

RAISING ANOTHER "ROCK."

St. Peter's Catholic Church to be Solemnly Blessed This Morning.

DENOMINATIONAL DEVOTEES.

The Building and the Parish—Orators of the Good Work—Rev. P. J. Boyle the First Pastor.

New Catholic Church.

At 10 o'clock this morning a new church of the Catholic denomination will be blessed. It is one of the newest little edifices devoted to religious worship in the state and is situated on what the "ton" say is a focal point for the most prominent and wealthy members of the Catholic denomination in this city viz Leavenworth street near Phil Sheridan avenue. The building is of a peculiar Gothic design, combining the household and public building features, so admirably mingled that were it not for the cross that always points the way to the home of this world and a great hereafter for the Catholic believer, and the stained windows one might think he was observing a residence of one of Omaha's wealthy citizens. The construction material is pressed brick, the trimmings stone, and the furnishings inside pine and walnut and not a drop of paint having touched the edifice from front to pulpit. The dimensions of the building are 30x50, there is but one gallery, and that in the rear, which is really the organ loft. The main altar will be of Gothic style also, and formed of rare walnut wood. It is of a simple design, being a tripartite construction, the centre containing an elaborate oil painting of "St. Peter receiving the keys from Our Lord," while the side altars, as in all Catholic churches, are devoted to St. Joseph and the Blessed Virgin Mary. These are the gifts of Mrs. John A. Creighton, and will be standing monuments to her religious sincerity, as the costly altar in St. Philomena's cathedral is the gift of her husband, the late Mrs. Edward Creighton. Back of the altar is an irregular window of stained glass, the gift of the Hon. John A. McShane. It is of beautiful and appropriate design, fully keeping with the purposes for which it was donated. Following around to the right can be found other windows given by staunch friends and parishioners of this church, such as Mr. F. Murphy, Peter and Ann Walsh, Manning. In memory of M. Kennedy, Andrew Murphy, J. J. Maloney, Fred Delone, W. A. L. Gibson, J. A. Linnahan, Andrew Smith, A. J. Mullin, R. C. Cushing, J. J. O'Connor, John Keady, D. J. O'Connell, Mrs. E. Reed, John M. Mullin, J. G. Lee, In Memory of Winnie M. Boyle, E. Fearon and E. J. McShane. The stations of the cross pictures, representing twelve eventful periods in the life of our Saviour, will be very costly. They are all copies from the famous original designs of Deschamps and are the gift of Mr. J. L. Miles, of Davenport, Ia., who also furnishes most of the vestments for the clerical ceremonies. In fact, this gentleman, although a non-resident, has been exceedingly active with "purse and power" in placing Omaha's new church on a solid rock.

Altogether this new church is one of the ornaments of the city, and the parishioners number the wealthiest Catholics in Omaha. Rev. P. J. Boyle is recognized as the orator of his church in this state, and to his indefatigable work is really due the erection of this edifice. He was called from Fremont for this charge, and very soon he had the following laity aiding him: Hon. John A. McShane, Hon. John A. Creighton, Hon. John L. Miles, Frank Murphy and Mrs. John A. Creighton, who are the principal benefactors of St. Peter's.

The acting committee under the articles of incorporation are: Rev. P. J. Boyle, Bishop O'Connor, Vicar General Shaefel, Rev. P. J. Boyle, Fred Delone and J. A. Linnahan. Of these the bishop is president ex-officio, Father Boyle, treasurer and Mr. Linnahan, secretary. The parish was started in 1881 by the Hon. John A. McShane, Fred Delone, W. A. L. Gibson and J. A. Linnahan being the organizers of the movement. No church building was secured at that time, and the present fine building was constructed in which the parishioners will worship to-day for the first time. It is to cost $25,000, most of which amount has already been paid. The sermon today will be delivered by the pastor, Rev. P. J. Boyle. Farmer's grand high mass will be sung, the singers being principally from the junior members of St. Philomena's cathedral choir, under the direction of Prof. Longwell, from Montreal, Canada.

THE CITY PRINTING.

Another Injunction Against the City.

Judge Wakely yesterday granted a restraining order, returnable next Wednesday, prohibiting the city from advertising in the Omaha Republican. This injunction was issued owing to the fact that the city council by resolution had directed all city officers to advertise in the Republican in spite of the injunction issued by Judge Groff two weeks ago.

The charter requires the official advertising to be let to the lowest bidder. The order of the city council makes a contract with the Republican without inviting bids. Under the charter every contract and every resolution involving the expenditure of money must be submitted to the mayor for his approval. The mayor has in this case refused to approve the resolution, and has not been submitted within forty-eight hours after passage as required by law.

It is also maintained that the order of the city council is a violation of the spirit of the injunction granted by Judge Groff.

Such are the grounds upon which Judge Wakely granted this last injunction.

District Court.

Ass G. Pettibone has begun suit against the Union Pacific, Omaha & Quincy, Chicago, Burlington & Quincy and the B. & M. railways to recover possession of lot No. 3, in block 237, city of Omaha, and the rents that have accrued during the time of the unlawful possession.

Eben K. Long brings suit against his children, Annie G., Hattie B. and Charles H. Long, to recover title to $3,000 worth of real estate in this city. The alleged buying has been paid for by his own money and heeded to his wife. She, however, dying in April, 1881, the children, two of whom are now of age, ask for a division of the property on the ground that it belonged to their mother.

Death of William Dew, Jr.

News comes from Wood Lake, Neb., of the death of William Dew, Jr., caused by a fall from a horse. He was a young man of twenty, the son of William Dew, the contractor and builder who formerly lived on Twenty-third and Leavenworth streets in this city. He was a bright young man, and while in Omaha was a carrier of the Bee and was distinguished for his faithfulness and efficiency. His sudden death is a great blow to his parents.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

The Appointment of the Standing Committees--Other Business.

The board of education convened last evening at their usual place, corner of Sixteenth and Capitol avenue, President H. T. Clarke in the chair. All the members were present except H. G. Clark.

A petition was received from Rev. A. W. Lamar asking for permission to preach on the high school grounds during the summer but the request was not granted.

Several applications for the position of janitor were read and referred to the committee on buildings and property. Applications for positions as teachers were referred to the committee on teachers and text books if accompanied with certificates, and those without certificates were referred to the superintendent.

An application from L. A. Collins for a position as director of music was referred to the superintendent of schools and an application for the same position from G. Ewing of South Bend, Ind.

President H. T. Clarke announced the following standing committees for the year:

Finance--F. W. Young, chairman; H. G. Clark, E. A. Parmelee, Henry Linsley and H. T. Clark.

Judiciary--H. T. Clark, chairman; D. V. Sholes and William Coburn.

Claims--Hugh G. Clark, chairman; H. J. Davis and Henry Linsley.

Teachers and text books--William Coburn, chairman; T. W. Blackburn, W. E. Copeland, J. J. Saville and E. A. Parmelee.

Supplies--W. E. Copeland, William Coburn and W. A. Kelley.

Mannual training--W. E. Copeland, chairman; H. J. Davis and D. V. Sholes.

The bids for coal were opened and referred to the secretary on supplies. Several communications, among them one on lumber, were also referred to the same committee.

A communication was read by the secretary regarding the payment of the recent election costs, and upon motion of Mr. Coburn a special committee consisting of Messrs. Gray, Morrison and Davis were appointed to confer with the city council on the subject.

The bids for printing were opened and referred to committee on printing.

Mr. Gray presented a resolution that the contract for the new school house at Omaha View be given to Rice & Bassett in advance of $500 over their bid, the other bids to be four inches thicker than called for in the contract. Passed.

Mr. Linsley offered a resolution ordering all necessary repairs on school buildings be made as far as possible before the opening of the schools. Passed.

The secretary was authorized to advertise for bids for the purchase of the Iard school property.

A resolution was offered by Mr. Morrison that a person be employed to run errands for the members of this board on the evenings of their sessions, his pay not to exceed $1 per evening. Passed.

A resolution was offered by Mr. Copeland asking that the board be apportioned among the various schools of the city. Passed.

A resolution relating to placing new ranges in the Cass school referred to the proper committee.

ENTANGLED AT LAST.

An Irish Girl Emulates the Example of Queen Victoria in Proposing.

Henry M. Grosse, a well-to-do German at Scotia, Neb., has lived for fifty-five years in the happy state of celibacy, and having no wife or children to squander the fruits of his frugality, he has thrived and waxed fat in pelf. But during all these years of bachelor prosperity the little girl of the bow has only been quietly ripening a plot that would hopelessly estrange the obdurate heart of the old celibate. Ella Moran, a shrewd, quick-witted daughter of Erin, became acquainted with the fatherly Deutscher. She heard of his wealth, and the sympathies of her young heart went out to the lonely old man who had nothing to cheer him but his gold. Pity is akin to love, and ere long she made to him a declaration of her passion, declaring he was her ideal of manly beauty and the incarnation of all that is noble. The old man, unused to the ardent vocabulary of the divine passion, shrunk in astonishment, but the Irish beauty was not to be put off in such a manner, but pressed the suit with all the pertinacity of her sex, and the blandishments of her race. The long-slumbering affections of the old man were finally aroused, and as the poet fittingly expresses it, "He first endured, then pitied, then embraced." Then followed all the happy scenes of courtship, with moonlight walks and talks, sandwiched with kisses. But the newly acquired liberties of courtship knew not their proper bounds, and ere many happy months had passed Miss Ella with tears in her eyes, told him the old, old chestnut, that he must marry her immediately. She then told him that he must also her half of his property. Credulous as a child, and unread in the tenets of American law, the gallant old lover gracefully accepted the situation, and hurried to get the necessary documents. The marriage license, the answers to the various requirements of which had been kindly prepared by another hand, was drawn up in due form. But when he was informed that this was the only document necessary to make him all right with the young lady, and that no deed of property was at all requisite, his surprise was only exceeded by his delight, and he hurried from the court house yesterday to claim his bride and consummate the matrimonial contract. This happened yesterday and ere this it is supposed he is back at Scotia, and the sweets of courtship are being enjoyed by the raptures of the honeymoon.

U. P. METHODS.

Two Cases in Which the Present Reform Costs Money.

There has been a great deal said about the economy which is being practiced by the present management of the Union Pacific railroad. By way of exemplification, it is said that Mr. Potter has abolished a number of the minor offices and imposed their duties upon employees whom he has seen fit to retain. This fact has been strongly attested in the case of the abolition of the superfluous supernumeraries who, for some time held easy positions in the offices of the division superintendent on Tenth street.

The offices which knew them once are now occupied by the Pullman Car company, and the employees are now walking the streets, working for other companies or acting as preferred clerks in other departments of the Union Pacific.

One of the first supernumeraries to go was Mr. Parsons, who tried to find something to do acting as trainmaster. He fell a victim five months ago, and the duties of his position devolved upon the chief dispatcher, Southern, who held his position until the first of the present month. From the time of Parsons' retirement until the end of June, Southern performed the work of trainmaster and general dispatcher, and during that period he successfully handled, it is claimed, the enormous amount of work which devolved upon the road in the months immediately preceding the enforcement of the interstate law. It is claimed that this kept him up night after night, and that he was so tired that he fell asleep at night about half a dozen times. When the new administration came into power the office of general dispatcher, held by him, was abolished, though the other title of trainmaster, which descended to him from Parsons, was retained. Southern was receiving $150 per month. He was succeeded by Mr. Baxter with a salary of $200 per month, and by another general dispatcher named Gibney, whose wages are $150 per month. Baxter is holding the position of general dispatcher and trainmaster, though, as before mentioned, the former office has been abolished. The work of both these positions is done by Gibney in the name of the chief dispatcher, and he is claimed to do little more than make a monthly trip with the pay-car. The salary of both Baxter and Gibney amounts to $350 per month and they, jointly, it is claimed do only the work formerly done by Southern for less than half the same.

Another case urged against the consistency of the reform movement is that of the late roadmaster, Fitzgerald. This man had charge of the track from Council Bluffs to Valley. Experts recognized the fact that, though a new comer, he was one of the most competent men that ever filled the position on the road. He was paid $100 per month, but under the new regime was transferred to Sidney and a trackman from Sidney was brought in to supplant him at a salary of $150 per month. In these two cases it is claimed that favorites have supplanted the other people at an increased cost to the road of nearly $200 per month.

Real Estate at Auction.

We are instructed to sell at auction on Wednesday, July 27th, at 10 a. m., on the ground, 49 1/2x138 feet, on Bancroft street near 11th, being lot 1 in block 3, Quinn's addition to the city of Omaha. This is good property and should receive careful consideration. Remember, Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock on the grounds. Brown & Creighton auctioneers.

Charles Kaufmann has returned from his visit in Europe, and will give his personal attention to his fire insurance and real estate and loan business at 1302 Douglas street.

Young at the Business.

A. J. Carroll, Thomas Sheeley (colored), and Fred Freeman were before Judge Berka yesterday charged with stealing cigars from a store on the corner of Eleventh and Duaneport. Carroll is 18, Sheeley 14, and Freeman 13 years of age. They took a key and entered the store. Carroll got 15 days in jail, and the other two were bound over to the district court in $100 each. They will probably go to the reform school.

Exploded.

Yesterday afternoon a gasoline store exploded at Kessler's hall on South Thirteenth street. The fire department quickly quenched the blaze. In running to the fire Chief Galligan's wagon struck a little girl who ran out in the street as he went tearing by. The girl was knocked down but not seriously injured.

Continued.

Benjamin B. Pinkham, who was arrested on a charge of forgery, was examined before Judge Berka yesterday afternoon. Pinkham requested a continuance of his case in the absence of his attorney, until Tuesday, which was granted.

Uncalled For Assailant.

Mr. John Ely, the venerable and well known agricultural dealer, was sitting quietly in a chair in front of his place of business on Harney street last evening, when along came a party of young bloods bent on mischief. In passing Mr. Ely one of these fellows suddenly turned and dealt the old gentleman a powerful blow on the face cutting him badly. Then the coward and his companions ran away. It is rumored that the assailant is the son of a well known Sarpy county family, whose names are prominently identified with republican politics hereabouts, and the cause of the assault originated in some adverse criticisms made by Mr. Ely on certain schemes the relatives of the assailant had inaugurated.
