NATIONAL EDUCATORS. Series of Important Resolutions

Adopted by the Convention. CHICAGO, July 15.—At the national educa-tional convention the following officers were elected: Aaron Gove, of Colorado, for president; James H. Canfield, Kansas, secretary; Edwin C. Hewitt, Illinois, treasurer. Among the vice presidents were: Rose C. Swart, of Wisconsin; A. R. Sabin, Illinois. Among the directors were: A. G. Lane, Illinois; R. G. Saunderson, lowa; George L. Farnham, Nebraska; T. C. Chamberlain, Wisconsin; George A. McFarland, Dakota. The following papers were read this morning: "The place the manual training school should occupy in a system of public schools; (a.) in urban communities and in large towns, by General Francis Walker, president of the Massachusetts institute of technology, Boston; (b.) in country districts, by Super-Intendent M. A. Newell, Baltimore; (c.) kinds of schools to be introduced and practical methods of instruction, by Miss L. A. Fay, Springfield. Mass., with illustrations. Discussion was opened by C. W. Woodward, of St. Louis.

The report of the committee on resolutions, which was read and adopted, asks for a more complete divorcement of school officers and politics; the extension of the school year and the increase of teachers' wages in rural districts; the adoption of some plan whereby meritorious teachers, after long service, may be honorably retired; the passage of laws where necessary, to secure the attendance at public schools of all persons of school age who are deficient in the rudiments of an English education; and the fostering of the kindergarten system. The following are the concluding resolutions:

We express our profound interest in the education of the Indians: heartily commend ucation of the Indians; heartily commend the spirit of liberty snown by congress in the matter, and call special attention to the important and encouraging results already achieved. We recommend to the several state legislatures the adoption of the follow-and sale of impure literature.

Third, laws forbidding the sale of tobacco on motion of Mr. Mayo, a committe of three On motion of Mr. Mayo, a committe of three was appointed to communicate with appropriate committees in congress concerning the resolution of the convention on the subject of education. Mr. Mayo said that he had travelled in every state in the south, and had a strong conviction that unless national aid was speedily and generously afforded to the southern people in their heroic efforts to grapple with this great problem the wished for consummation must be delayed for another generation. The schools of the south were doing as much as they were able to do, and yet only 300,000 of the children were receiving as much as four months' gaucation in celving as much as four months' education in a year.

The President's Party.

FORESTPORT, N. Y., July 15,-The president did not rise to breakfast with the rest of the family, but remained bed till noon. He is suffering from fatigue and a slight attack of cholera morbus. Dr. Brower called during the morning and gave a little medicine. Airs. Cleveland's eye pains her still, and altogether the party is sadly in need of the rest they are now enjoying. The president has decided not to alter the arrangements made for an excursion for to-morrow.

The president went to his room again in The president went to his room again in the afternoon and remained there until nearly 7 o'clock, when he began to prepare for the reception. It was a great night for the hamlet of Forestport. People drove in from all sections and in all kinds of conveyances. Bands gave an open air concert on the hill just beside the parsonage, and anxious people filled the steps and yards, the crowd extending in an orderly line out into the street. The guests were presented to the president and his wife by Mrs. William N. Cleveland and Commissioner Kernan. During the evening over 700 persons were shaken by the hand by both the president and his wite.

Clothing Salesmen's Association. The clothing salesmen of the city met last evening in Metz's hail and bonded themselves into an organization to be known as the Omaha Clothing Salesmen's association. The object is for the promotion of salesmen and employes, and the purpose of friendly intercourse and mutual improvement and profit. There were probably fifty representatives of the different houses in attendance and a per-manent organization was effected by the election of Mr. Hudson, of the Misfit clothing pariors, president; Mr. Meyers, of M. evening at the same place.

It is understood that the Republican will make another bitter attack on Chief of Police Seavey. Leastwise that was the tip going around among the coterie of choice spirits which are in sympathy with the warfare upon the chief and the police commission. Last night members of "de gang" were chuckling in the Farnam street resort about the attack which they said was to appear, and in beery enthusiasm gave it away to persons in the vicinity. It is probable there is as much in the latest onslaught as there has been in the previous attacks upon Seavey-the vaporings of a mind excited by too copious draughts of cool and foaming lager.

A ROUND UP. The Police Gather in Disreputable

Females. The women's quarters at the Central police station were crowded last night by a shaggy, garrulous crowd of eigarette smoking females. Yesterday a list containing the names of twenty-five fallen women was put into the hands of Captain Green and Sergeant Mostyn and all night long the two officers kept the pa trol wagon busy hauling in the creatures by twos and threes. At 3 o'clock there had been twenty arrested, with others still to hear from. They were made up of the very lowest of their class and were delinquent on their fines. The station was made hideous by the ribaid jests of the females, each succeeding arrival being greeted by a chorus of vile females voicing the coarse reception. Several were released by order of the chief on depositing $10 bail for appear-ance before the judge this morning.

To Carpenter Contractors.

The committee of journeymen carpenters respectfully request you in case of any misunderstanding or trouble whatever between employer and employe that the complaint be made to the committee, who will endeavor to settle the matter satisfactorily to both parties, employes having no power to settle grievances, which must be referred to the committee. In case it is necessary for the committee to visit your job, it will not interfere with the men at work, but will inquire for the contractor or foreman, to whom they will state their business. Electric Railways, New York Evening Post, July 11: Within the last fortnight nearly a dozen new electric railways have either been opened to the public or actually undertaken by the contractors. Some weeks ago the Evening Post printed a list of fourteen electric railways then in opera-tion in this country. The new roads not mentioned in this list are: Newport, Ky., the road changing from horse to electricity; Fidlay, O., now building a four mile road; Lakeside, O., three miles; Mansfield, O., four and a half miles, opened to the public on the 4te of July; Port Huron, Mich., changed from horses to electricity; San Francisco, Folsom street line, three miles; St. Paul, Minn., two miles, opened on the 4th of July; St. Joseph, Mo., twenty cars, to be ready before winter; Worchester, Mass., Lake Quinsigamond Road, four miles, changed from steam to electricity; Alleghany, Pa., four miles, to be ready on the 1st of October, Asbury Park, N. J., three miles, and lifteen cars; Birmingham, Ala., two miles; Jamaica to Brooklyn, ten cars: Lima, O., three miles; St. Catharine's, Ont., two miles.

Counting in the Fulton street line in this city, which is to be ready some time this autumn, there will be nearly forty electric railways running before winter in this country. Every one of the six manufacturing firms which make a specialty of this work is overwhelmed with orders, and it is merely a question of how fast the new cars can be turned out. At Ausonia, Conn., the electric cur-rent for running the cars is drawn from water power. During the last month electric railways have been visited by scores of experts in the interest of horserailroad companies, whose directors wish to know something definite about the new systems. During the month no accidents have been reported, and the figures as to cost still show a decided saving in the use of electricity as com-pared to horse-power. The Scranton company, with its small line, reports that it has carried 10,000 people in the last month, and has ordered two more mo-

An interesting addition to the advantages of electric cars over horse cars may be the heating of the cars by electricity. An electric heater which has just been patented for use on surface cars consists of a plate of fire clay through which run of a plate of fire clay through which run the wires. When the current acts, this plate becomes sufficiently hot to heat the car. For surface cars the size of our New York street cars, the plates are twelve feet long, eight inches wide and one inch thick. In the experiments already made two of these heaters have been used in each car and it already made two of these heaters have been used in each car, and it is found that in half an hour after the current began passing the plates were giving out sufficient heat, and had attained a temperature of 180 degrees. It is also found that the amount of current required for this purpose is almost insignificant and would cost noth-ing as compared to the expense of stoyes. ing as compared to the expense of stoves.

The electric car, when complete, will therefore be run, heated, and lighted from the same current. As the use of electricity taken from the storage batteries for lighting purposes is now becoming gen-eral on palace cars, and is soon to be introluced on the Pennsylvania railroad on most of the trains, it may be possible that the same supply will be used for heating purposes. According to the ex-periments made the heater will remain

BILL NYE AT CONEY ISLAND.

Some Strange Things Down by the Sea-

ENCOUNTER WITH CHARACTERS

He Takes a Bath, Attracts Attention and Reasons About It-A Weeping Maiden Consoled-Other Persons.

New York World Yesterday was a dark, red-letter day for Coney Island. The morning was gorgeous, and along about 1 o'clock a heavy shower raised the lake so that bathing was good all the rest of the day.

A great many people went down there to rest and see how much they could lift. I notice that people who go away on an excursion for rest most always look more rested when they go away than when they come back.

At Coney Island a great many laboring people get rested by seeing how much they can strike at five cents per strike. You can get anything there almost for five cents-a sandwich, a glass of beer, a slice of watermelon, a ride on the Brighton stage, a whack at the strength tester, or anything almost that heart can wish, from a breeze to a bilious colie, from a flexible sandwich to a strangulated hernia. It afforded me much pleasure to watch the bathers pump up and down in the dark blue sea and spatter each other with water. Beauty was not very plenty yesterday on the beach. Aside from a tall, reddish gentleman from this city, whose name ought to be Esau, and who had moss on the north side of his limbs, there were few fine-looking men, and so when I went in it attracted gen eral attention. The ladies were mostly of a uniform style of beauty, but not wildly beautiful at the time I was in. I heard that the best looking ones waited, however, until I had gone home.

Bathing costumes seem to be similar this year to what they have always been. In stockings you occasionally see a pair in odd shades like baby elephants' breath or smothered shrimp pink, with em-broidered soft-shell crabs on them, but they are mostly black.

The oddest thing I saw in stockings yesterday, I think, was an artificial foot.

They are still using the same backs at Coney Island that were offered to Washington in which to cross the Deleware. He, however, decided to skate across, for these hacks were very old even at that time.

The "Wild Woman of the Catskills" is still on exhibition at the museum. Girls who are a little inclined to be wild will do well to see her. They would never be wild any more.
I then bathed. I feel quite proud of my suit, because it does not bag at the knees. This, I presume, is because the capacity of a bathing suit for bagging is comparatively limited, and as mine seems to bag everywhere else, it cannot find time to bag at the knees.

Leaving my clothes, my conscientious scruples and my teeth in charge of my valet, I madly waded out to meet my doom. If I had been going out to meet anybody else but a moist doom I would have dressed differently. I heard several low, wealthy people say, "Get onto the gun-wiper going out to monkey with the tide." One glorious dooking being, with her bathing trousers rolled up at the bottom set that they could not get wat said. tom so that they could not get wet, said, in a tinkling voice: "There is a man who ought to have a sinker tied to him. He will never drown, but if a land breeze springs up pretty strong he will drift a long way out to sea."

I did not tell her that it was my intention to drift out to see, because I was no acquainted with her, but that was really what I drifted out for.

After I had inhaled all the salt water that I thought was good for me 1 retired from the surf. I then dressed myself and strolled along the strand. There is no charge for strolling along the strand. The poorest man in New York, armed with a large, warty club to keep off the bunko men, may stroll along the strand with perfect safety.

Presently I came upon a young woman who was sitting by herself, gazing out to sea and weeping. At first I thought she was crying because some one had stolen ber clothes while she was in the surf, but I soon saw that I was wrong. She had her bathing suit on and was sobbing and stabbing large holes in the sand with her toes.

"Pardon me," I said, with the air of a man of the world, "has your train gone away and left you,or have you swallowed one end of a breaker, as I did?"

"Please do not make game of me, sir," she said, at the same time shrinking back. "it is nothing that could in the least interest you. Go away."

"No," said I, huskily, "I cannot go away until the next boat and I would be tickled almost to death if I could participate in your sorrow. I have no card with me, but I am connected with the press and it would be better to give the story to me and let me get your exact language than to have it garbled by the other papers. Where do you reside?"
"I reside at present in New York," she said gulping down a sob three sizes too large for her, "and I am utterly alone."

"Well, why don't you girls in New York who are utterly alone have a re-union this summer at the Polo Grounds? I have not been in New York very long, but since I've been there it seems to me that you and the other utterly lonely girls have taken the town. What brought you to New York may I ask?"

"I came there to obtain employment, and it is all so strange and so harsh and so heartless there." She then took off ner oilskin bonnet and wept it almost full. What kind of work had you been ac-"Well, I had not done anything, but had a good general education and could take notes in shorthand if a man would not talk too fast. I could also soon learn to operate a typewriter, I think.

"You had read in the papers, then,
about the young woman who came to New York and, after playing on the typewriter for six months in the office of a vealthy widower, married him?" "Yes, I had read that, but I did not expect to do it myself." "I am glad you did not, for you would have been disappointed, perhaps. The opportunities for a young woman to obtain a situation in the office of a middleaged capitalist whose wife is consumptive and trying to draw to bectie flush are getting to be rare, and though you might win the esteem of such a one and luil him to rest by knocking a few low, throbbing notes out of your typewriter, yet I would advise you not to depend on finding and the station as that?

"Then what would be your advice?" "You say you never stenographed very

"No, but I studied it at school and can make all the characters after I think a little white."
"You think you could take down in shorthand the address of a dehoerate talker—his postoffice address, I mean; "Oh, now you are guying me. Of course I cannot write shorthand very tast, but I would be willing to learn. "What salary would you expect while learning?"

"Oh, I would not demand a large saiary at first, but I would try, oh, so hard, to learn rapidly."
"You never tried other work, did you, such as plastering, piloting on a steam-boat, train dispatcher, lion-tambig, sur-veying, butchering, piano-tuning, pugli-ism, searching for the north pole, sing-ing bass in a minstrel company, catching elephants for the trade, breaking on passenger train, acting as the foreman of a grand jury, breaking coits, dealing fare, grinding seissors, jumping off the Brooklyn bridge, selling lightning-rods, running for sheriff, tending bar, robbing rains, lumbering, chiropodizing or shoe-makings?" making?"

"No, sir, I couldn't do any of those."
"Then, if I were you, I would go home.
I would abandon New York to its fate and return to my parents. There you might teach school next winter, perhaps, and do well.

"With your knowledge of stenography you might successfully teach it, no doubt, but you could not practice it. A business man who was in a hurry would hesitate about employing you if he thought you would have to go to the bottom of your trunk for your book every time you struck a hard word."

Happening to look down to the pier at that instant I saw that my steamer was impatiently waiting for me, and so, bidding my unknown friend adieu, after telling her to be careful not to breathe any of the night air, which is so prevalent at Coney Island this year, I touched my hat, with a well-bred air that would have fooled most any one, and was soon lost to sight. "A remarkably well preserved woman! Remarkably well preserved! Looks like sixteen though she's sixty. Egad! She must have used Sapolio all her life!

WHAT IS SAPOLIO?

It is a solid, handsome cake of House-cleaning Soap, which has no equal for all scenring purposes except the laundry. To use it is to value it. What will Sapolio do? Why it will clean paint, make offcloths bright, and give the floors, tables and shelves a new appearance. It will take the grease off the dishes and off the pots and pans. You can scour the knives and forks with it, and make the tin things shine brightly. The wash-basin, the bath tub, even the greasy kitchen sink will be as clean as a new pin if you use Sapolio. One cake will prove all we say. Be a clever housekeeper and try it. Beware of imitations. There is but one Sapolio. No. 11. [Copyright, March, 1877.]
