

THE DAILY BEE. PUBLISHED EVERY MORNING.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION: Daily Morning Edition including Sunday... One Year, $10.00; Six Months, $6.00; Three Months, $3.50.

ADVERTISING: All communications relating to news and editorial matters should be addressed to the Editor of the Bee.

THE BEE PUBLISHING COMPANY, PROPRIETORS. E. ROSEWATER, Editor.

Sworn Statement of Circulation. State of Nebraska, ss. County of Douglas.

Table showing circulation statistics for the Daily Bee from July 1 to July 9, 1887. Includes columns for date, circulation, and average.

Sworn to and subscribed in my presence this 9th day of July, A. D. 1887. N. P. FEIL, Notary Public.

State of Nebraska, ss. Douglas County, ss. Deposes and says that he is secretary of The Bee Publishing Company.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 1st day of July A. D. 1887. N. P. FEIL, Notary Public.

Contents of the Sunday Bee. Page 1. New York Herald Cablegrams—Specials to the Bee.—General Telegraphic News.

The number of celebrated mysterious murders which have taken place in Connecticut within the past eight years is in excess of like murders in the balance of the United States.

AFTER almost two years delay of justice, Maxwell, the eminent St. Louis murderer, has arrived at the conclusion that his fate is sealed and he will hang on the 28th proximo.

WHEN Thurston discovered that his clients had put their foot in it by failing to get a majority of the council on record for the resolution awarding to the Republic the contract for official advertising.

GOVERNOR PATTON is still trying hard to find somebody who could explain some of those singular U. P. vouchers. When Mr. Poppleton's able colleague Judge Usher was before the Commission at Kansas City.

THE Bee has no doubt of it. Those oil room fellows always are awful dry and hungry. We venture to say nobody in these parts knows that fact better than John M. Thurston and we can prove it by him if he is not decoyed on another cat fish excursion.

THERE are some very interesting contributions to ancient history being made by the Pacific railway commission. While relating the history of the struggle for the location of the eastern terminus of the Pacific railroad before the commission at Kansas City Judge Usher, who was in Lincoln's cabinet at that time.

But in due time Lincoln was overruled and the terminus was relocated by Sidney Dillon's nephew, who was then United States circuit judge and is now the general consulting attorney of the Union Pacific.

The Florida Humor of It. The supreme joke of the injunction suit against the city yesterday was the statement in Rosewater's petition that the Republic "contract is so loosely drawn that it places it in the power of said company to defraud the taxpayers, ad infinitum, and said contract is vicious and contrary to sound business principles."

The flord humor of it lies in the fact that the contract was copied verbatim from the one under which the Bee has acted for a year, the only change being in a substitution of the titles of the papers.

In its way it is funny, however.—Republic.

This is by no means the first time that the power of the courts had to be invoked in Omaha to restrain jobbery and reckless methods in the letting of municipal contracts. The supreme joke of these injunction suits has been the discomfiture of boodlers, and the flord humor of it is that John M. Thurston is nearly always on hand to plead in defense of the lawless and corrupt methods pursued by dishonest contractors and unprincipled councilmen.

With all due deference to the voracity of our amiable contemporary, we still maintain that this bogus contract is loosely drawn, vicious and contrary to sound principles. The flord humor of it lies in the proposals and the bid, which leaves to the publishers of the Republic the option to print the official advertisements in any type they may see fit to use, and measure the same by any standard which will yield them the largest income.

It might be taken to mean that in the absence of the necessary bath privileges, that this auxiliary to cleanliness and good health is not a custom of the San Francisco people. Upon the other hand it may be construed into meaning that the eastern people will stand more in need of baths than anything else—that they are unaccustomed to such conveniences at home.

There has been a marked growth of interest within a few years in the kindergarten as a means of primary instruction, and the success achieved where this system has been most carefully employed, notably in St. Louis, has served to stimulate this interest.

There is a suit at present on trial in a Baltimore court under the majestic and impressive title of "William H. Perkins, worthy ruler of St. Thomas' lodge, against Augustus Thomas, grand royal king of the united and consolidated order of brothers and sisters and sons and daughters of the knights of four men and the members of the supreme grand royal house."

The climax in the mad career of King Kalakaua, of the Hawaii island, has been reached, and the king, though still occupying the throne, has been shorn of his prerogatives. His cabinet has been hurled from power and a new administration of ministerial officers have been placed in charge of the government.

At this moment the wife of the king, Queen Kapaeha, is upon the bosom of the Atlantic enroute from London to New York, and will probably reach the latter city about Monday.

Her mission to England was to raise funds with which to aid the king in retaining possession of the government, in which it is reported she was unsuccessful. The dusky queen can not know of the uprising of her people until she sails up the bay at New York.

The practical dethronement of King Kalakaua is not unexpected. He has been carrying things with a high hand. He lost sight of the interest of his people and was plunging his government hopelessly in debt, and he himself living a life of debauchery, ignoring all senses of morality and self respect.

The Golden Shore Excursion. The people of San Francisco and the Pacific coast in general are now upon the verge of ecstacy, so to speak. It is given out by the passenger agents of the various railroads for the east that arrangements have been perfected for the transportation of upwards of 80,000 eastern tourists from New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Connecticut and New England to the golden shores of the Pacific.

The golden slope metropolis hopes there will be a hundred thousand and "more the merrier." The tickets upon which the announced 60,000 will travel will be good returning three months from date of starting. Sixty thousand people will leave a surplus of cash in the golden city at the lowest possible figure, $3 a day for each traveler. For one day this means a revenue to the hotels of San Francisco alone $180,000.

Such was the acclain that resounded through the streets of Paris on Friday when the favorite general of France was about to leave the capital to assume command of the thirteenth army corps, to which he was recently assigned by the minister of war.

The Omaha manager of Dunn & Co.'s mercantile agency most emphatically pronounced as spurious the so-called review of building activity in leading American cities which was sent out by the Associated Press last week as emanating from Dunn & Co.—so far at least as it relates to Omaha.

The Omaha manager of Dunn & Co.'s mercantile agency most emphatically pronounced as spurious the so-called review of building activity in leading American cities which was sent out by the Associated Press last week as emanating from Dunn & Co.—so far at least as it relates to Omaha.

What are the possibilities of the not far future? It may be idle to conjecture. The present week may be a most eventful one for France. It will witness the close of the national assembly, which it has been predicted would make the beginning of stirring events.

There is a suit at present on trial in a Baltimore court under the majestic and impressive title of "William H. Perkins, worthy ruler of St. Thomas' lodge, against Augustus Thomas, grand royal king of the united and consolidated order of brothers and sisters and sons and daughters of the knights of four men and the members of the supreme grand royal house."

The climax in the mad career of King Kalakaua, of the Hawaii island, has been reached, and the king, though still occupying the throne, has been shorn of his prerogatives. His cabinet has been hurled from power and a new administration of ministerial officers have been placed in charge of the government.

At this moment the wife of the king, Queen Kapaeha, is upon the bosom of the Atlantic enroute from London to New York, and will probably reach the latter city about Monday.

Her mission to England was to raise funds with which to aid the king in retaining possession of the government, in which it is reported she was unsuccessful. The dusky queen can not know of the uprising of her people until she sails up the bay at New York.

heart colder than an iron wedge. In plain language, he is a hog. The generous hearted people at the west would not exchange dispositions with the dudes of the effete east if the entire wealth of Manhattan Island was given in boot.

The merits and advantages of the kindergarten system have certainly been most conclusively demonstrated in St. Louis, and while there may be difficulties in the way of adopting it as a part of the public school system, it has been shown that these are not insurmountable.

Such was the acclain that resounded through the streets of Paris on Friday when the favorite general of France was about to leave the capital to assume command of the thirteenth army corps, to which he was recently assigned by the minister of war.

The Omaha manager of Dunn & Co.'s mercantile agency most emphatically pronounced as spurious the so-called review of building activity in leading American cities which was sent out by the Associated Press last week as emanating from Dunn & Co.—so far at least as it relates to Omaha.

What are the possibilities of the not far future? It may be idle to conjecture. The present week may be a most eventful one for France. It will witness the close of the national assembly, which it has been predicted would make the beginning of stirring events.

There is a suit at present on trial in a Baltimore court under the majestic and impressive title of "William H. Perkins, worthy ruler of St. Thomas' lodge, against Augustus Thomas, grand royal king of the united and consolidated order of brothers and sisters and sons and daughters of the knights of four men and the members of the supreme grand royal house."

The climax in the mad career of King Kalakaua, of the Hawaii island, has been reached, and the king, though still occupying the throne, has been shorn of his prerogatives. His cabinet has been hurled from power and a new administration of ministerial officers have been placed in charge of the government.

At this moment the wife of the king, Queen Kapaeha, is upon the bosom of the Atlantic enroute from London to New York, and will probably reach the latter city about Monday.

Her mission to England was to raise funds with which to aid the king in retaining possession of the government, in which it is reported she was unsuccessful. The dusky queen can not know of the uprising of her people until she sails up the bay at New York.

The practical dethronement of King Kalakaua is not unexpected. He has been carrying things with a high hand. He lost sight of the interest of his people and was plunging his government hopelessly in debt, and he himself living a life of debauchery, ignoring all senses of morality and self respect.

to the first of these matters it must be confessed that the evangelist committed an error in disregarding the municipal regulation requiring him to get a permit from the mayor in order to preach on the streets. He should have complied with the law, regardless of his own view of it.

The merits and advantages of the kindergarten system have certainly been most conclusively demonstrated in St. Louis, and while there may be difficulties in the way of adopting it as a part of the public school system, it has been shown that these are not insurmountable.

Such was the acclain that resounded through the streets of Paris on Friday when the favorite general of France was about to leave the capital to assume command of the thirteenth army corps, to which he was recently assigned by the minister of war.

The Omaha manager of Dunn & Co.'s mercantile agency most emphatically pronounced as spurious the so-called review of building activity in leading American cities which was sent out by the Associated Press last week as emanating from Dunn & Co.—so far at least as it relates to Omaha.

What are the possibilities of the not far future? It may be idle to conjecture. The present week may be a most eventful one for France. It will witness the close of the national assembly, which it has been predicted would make the beginning of stirring events.

There is a suit at present on trial in a Baltimore court under the majestic and impressive title of "William H. Perkins, worthy ruler of St. Thomas' lodge, against Augustus Thomas, grand royal king of the united and consolidated order of brothers and sisters and sons and daughters of the knights of four men and the members of the supreme grand royal house."

The climax in the mad career of King Kalakaua, of the Hawaii island, has been reached, and the king, though still occupying the throne, has been shorn of his prerogatives. His cabinet has been hurled from power and a new administration of ministerial officers have been placed in charge of the government.

At this moment the wife of the king, Queen Kapaeha, is upon the bosom of the Atlantic enroute from London to New York, and will probably reach the latter city about Monday.

Her mission to England was to raise funds with which to aid the king in retaining possession of the government, in which it is reported she was unsuccessful. The dusky queen can not know of the uprising of her people until she sails up the bay at New York.

The practical dethronement of King Kalakaua is not unexpected. He has been carrying things with a high hand. He lost sight of the interest of his people and was plunging his government hopelessly in debt, and he himself living a life of debauchery, ignoring all senses of morality and self respect.

energetic old gentleman to do. Let him smother his friendship for Charles Francis Adams and the Union Pacific road and give that institution a similar overhauling. When he opens his eyes to the fact that the most soulless monopolies that ever ground a people and brings the Union Pacific railway company to understand that the people have rights that must be respected, then the Flail will again take him into its confidence and assist him in succeeding Paddock, who is likely to be at the most, a figurehead for the United States senate.

The merits and advantages of the kindergarten system have certainly been most conclusively demonstrated in St. Louis, and while there may be difficulties in the way of adopting it as a part of the public school system, it has been shown that these are not insurmountable.

Such was the acclain that resounded through the streets of Paris on Friday when the favorite general of France was about to leave the capital to assume command of the thirteenth army corps, to which he was recently assigned by the minister of war.

The Omaha manager of Dunn & Co.'s mercantile agency most emphatically pronounced as spurious the so-called review of building activity in leading American cities which was sent out by the Associated Press last week as emanating from Dunn & Co.—so far at least as it relates to Omaha.

What are the possibilities of the not far future? It may be idle to conjecture. The present week may be a most eventful one for France. It will witness the close of the national assembly, which it has been predicted would make the beginning of stirring events.

There is a suit at present on trial in a Baltimore court under the majestic and impressive title of "William H. Perkins, worthy ruler of St. Thomas' lodge, against Augustus Thomas, grand royal king of the united and consolidated order of brothers and sisters and sons and daughters of the knights of four men and the members of the supreme grand royal house."

The climax in the mad career of King Kalakaua, of the Hawaii island, has been reached, and the king, though still occupying the throne, has been shorn of his prerogatives. His cabinet has been hurled from power and a new administration of ministerial officers have been placed in charge of the government.

At this moment the wife of the king, Queen Kapaeha, is upon the bosom of the Atlantic enroute from London to New York, and will probably reach the latter city about Monday.

Her mission to England was to raise funds with which to aid the king in retaining possession of the government, in which it is reported she was unsuccessful. The dusky queen can not know of the uprising of her people until she sails up the bay at New York.

The practical dethronement of King Kalakaua is not unexpected. He has been carrying things with a high hand. He lost sight of the interest of his people and was plunging his government hopelessly in debt, and he himself living a life of debauchery, ignoring all senses of morality and self respect.

energetic old gentleman to do. Let him smother his friendship for Charles Francis Adams and the Union Pacific road and give that institution a similar overhauling. When he opens his eyes to the fact that the most soulless monopolies that ever ground a people and brings the Union Pacific railway company to understand that the people have rights that must be respected, then the Flail will again take him into its confidence and assist him in succeeding Paddock, who is likely to be at the most, a figurehead for the United States senate.

The merits and advantages of the kindergarten system have certainly been most conclusively demonstrated in St. Louis, and while there may be difficulties in the way of adopting it as a part of the public school system, it has been shown that these are not insurmountable.

Such was the acclain that resounded through the streets of Paris on Friday when the favorite general of France was about to leave the capital to assume command of the thirteenth army corps, to which he was recently assigned by the minister of war.

The Omaha manager of Dunn & Co.'s mercantile agency most emphatically pronounced as spurious the so-called review of building activity in leading American cities which was sent out by the Associated Press last week as emanating from Dunn & Co.—so far at least as it relates to Omaha.

What are the possibilities of the not far future? It may be idle to conjecture. The present week may be a most eventful one for France. It will witness the close of the national assembly, which it has been predicted would make the beginning of stirring events.

There is a suit at present on trial in a Baltimore court under the majestic and impressive title of "William H. Perkins, worthy ruler of St. Thomas' lodge, against Augustus Thomas, grand royal king of the united and consolidated order of brothers and sisters and sons and daughters of the knights of four men and the members of the supreme grand royal house."

The climax in the mad career of King Kalakaua, of the Hawaii island, has been reached, and the king, though still occupying the throne, has been shorn of his prerogatives. His cabinet has been hurled from power and a new administration of ministerial officers have been placed in charge of the government.

At this moment the wife of the king, Queen Kapaeha, is upon the bosom of the Atlantic enroute from London to New York, and will probably reach the latter city about Monday.

Her mission to England was to raise funds with which to aid the king in retaining possession of the government, in which it is reported she was unsuccessful. The dusky queen can not know of the uprising of her people until she sails up the bay at New York.

The practical dethronement of King Kalakaua is not unexpected. He has been carrying things with a high hand. He lost sight of the interest of his people and was plunging his government hopelessly in debt, and he himself living a life of debauchery, ignoring all senses of morality and self respect.