THE LAND BILL.

Discussed at Length in the House of Commons.

London, July 11.—In the commons this evening, Balfour, chief secretary for Ireland, discussed at length the Irish land bill, and it was merely an amendatory bill, one trying to remedy the injustice which experience had shown arose under the acts of parliament of 1870 and 1871.

Chamberlain strongly urged the house not to reject this temporary effort at a settlement, and at the same time asked the government whether the time had not come to consider the position of the landlords, who were hard pressed by the bill, and who had other charges created when the land was more profitable.
