

SOCIETY IN HOME CIRCLES.

Many Pleasant Social Events During the Past Week.

CANON PATERSON'S MARRIAGE

A Re-Union Picnic—Various Happenings in Social Circles of a Pleasant Nature—General Gossip.

Society in Omaha.

It is not strange that the many pursued people of our land gaze with envious eyes upon the happy throngs departing for the summer resorts.

During the past week many of our society people have departed for their retreat and the present week will witness the departure of many more.

The Paterson-Parsons Nuptials.

If the much beloved canon had not been too modest the event of the week might have been the marriage of Rev. James Paterson to Mrs. Julia A. Parsons of this city.

A Reunion Picnic.

Thursday evening last a most enjoyable event occurred at Hanscom park, the occasion being a reunion picnic.

THURSDAY EVENING AT SOUTH OMAHA

The second musical and literary entertainment occurred at the First M. E. church, the program was an excellent one and fully appreciated by all present.

ON SUNDAY LAST

Mr. Charles Kirschbraun of the firm of Kirschbraun & Co., Omaha, was married to Hulda Louwenstein, at the residence of the bride's sister, Mrs. L. Kirschbraun.

MISS VASHTI M. MILLER

daughter of Mr. Thomas Miller, of this city, received many praises for an essay read by her at the commencement exercises of the Bethlehem (Pa.) female seminary.

AT PINE LAKE

yesterday a pleasant picnic took place, given by Mr. Louis Littlefield and Miss Nellie Redman. The affair was given in honor of Miss Belle Horton, of Eau Claire, Ia., and had among those present were:

ON WEDNESDAY

next week Mr. J. B. Sheldon, manager of the Union Pacific telegraph, and Miss Mollie Wilber, of St. Paul, Minn., will be united in the holy bonds of matrimony.

THE DODGE STREET PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH will soon have a new bell, the request of the late E. K. Davis. The bell will weigh 3,000 pounds in weight.

THE TRINITY CHURCH

has a valuable acquisition in Mrs. E. E. Rector, who has been engaged as the organist.

THE MUSICAL PROMISED AT MRS. BYRON REED'S for Tuesday evening has been postponed indefinitely.

ON WEDNESDAY

the Twenty-first regiment band, from Fort Sidney, passing through Omaha tendered a serenade to Mrs. General Crook and were royally entertained.

AMONG THE SOJOURNERS AT HOT SPRINGS, DAK.

are Senator Padlock and family, John E. K. Valentine and wife, and Mrs. Mumaugh of this city.

A PLEASANT SOCIAL WAS GIVEN

Wednesday night at the residence of E. T. Gadd on Park avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. T. K. Sudborough are in the east. Mr. A. B. Davenport has returned from the east. Mr. D. M. Lewis of Nebraska City, is in town.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Lund are at Lake Superior. Rev. and Mrs. A. F. Sherrill are in Colorado. Miss Alice Mitchell has gone to Chicago for a visit.

Mr. G. W. R. Pettibone, of Lincoln, is in the city. Mr. Elbert S. Maxwell, of Grand Island, is in the city. J. W. Reed of Plainview, is in the city for a few days.

Miss Tompkins has returned from California, Wyo. Mrs. E. J. McShane has returned from Far Rockaway. Miss Lillie Dort has returned home from Colorado.

Mr. E. R. Sinclair, Cedar Rapids, was in town Friday. Max Rich has returned from a week's visit to Chicago.

Miss Fannie Ulen is visiting Miss Mercer, in Brownville. Mr. George W. Wainwright, of Blair, was in the city Friday.

Mrs. Levi Carter has gone to Manitou for three months. The Misses Neudham are to spend the summer in Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Wheeler, Jr., leave to-day for Chicago. Councilman and Mrs. Lee have gone to Roseman, M. T.

John Stafford, United States army, is a guest at the Paxton. Mr. and Mrs. Z. B. Knight are at Orchard Lake, Mich.

Mr. H. G. Mason of Norfolk, Neb., came to town Friday. Mr. Orlando Tefft and wife, Avoca, were at the Millard Friday.

Miss Castetter, of Blair, is a guest of Mrs. J. S. McCormick. A. D. James of Madison, Wis., is paying Omaha a flying visit.

Mr. Chris Hartman and family have gone to New York City. Mr. Ed Haney is entertaining Judge Porter, of Pasadena, Cal.

Mrs. D. J. O'Donahue and Mrs. O'Leary are at Manitou. John J. McMahon of Columbus, paid Omaha a visit Thursday.

Messrs. Brigham & Tabor went to Spirit Lake last Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Russell Harrison have returned to Helena, M. T.

Miss Mary Henry of Columbus, Neb., was a guest at the Paxton. Mr. E. J. Pickett and wife, of Ashland, are with friends in the city.

A. C. Christianson of Lincoln, is paying Omaha a business visit. Mr. P. H. W. Dow and wife, of Ogallala, Neb., were in town Friday.

Mr. W. S. P. Lawton and wife, of Lincoln, were in the city Friday. Mr. T. Paulsen is attending the Platenscher Verein in Chicago.

Dr. J. Gorth, Jr., of Lincoln, state veterinary surgeon, is in the city. H. N. Deininger of Hastings, is shaking hands with Omaha friends.

Mrs. S. Schlesinger and the Misses Schlesinger, are at Spirit Lake. Mr. Thomas Treigh left Thursday evening for Moscow, Idaho.

Miss Cullin and Miss Judkins of St. Paul, Minn., are at the Millard. H. J. Budd and C. M. Gates of Racine, Wis., are on a visit to this city.

F. W. Rogers and family, of West Point, are stopping at the Arcade. Mr. E. S. Carney, a prominent attorney of Newark, was in Omaha Friday.

Mrs. George E. Wright and children have gone to San Bernardino, Cal. Miss Lulu Loomis, of Council Bluffs, is the guest of Miss Nellie Burns.

Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Patterson left Thursday evening for Spirit Lake. A. R. Abercrombie, United States army, may be found at the Millard.

Mr. G. W. Mumford and wife, of Deadwood, are registered at the Paxton. Mr. Fred E. Kennedy of Hornellsville, N. Y., was in the city the past week.

Miss McMurry, of Lincoln, has gone with her parents to Lake Minnetonka. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Landrock are to-day for Spirit Lake for a few weeks.

Mr. Howard Kennedy, Jr., has returned from college at Williamstown. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Southard have gone to the country for their vacation.

Miss Annie Hawkins, of Lincoln, is in London, England, on a tour of duty. Mrs. O. F. Davis and Mrs. P. L. Parrott left this week for the White Mountains.

Miss Ellen Smith, registrar of the State University, is visiting Mr. D. H. Wheeler. Miss Mary Richardson, of the Excelsior office, left yesterday for Yankton, D. T.

Mr. W. S. Emery, of Grand Rapids, is making a look at Omaha and surroundings. Mr. T. J. Pickett and wife, of Ashland, are making a brief stay at the Paxton.

Mr. W. W. Williams and daughter, Grace, left last evening for a trip in the east. Victor Rylander, well known among the Swedish societies, is at the Paxton.

Mr. C. F. Royce, editor of the Gazette-Journal, Hastings, was an Omaha visitor Friday. Mr. W. A. Carahan, of Columbus, Neb., is registered for a brief stay at the Paxton.

Miss Mamie Pierce, of Galveston, is the guest of Mrs. Cray on St. Mary's avenue. Harry A. Riley, a popular young railroad man of Geneva, Neb., is at the Cañada.

Mr. William Wyman, of Cincinnati, brother of A. V. Wyman, is visiting in this city.

Mr. Edgar C. Snyder, the assistant editor of the Excelsior, will be in Omaha Saturday.

Secretary Joplin of the Y. M. C. A., is spending his vacation at his old home in Kentucky.

Mr. W. E. Hagan, Esq., of Los Angeles, and C. C. Lassie, of San Francisco, are at the Paxton.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. McClure left Saturday for a visit to friends in New York and Boston.

Mrs. E. Warden and Miss Minnie Warden of Topeka, Kan., are guests at the Millard.

Mr. W. A. Davis, of Creston, Ia., was among the late arrivals at the Millard Friday night.

Mr. N. F. Potts, formerly of the Union Pacific, leaves this morning for Denver on a summer tour.

Mrs. J. W. Mann of Joliet, Ill., is in the city the guest of her son and daughter at 2901 10th street.

Miss Mary Ambrose, sister of the Hon. G. C. Ambrose, left last evening for Battle Creek, Mich.

Mrs. B. E. R. Kennedy, accompanied by Miss Fannie Kennedy, left on Monday for Lake Superior.

Mr. N. D. Guekert, of Keokuk, Ia., is in the city visiting friends. He intends moving to Omaha shortly.

Mrs. S. Schlesinger and daughters left Thursday evening for Spirit Lake, where they will spend the summer.

Rev. W. E. Copeland, of Trinity church, expects to have Rev. Edward Everett Hyde as his guest in September.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Bailey, Miss Bailey and the Misses Agnes Swozza and Minnie Bauman left Friday for Spirit Lake.

THE OMAHA DAILY BEE FOR A GRAND CLOSING OUT SALE Commencing Monday, July 11th, '87

Men's all wool suits, made and trimmed in the best shape possible, former price, $20 and $25. Our price Monday, and until sold, $15 and $18.

Several lines of Men's wool suits, well made and trimmed former price, $12, $15 and $18; our price Monday, $7, $10 and $12.

Boys' and Childrens' Suits at Equally Low Prices. We ask Your Inspection of Our Entire Stock

THIS IS A GENUINE BARGAIN SALE. ROBINSON & GARMON, Clothiers Hatters and Furnishers, Range's Old Stand, 1311 Farnam St.

LEO XIII. AND DR. MCGLYNN.

What Manner of Man the Pope Is—His Idea on Socialism.

NEW YORK, July 16.—[Correspondence of the BEE.]—Almost on the same day that Dr. McGlynn was excommunicated by order of the Supreme Pontiff Leo XIII, there was running through the press in New York, in London, in Paris, in Cologne, in Turin, in Barcelona and at the Hague the first authorized "Life" of the pope, which was written largely from a manuscript in the vatican which he lent to the author, Dr. Bernard O'Reilly, an American priest. It is, therefore, largely autobiographic, and having received the pope's special blessing and sanction it may be taken as the narrative of his career by which he himself desires posterity to judge him.

DR. MCGLYNN'S ATTITUDE

is not the attitude of a Protestant to the pope but of a believer in the Roman church, its doctrines and its system of government, still more so when he regards as the particular abuse of the papal and hierarchical powers. In other words, Dr. McGlynn maintains that he has not sinned against the real Roman church—not against the Catholic religion—but only against this particular pope and his hierarchy. The very essence of the pope's life which he himself has authorized and to a great degree himself written, leaves no room for wonder that the course pursued by Dr. McGlynn has been attended with the consequences that we have seen.

TEMPORAL POWER OF THE CHURCH

is now negotiating for the extension of his temporal power. Everywhere through this "Life" great stress is laid upon the "qualities" of the pope as a statesman and diplomatist. His skill as a politician is the first thing that is mentioned. He has lost sight of, and it is plain that the pope himself and those closest to him wish to have his power and its direction appreciated. He came to the Pontificate with the temporal power of the church severely hampered; and in the few years that have elapsed he has regained almost all of the ground. So skillfully has his recovery of the ground been made that a measure has actually been introduced in the Italian chamber of deputies whereby a part of Rome now held by the Italian government shall be restored to the Vatican. Since he has been pope a new office in the papal household has been created—the Editor di sua Santita—judge in the pope's own palace. It is filled by Mr. Baccari, a priest of the holy father's own rearing, in whom he has unbounded confidence. And this modern office has direct access to the pope's private apartments, daily cares, which border on what may be called the local political cares. In the narrative given of his daily life, "there is the Cardinal secretary of state and the terrible difficulty and intricately delicate work of dealing with foreign governments. Look over the entire political and diplomatic career and you will find that the pope is the Holy See has to fight not only with non-Catholic courts but with those that we call Catholics. And this is a matter of daily occurrence. It is a matter of daily occurrence that the pope is not only a political and semi-political duties are throughout given a prominent place. The real life of the pope is not in his private apartments and his domestic life, but in his public life, in his relations and communications with the world.

AN INDEPENDENT EXISTENCE

in this world as well as a guide to the world beyond. And when the final invasion by Garibaldi came his double conduct as a humble priest and as a daring diplomatist equally admirable and successful. He had traveled in Belgium, Spain, Naples. He had traveled in France. He had been in England, and he is the first Pope since the time of the apostles to have set foot on English soil. Already he knew the temper of all the leading nations and the hopes and purposes of every European court. For this man is a statesman and a diplomatist and student of politics. With this temper and experience the new world that he has opened up to him is not the kind of man to yield or shrink when the trying moment of a duty or of a policy comes. But more directly pertinent to the McGlynn case is his famous "Life" which he has written in 1875, after he became pope, which he has incorporated in this "Life" by Dr. O'Reilly. Socialism he uses in the widest sense—a sense wide enough to include the George-McGlynn theory of land-holding; and this is a passage from that now famous document: "They (the socialists) deny the right to hold property sanctioned by the laws of nature; and by a savage audacity, under the pretext of providing for the needs and desires of all mankind, they aim at dispossessing people of all that they have lawfully inherited, or gained by their talents or industry, or honored from their savings. These monstrous opinions they proclaim in their meetings, teach in their pamphlets, and send through the press to the ears of the world. The man who wrote this, whether viewed as a mere autocrat or as supreme pontiff, is evidently the man who would permit Dr. McGlynn inside the church to proclaim the COMMUNAL OWNERSHIP OF LAND. Whether or not the pope's position as the true position for the church to take, every Catholic and every critic of recent events must decide for himself; but it is plain to everybody that Joachim Pecci (Leo XIII) is perfectly consistent now with his previous position as pope, and as a man of high character. Of course nothing is said in this semi-autobiography about any plan (if any such plan he has ever really on foot as some of Dr. McGlynn's friends think) of making an effort to send a PAPAL MUNICION TO WASHINGTON. but the history of the pontificate shows that the government under the sun with which his holiness has not had important dealings, notwithstanding the fact that he has been a "prisoner in the vatican." He has time and again entered the councils (never in person of course, but none the less effectually) of Russia and Germany, and has said nothing of Austria and France and Belgium. He was a power in the last German congress, and he has been a power in the councils of the republic his especial solicitude for the cause of the oppressed of Ireland, without a fuss, in spite of the almost angry criticism that the first announcement of such a purpose provoked. He is now negotiating for the extension of his papal influence in Africa, as he has already successfully extended it in China and in the islands of the sea that are ruled over by countries which hardly acknowledge his temporal power. Everywhere through this "Life" great stress is laid upon the "qualities" of the pope as a statesman and diplomatist.

THE POPE AS A STATESMAN

and diplomatist. His skill as a politician is the first thing that is mentioned. He has lost sight of, and it is plain that the pope himself and those closest to him wish to have his power and its direction appreciated. He came to the Pontificate with the temporal power of the church severely hampered; and in the few years that have elapsed he has regained almost all of the ground. So skillfully has his recovery of the ground been made that a measure has actually been introduced in the Italian chamber of deputies whereby a part of Rome now held by the Italian government shall be restored to the Vatican. Since he has been pope a new office in the papal household has been created—the Editor di sua Santita—judge in the pope's own palace. It is filled by Mr. Baccari, a priest of the holy father's own rearing, in whom he has unbounded confidence. And this modern office has direct access to the pope's private apartments, daily cares, which border on what may be called the local political cares. In the narrative given of his daily life, "there is the Cardinal secretary of state and the terrible difficulty and intricately delicate work of dealing with foreign governments. Look over the entire political and diplomatic career and you will find that the pope is the Holy See has to fight not only with non-Catholic courts but with those that we call Catholics. And this is a matter of daily occurrence. It is a matter of daily occurrence that the pope is not only a political and semi-political duties are throughout given a prominent place. The real life of the pope is not in his private apartments and his domestic life, but in his public life, in his relations and communications with the world.

THE HOPE IN CINCINNATI

July 16.—The temperature is expected to be cooler to-day than yesterday. There has been a number of prostrations from heat among laborers and others exposed to the extreme heat. Four deaths have been reported up to noon to-day.

LEO XIII. AND DR. MCGLYNN.

What Manner of Man the Pope Is—His Idea on Socialism.

NEW YORK, July 16.—[Correspondence of the BEE.]—Almost on the same day that Dr. McGlynn was excommunicated by order of the Supreme Pontiff Leo XIII, there was running through the press in New York, in London, in Paris, in Cologne, in Turin, in Barcelona and at the Hague the first authorized "Life" of the pope, which was written largely from a manuscript in the vatican which he lent to the author, Dr. Bernard O'Reilly, an American priest. It is, therefore, largely autobiographic, and having received the pope's special blessing and sanction it may be taken as the narrative of his career by which he himself desires posterity to judge him.

DR. MCGLYNN'S ATTITUDE

is not the attitude of a Protestant to the pope but of a believer in the Roman church, its doctrines and its system of government, still more so when he regards as the particular abuse of the papal and hierarchical powers. In other words, Dr. McGlynn maintains that he has not sinned against the real Roman church—not against the Catholic religion—but only against this particular pope and his hierarchy. The very essence of the pope's life which he himself has authorized and to a great degree himself written, leaves no room for wonder that the course pursued by Dr. McGlynn has been attended with the consequences that we have seen.

TEMPORAL POWER OF THE CHURCH

is now negotiating for the extension of his temporal power. Everywhere through this "Life" great stress is laid upon the "qualities" of the pope as a statesman and diplomatist. His skill as a politician is the first thing that is mentioned. He has lost sight of, and it is plain that the pope himself and those closest to him wish to have his power and its direction appreciated. He came to the Pontificate with the temporal power of the church severely hampered; and in the few years that have elapsed he has regained almost all of the ground. So skillfully has his recovery of the ground been made that a measure has actually been introduced in the Italian chamber of deputies whereby a part of Rome now held by the Italian government shall be restored to the Vatican. Since he has been pope a new office in the papal household has been created—the Editor di sua Santita—judge in the pope's own palace. It is filled by Mr. Baccari, a priest of the holy father's own rearing, in whom he has unbounded confidence. And this modern office has direct access to the pope's private apartments, daily cares, which border on what may be called the local political cares. In the narrative given of his daily life, "there is the Cardinal secretary of state and the terrible difficulty and intricately delicate work of dealing with foreign governments. Look over the entire political and diplomatic career and you will find that the pope is the Holy See has to fight not only with non-Catholic courts but with those that we call Catholics. And this is a matter of daily occurrence. It is a matter of daily occurrence that the pope is not only a political and semi-political duties are throughout given a prominent place. The real life of the pope is not in his private apartments and his domestic life, but in his public life, in his relations and communications with the world.

THE POPE AS A STATESMAN

and diplomatist. His skill as a politician is the first thing that is mentioned. He has lost sight of, and it is plain that the pope himself and those closest to him wish to have his power and its direction appreciated. He came to the Pontificate with the temporal power of the church severely hampered; and in the few years that have elapsed he has regained almost all of the ground. So skillfully has his recovery of the ground been made that a measure has actually been introduced in the Italian chamber of deputies whereby a part of Rome now held by the Italian government shall be restored to the Vatican. Since he has been pope a new office in the papal household has been created—the Editor di sua Santita—judge in the pope's own palace. It is filled by Mr. Baccari, a priest of the holy father's own rearing, in whom he has unbounded confidence. And this modern office has direct access to the pope's private apartments, daily cares, which border on what may be called the local political cares. In the narrative given of his daily life, "there is the Cardinal secretary of state and the terrible difficulty and intricately delicate work of dealing with foreign governments. Look over the entire political and diplomatic career and you will find that the pope is the Holy See has to fight not only with non-Catholic courts but with those that we call Catholics. And this is a matter of daily occurrence. It is a matter of daily occurrence that the pope is not only a political and semi-political duties are throughout given a prominent place. The real life of the pope is not in his private apartments and his domestic life, but in his public life, in his relations and communications with the world.

THE HOPE IN CINCINNATI

July 16.—The temperature is expected to be cooler to-day than yesterday. There has been a number of prostrations from heat among laborers and others exposed to the extreme heat. Four deaths have been reported up to noon to-day.

LEO XIII. AND DR. MCGLYNN.

What Manner of Man the Pope Is—His Idea on Socialism.

NEW YORK, July 16.—[Correspondence of the BEE.]—Almost on the same day that Dr. McGlynn was excommunicated by order of the Supreme Pontiff Leo XIII, there was running through the press in New York, in London, in Paris, in Cologne, in Turin, in Barcelona and at the Hague the first authorized "Life" of the pope, which was written largely from a manuscript in the vatican which he lent to the author, Dr. Bernard O'Reilly, an American priest. It is, therefore, largely autobiographic, and having received the pope's special blessing and sanction it may be taken as the narrative of his career by which he himself desires posterity to judge him.

DR. MCGLYNN'S ATTITUDE

is not the attitude of a Protestant to the pope but of a believer in the Roman church, its doctrines and its system of government, still more so when he regards as the particular abuse of the papal and hierarchical powers. In other words, Dr. McGlynn maintains that he has not sinned against the real Roman church—not against the Catholic religion—but only against this particular pope and his hierarchy. The very essence of the pope's life which he himself has authorized and to a great degree himself written, leaves no room for wonder that the course pursued by Dr. McGlynn has been attended with the consequences that we have seen.

TEMPORAL POWER OF THE CHURCH

is now negotiating for the extension of his temporal power. Everywhere through this "Life" great stress is laid upon the "qualities" of the pope as a statesman and diplomatist. His skill as a politician is the first thing that is mentioned. He has lost sight of, and it is plain that the pope himself and those closest to him wish to have his power and its direction appreciated. He came to the Pontificate with the temporal power of the church severely hampered; and in the few years that have elapsed he has regained almost all of the ground. So skillfully has his recovery of the ground been made that a measure has actually been introduced in the Italian chamber of deputies whereby a part of Rome now held by the Italian government shall be restored to the Vatican. Since he has been pope a new office in the papal household has been created—the Editor di sua Santita—judge in the pope's own palace. It is filled by Mr. Baccari, a priest of the holy father's own rearing, in whom he has unbounded confidence. And this modern office has direct access to the pope's private apartments, daily cares, which border on what may be called the local political cares. In the narrative given of his daily life, "there is the Cardinal secretary of state and the terrible difficulty and intricately delicate work of dealing with foreign governments. Look over the entire political and diplomatic career and you will find that the pope is the Holy See has to fight not only with non-Catholic courts but with those that we call Catholics. And this is a matter of daily occurrence. It is a matter of daily occurrence that the pope is not only a political and semi-political duties are throughout given a prominent place. The real life of the pope is not in his private apartments and his domestic life, but in his public life, in his relations and communications with the world.

THE POPE AS A STATESMAN

and diplomatist. His skill as a politician is the first thing that is mentioned. He has lost sight of, and it is plain that the pope himself and those closest to him wish to have his power and its direction appreciated. He came to the Pontificate with the temporal power of the church severely hampered; and in the few years that have elapsed he has regained almost all of the ground. So skillfully has his recovery of the ground been made that a measure has actually been introduced in the Italian chamber of deputies whereby a part of Rome now held by the Italian government shall be restored to the Vatican. Since he has been pope a new office in the papal household has been created—the Editor di sua Santita—judge in the pope's own palace. It is filled by Mr. Baccari, a priest of the holy father's own rearing, in whom he has unbounded confidence. And this modern office has direct access to the pope's private apartments, daily cares, which border on what may be called the local political cares. In the narrative given of his daily life, "there is the Cardinal secretary of state and the terrible difficulty and intricately delicate work of dealing with foreign governments. Look over the entire political and diplomatic career and you will find that the pope is the Holy See has to fight not only with non-Catholic courts but with those that we call Catholics. And this is a matter of daily occurrence. It is a matter of daily occurrence that the pope is not only a political and semi-political duties are throughout given a prominent place. The real life of the pope is not in his private apartments and his domestic life, but in his public life, in his relations and communications with the world.

THE HOPE IN CINCINNATI

July 16.—The temperature is expected to be cooler to-day than yesterday. There has been a number of prostrations from heat among laborers and others exposed to the extreme heat. Four deaths have been reported up to noon to-day.

LEO XIII. AND DR. MCGLYNN.

What Manner of Man the Pope Is—His Idea on Socialism.

NEW YORK, July 16.—[Correspondence of the BEE.]—Almost on the same day that Dr. McGlynn was excommunicated by order of the Supreme Pontiff Leo XIII, there was running through the press in New York, in London, in Paris, in Cologne, in Turin, in Barcelona and at the Hague the first authorized "Life" of the pope, which was written largely from a manuscript in the vatican which he lent to the author, Dr. Bernard O'Reilly, an American priest. It is, therefore, largely autobiographic, and having received the pope's special blessing and sanction it may be taken as the narrative of his career by which he himself desires posterity to judge him.

DR. MCGLYNN'S ATTITUDE

is not the attitude of a Protestant to the pope but of a believer in the Roman church, its doctrines and its system of government, still more so when he regards as the particular abuse of the papal and hierarchical powers. In other words, Dr. McGlynn maintains that he has not sinned against the real Roman church—not against the Catholic religion—but only against this particular pope and his hierarchy. The very essence of the pope's life which he himself has authorized and to a great degree himself written, leaves no room for wonder that the course pursued by Dr. McGlynn has been attended with the consequences that we have seen.

TEMPORAL POWER OF THE CHURCH

is now negotiating for the extension of his temporal power. Everywhere through this "Life" great stress is laid upon the "qualities" of the pope as a statesman and diplomatist. His skill as a politician is the first thing that is mentioned. He has lost sight of, and it is plain that the pope himself and those closest to him wish to have his power and its direction appreciated. He came to the Pontificate with the temporal power of the church severely hampered; and in the few years that have elapsed he has regained almost all of the ground. So skillfully has his recovery of the ground been made that a measure has actually been introduced in the Italian chamber of deputies whereby a part of Rome now held by the Italian government shall be restored to the Vatican. Since he has been pope a new office in the papal household has been created—the Editor di sua Santita—judge in the pope's own palace. It is filled by Mr. Baccari, a priest of the holy father's own rearing, in whom he has unbounded confidence. And this modern office has direct access to the pope's private apartments, daily cares, which border on what may be called the local political cares. In the narrative given of his daily life, "there is the Cardinal secretary of state and the terrible difficulty and intricately delicate work of dealing with foreign governments. Look over the entire political and diplomatic career and you will find that the pope is the Holy See has to fight not only with non-Catholic courts but with those that we call Catholics. And this is a matter of daily occurrence. It is a matter of daily occurrence that the pope is not only a political and semi-political duties are throughout given a prominent place. The real life of the pope is not in his private apartments and his domestic life, but in his public life, in his relations and communications with the world.

THE POPE AS A STATESMAN

and diplomatist. His skill as a politician is the first thing that is mentioned. He has lost sight of, and it is plain that the pope himself and those closest to him wish to have his power and its direction appreciated. He came to the Pontificate with the temporal power of the church severely hampered; and in the few years that have elapsed he has regained almost all of the ground. So skillfully has his recovery of the ground been made that a measure has actually been introduced in the Italian chamber of deputies whereby a part of Rome now held by the Italian government shall be restored to the Vatican. Since he has been pope a new office in the papal household has been created—the Editor di sua Santita—judge in the pope's own palace. It is filled by Mr. Baccari, a priest of the holy father's own rearing, in whom he has unbounded confidence. And this modern office has direct access to the pope's private apartments, daily cares, which border on what may be called the local political cares. In the narrative given of his daily life, "there is the Cardinal secretary of state and the terrible difficulty and intricately delicate work of dealing with foreign governments. Look over the entire political and diplomatic career and you will find that the pope is the Holy See has to fight not only with non-Catholic courts but with those that we call Catholics. And this is a matter of daily occurrence. It is a matter of daily occurrence that the pope is not only a political and semi-political duties are throughout given a prominent place. The real life of the pope is not in his private apartments and his domestic life, but in his public life, in his relations and communications with the world.

THE HOPE IN CINCINNATI

July 16.—The temperature is expected to be cooler to-day than yesterday. There has been a number of prostrations from heat among laborers and others exposed to the extreme heat. Four deaths have been reported up to noon to-day.