Threw, of the Western league, called a meeting of the league to be held at Lincoln restorday, and about the same time Secretary Murphy, of Leavenworth, began to assume the president's duties himself by cali-

ing a meeting and leaving the impression prominent in his telegraphic call that the president himself had changed the call to Leavenworth. Laboring under this misunderstanding, a number of the towns in the league assembled at Leavenworth Friday, and all towns were represented except Omaha and Lincoln. At this illegal meeting the six clubs represented proceeded to decapitate President Threw and they went throughthe operation of electing Secretary Murphy as President, also making him the president secretary and treasurer and custodian, as president, of his bonds as secretary and treasurer. The proceeding is undoubtedly illegal in every feature, and if the Lincoln club takes hold of the matter as they contemplate doing it can't be long until Mr. Murphy will be a fit subject for impeachment himself. At the meeting of represenatives from six clubs nothing was done regarding the vacancy in the league caused by the sale of Leavenworth representative sat in the meeting and represented the defunct club in helping to carry out the schemes.

There was not the sign of a kick yesterday on either side against his decisions, and no unseemly wrangling among the players. It was a magnanimous thing on the part of the directors in not blacklisting the rebel-lious members of the team. The punish-ment administered, under all the circumstances, is severe enough. The management of the Omahas will do everything within their power to strengthen the team. Within the coming week there will be no less than five new faces seen upon the local diamond, but they come, of course, on trial. The board of directors held a meeting at Penrose & Hardin's last evening, with President Shields in the chair. erately active during the week just closed, but was more of a general character than during the previous two or three weeks. Considerable money was required to pay for grain and provisions delivered on July contracts, but no difficulty was experienced in obtaining all the money wanted, at reasonable rates of interest. Bankers generally insisted, however, on wide margins and undoubted security. Some money was forwarded to the interior, mainly to corn and live stock districts and chiefly through commission houses. The inquiry from the lumber interest was fair and manufacturers were only small borrowers. Merchants in the wholesale trade presented some paper for discount and succeeded in obtaining all the favors requested. The liberal shipments of grain and provisions have had a tendency to increase the supply of loanable funds, especially at the leading banking institutions and the money market is gradually working easier though it is doubtful if interest rates will reach the low average of previous summer. The banks no doubt will be in a more comfortable position than for some time past as stocks of grain will be slowly reduced for some time yet, and consequently less money will be needed in that branch of trade. New York exchange was rather dull early in the week with large offerings and only a moderate demand, and sales were made between banks at 25c discount per $1,000 Later offerings were lighter, while the demand was more active and the market showed more strength, with sales between banks at 25050c premium per $1,000, closing at 50c premium.

Foreign exchange was offered rather freely early in the week, owing to increased ship-ments of flour and grain, and sales of ship-per's sixty days documentary bills on Lon-don were made at $4.89\(\preceq (\precedits 1.)\). Toward the close the feeling was steadier, and sales were made at $4.81\(\preceq \precedits 4.81\(\precedits 4.81\(\precedits 4.81\)\(\precedits 4.81\(\precedits 4.81\(\precedits 4.81\)\(\precedits 4.81\(\precedits 4.81\(\precedits 4.81\(\precedits 4.81\)\(\precedits 4.81\(\precedits 4.81\(\prece The New York stock market has exhibited little life during the past week and a nervous and unsettled feeling prevailed. Wall street operators traded moderately, but outside parties were not inclined to trade to any extent, the severe break in prices of two weeks are having had a tendency to curtail weeks ago having had a tendency to curtail weeks ago having had a tendency to curtail outside trading, especially among small operators. Prices have ruled irregular within a small range and have averaged lower. Esrnings of leading railroads still show an increase, but speculators do not seem disposed to follow any upward turn in prices. Foreign operators traded moderately and at irregular prices. Sales on the New York stock exchange for thr week aggregated 130,000 shares.

Trading has been only moderately active in produce circles during the week just closed. The opening doy of the month witnessed considerable activity, but since that time trading has been of holiday character. The deliveries on July contracts, while large in the aggregate, were not as liberal as anticipated. The greater portion of property, ticipated. The greater portion of property, however, was transferred, though not all directly, through commission houses, and the great bulk of the grain and provisions no loubt centered in strong hands. The mardoubt centered in strong hands. The markets in a general way were dull and dragging, and fluctuations in prices were confined within a narrow range. The produce trade is generally recovering from the effects of the recent severe decline in the wheat market, and with increased receipts of new grain it is anticipated that a general revival of business will take place.

f business will take place. The crops of small grain are no doubt excellent in quality, though the yield is some-what irregular in different sections. The west has been visited by frequent heavy rains, and the outlook for all crops is more rains, and the outlook for all crops is more promising than reported two weeks ago. The shipping inquiry for grain has been quite active and a considerable portion of the wheat and corn accepted on July contracts has been forwarded by various routes to the distributing centers. The receipts of grain have been light at all the principal western markets. Exports of grain and provisions have been moderately large with prospects that they will be well maintained during the coming two or three months.

The arrivals of live stock continue moderately free at all western points. The packing of the west is progressing favorably though the aggregate returns are only slightly in excess of those of one year ago.

GIBRALTAR. The "Key of the Mediterranean" a

Bewildering Array of Batteries. St. James Gazette: During his first few nours in Gibraltar, an Englishman is deeply impressed with the strength and importance of this the most ancient of our Mediterranean possessions. He walks past long lines of bastions built of massive masonry; he sees guns in every direction —guns lining the bastions, guns frown-ing from the tar-famed galleries, guns half concealed in the foliage of the Alameda gardens. The whole peninsula appears one vast and impregnable fort-ress. On every available spot is a battery barrack, a magazine or a store, a hospital or a prison.

There are guards and sentries, pickets and patrols, firing of morning and evening guns, locking up of gates, and regulations for the exclusion of aliens ur provided with official passes: in a word. ill the pomp and circumstance, if not of glorious war, at any rate of vigilant peace fully prepared to draw the sword at any moment. The stranger of course, hurries off at once to see the galleries, and here the first impression is most gratifying to his national pride. He climbs the northwest and north face of the rock by a series of cyclopean tunnels pierced at intervals by cell-like embrasures, each of which contains a gun and a pile of ammunition ready for use: while ranching off from the main galleries are other tunnels, which lead to powder magazines and stores hewn out of the very bowels of the mountain.

It is impossible to be struck by the normous amount of labor which has been expended in constructing these vast works, especially those executed during the great siege (1779-83)—the thiad at-tempt which was made in the 18th century to wrest from our hands the con-quest of Rooke, the key of the Mediterranean. The views from the embrasures are most picturesque, and at every mo-ment recall some fresh incident of that magnificent defense when the British garrison of 6,000 men successfully held their own agninst 61,000 French and Spanish troops, supported by a fleet of

From the western galleries the Bay of Algesiras lies spread out before you, its plue waters dotted with felucca-rigged fishing craft, but near our shore distigured by long lines of shapeless hulks on which is stored the coal supply for our shipping. You proudly think of that memorable day in April, 1782, when, from the Span-ish camp, the French bourbon princes, destined in a few short years to become the pensioners of England, witnessed the tota failure of the bombardment which all Spain had flocked to see, and which it had been confidently predicted would crush our garrison and win back the rock.

A long steep climb in mysterious semidarkness brings you to a great cavern full of guns; and you look out to the northward over the Spanish lines into Spaid, with the glorious panorama of the purple sharp-peaked mountains of Ronda stretching far away to the cast-ward toward Malaga. This battery is many hundred feet above the sea level; the cliff out of which it is cut is almost perpendicular. Far below you is the North Front, with a line battation at drill, looking for all the world like little red ants. All this is classic groundr for it is the scene of the great sortic of November, 1781, when 2,000 British troops sailed forth against the besieging armies, at-tacked and destroyed their batteries, and spiked their most destructive guns. In a still higher gallery is the embrasure through which flank fire is directed along the eastern face of the rock, designed to prevent any repetition of the daring enterprise of 1704, when during the first sieg, which followed close upon our capture of the fortress, the gallant Figueroa succeeded, with 500 Spaniards, in scaling this tremendous precipice.

The Bulgarian Throne. St. Petersnerg, July 9.-Russian newspapers unanimously disapprove of the election of Prince Ferdinand of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, to the Bulgarian throne. They all pronounce the choice of him by the sobranje as a result of Austro-German intrigue, and urge the porte to intervene and the powers to withdraw their representatives from Sofia. The Novoe-Vremya says Russia in no case will allow Prince Ferdinand to go to Sona and adds that if he arrives there with an Aus

A Happy Old Clown. From the New Orleans Picayone: One of the happiest men in New Orleans to-day is Colonel Dan Rice, who is here with his Texas bride on their way to Cincinnate. The veteran showman ap-pears to have renewed his youth, so fine he looks. The story of his life, which has been a remarkable one, is soon to be published in book form. His visit to this office yesterday was for the purpose of selecting for this book some of the numerous anecdotes about himself from the files of the Picayune thirty and forty years back, when he was the most popu-
