THE SPECULATIVE MARKETS.

A Combination of Circumstances Causes the Wheat Market to Strengthen.

PRICES TAKE AN UPWARD TURN.

A Large Decrease Expected in the Visible Supply-Corn Opens Weak But Closes Better-General Quotations.

CHICAGO PRODUCE MARKET. CHICAGO, July 9,-[Special Telegram to the BEE.1—A prospective decrease in the visible supply of anywhere from 3,000,000 to 4,000,000 bushels, further press and private advices of crop damage in the northwest and southeast, the receipt of the government crop report for July, indicating a small reduction in the winter wheat average and a drop of 8 points in spring wheat as compared with the last monthly bulletin, were causes that combined to stimulate the wheat market to-day and prices closed at an advance of %@%c, July, August and December being the strongest months in the list. General rains fell last night and this morning and the market openened weak and declining on weather news, but the shipping statistics were so very strong that they could not fail to exert a strong influence on values. The local shorts very generally figured as buyers, and the scalping element took the long side. There was a promiscuous scattering of investment demand all through the session, and after the first half-hour the market failed to show more than momentary weakness at any stage of proceedings. July wheat sold at the beginning at 70% and closed at 71%c. August started at 721/c, receded to 72@721/c, and advanced to 73c, where it closed. September ranged 74 @741se low and 75e high, closing at 74% @75c. December ranged 78% of low and 79% @79% chigh, and rested at the closing at 74% (675c. December ranged 78% c low and 79% (679% chigh, and rested at the putside. The volume of trading was rather above the average, though no concentrated action on either side was noticeable. The tone of the foreign markets was rather steadier and it is observed that while the old world consumers are industriously blocking and whittling down values, they are buying heavily of American cheap wheat and pulling it out of the country as fast as possible. During the past week next to nothing has arrived at primary points, and the scattering of the visible stocks has been going on at a noticeable rate. From this city alone, in five days, 1,108,000 bushels have been shipped, and from the Atlantic ports during the same period 2,200,000 bushels have been cleared, an increase over last week of 800,000 bushels. The local stocks will probably show a decrease of about 1,500,000 bushels. There was a weak and lower opening to the corn market on the weather, more rain having fallen during the past twenty-four hours throughout the west. The starting sales were at 36% for August, 37% for September, 37% for October, and 39% for May. This was 1,40% below yesterday's closing. Under the face of speculative offerings the market sagged 3,60% concer for all futures this side of May, but at the decline there were increased buying orders. The shorts were disposed to cover, and when those who had sold early tried to buy in the market firmed up on them, recovering within a small fraction all of the ground lost. August closed at 301,4030 %, September at 37% (2037% c. October at 37% c, and May at 39% c. The break in the New York market on the hot corn scare had no perceptible effect upon values here. The local cash trade was again quiet to-day, with not much doing. The shipments for the week, however, largely exceed the receipts, and there has been a reduction in local stocks during that time of about 1,000,000 bushel. To-day's speculative basiness was of fair average volume, though it partook largely of an evening-up charac butside. The volume of trading was rather steady and unchanged at 31%c. All futures were a little lower around the opening and speculative trading for the day was light.

The provision market recovered a little from yesterday's apathy. More general interest was manifested, and while there was no continued life, the business transacted was noticeably larger. Speculation, as usual, was confined to short ribs and lard, which was inclined to act aymnathetically and was confined to short ribs and lard, which were inclined to act sympathetically and both of which ruled higher. In lard the established advance was 10@12½c, and in short ribs, 7½@10c. The closings for these articles were at or near the best prices obtained, while the openings were, as a rule, at inside figures. August and September were the active deliveries. Future pork was inactive, cash being quoted at $17.00.

NEW YORK, July 9 .- | Special Telegram to the BER. |-STOCKS-The market to-day was a regular Saturday one-dull and uninteresting, with only half a dozen really ac-tive stocks in the list. The bank statement was decidedly favorable, showing an increase In the reserve of $3,701,375. Money was easy and there being few long stocks offered, the shorts thought it best to cover, and advances of 1/4 to 1/4 per cent were secured. Lacka-wanna, however, acted independent, and broke 1/2 per cent, but rallied 1 per cent. eacon White's friend said he was a bear and Lackawanna must go lower, but they did not expect it to break 10 points. OMARA LIVE STOCK.

Saturday, July 9. Cattle.

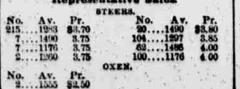

The run of cattle to-day was unusually heavy for Saturday and more than double the receipts for any day this week. A large proportion of the cattle were western steers. The general market was slow and weak and was dragging all day. Not over half of the receipts changed hands and shippers took the bulk of these.

Hoge. The receipts of hogs were also very heavy for the close of the week, and 1600 in excess of the heaviest day's receipts this week. The market opened a little slow on account of the heavy run, but as soon as the buyers got to work it livened up, and the bulk was soon sold out. The buyers insisted from the first on taking off 5@10c from yesterday's prices and the hogs were all sold at that decline. There were a good many late arrivals but they sold as fast as they could be unloaded.

Sheen. There were a few in to-day, the first for this week, which sold on the market country life was ahead of city life.

C. F. Reno of Reno & Storrs, Oakdale, was in with six loads of cattle and one load of hogs. He was accompanied by Mr. Cole a druggist at Oakdale and also by Mr. Storrs, the father of the young man who was drowned some six months ago while on a visit to his old home in Harrisburg, Pa. This is Mr. Storrs first trip west and he is very enthusiastic over Nebraska.
