THE FIRST CONTEMPT CASE.

It is Decided in Favor of the Property Owner's innocence.

SIGHTS AMONG THE SINNERS.

A Soap Factory to Be Removed Here -Gift of the Masonic Lodges-A Heavy Petition For Lights-Chats With Citizens.

Brown Not in Contempt. Yesterday morning Judge Carson proceeded to clean out his pigeon holes, and prepare for the coming of Judge Deemer, who will preside at the next term of the district court here. The most important decision which he rendered was in the case of Mr. George D. Brown, a wellknown citizen, owner of the St. Louis house. . It was charged that Mr. Brown had been guilty of contempt of court, because the injunction restraining the owner of the property, and the tenant, Doerflinger, from allowing liquors to be sold on the premises, had been violated. Judge Carson yesterday discharged Mr. Brown, holding that there was no sufficient showing that the sales of liquor had been by his consent. The evidence showed that when the injunc-tion was issued he warned the occupants of the building not to violate it and re-ceived assurances that the writ would be obeyed and that nothing would be sold. It seemed that he could do nothing more than this, as he had leased the building for legitimate uses and could not force the occupants out. Neither could he be expected to stand with a club and keep them from violating the writ. This being the first case of the kind tried Here, the result has been watched for with eagerness. A motion was made to have the injunction, which was issued by Judge Thornell, done away with, but Judge Carson overruled this, and the injunction stands.

Another case decided was that of Beebe vs. the Equitable Insurance com-pany, of Waterloo, ia. This was the old case in which Randall, the agent of the company, fitted up an office here and cut a wide swath, ordering furniture and goods and then skipping out, leaving the creditors unsatisfied. The company claimed that Randail had no authority for contracting any such bills. In the first trial, a judgment was rendered in favor of beebe, but a new trial was obtained, and now Judge Carson decides in favor of the company. An appeal will be taken to the supreme court again.

A few cases of smaller public interest were disposed of. The new term, with Judge Deemer presiding, opens on the 80th. Among the Sinners.

The cool weather yesterday morning had its effect upon Police Judge Aylesworth. He was at his accustomed place bright

As usual he lighted one of his choice brand of eigars.

He evidently believes the perfume of the cigar preferable to that of the subjects before him.

However this may be, the judge is always in good humor when he has a cigar lighted.

Whether this particular cigar he was enjoying braced him up, or the weather, the reporter present had no method of discovering. But one thing is certain, he didn't 'monkey" any. Business moved and so did those thing is certain, he didn't brought before his honor. "L. A. Brown, charged with being drunk," said City Marshall Guanella. "Step forward a little closer," remarked his honor. "What do you plead; guilty or not guilty?"

"Guilty," replied Brown. "Did you have a ride in the patrol wagon?" was the question put to him.

"Yes, sir."
"Well, that will be fifty cents more, making your line 'eight ten' " concluded the judge.

J. B. Mitchell was allowed to skip, if he'd run for the train to go to Des Moines, where he had a sick wife. The judge thinking she needed the money that otherwise would go into the city's funds, on account of her husband being found drunk and asleep.
E. W. McCurdy, a drunk, received $7.60 fine, as quick as he could say he was

Louis Welch, drunk; L. Davis, F. Peterson and C. Allison, for disturbance of the peace, were held for hearing later in the day.

Jake Shoup had been on one of his periodicals, or at least, was charged with disturbance of the peace.

He didn't think it right for him to plead guilty, but finally concluded, for reasons best known to himself, that he

As an extra pull was given on the cigar the judge remarked. If you people insist on riding in the patrol wagon, you'll have to pay for it.

"That ride will cost you 50 cents extra, Shoup, making the entire fine and costs

"Can you pay it?"
Shoup concluded to leave his gold watch as security.

After which the judge breathed easier and began a pleasant chat with outsiders.
All the business having been completed in as short time as it takes to tell it.

AFTERNOON SESSION. It was 2:30 o'clock when the afternoon Since morning the police had arrested George Roper, who was placed on trial with the other young men, Peterson, Allison, Davis and Webster, all charged with disturbing the peace.

Each prisoner was given planty of Each prisoner was given plenty of chance to state his side of the case after several of the police had testified.

The testimony went to show that several values were allowed to show that several values with the several va eral young men, all under nineteen years of age, started out at their usual place of meeting, a saloon, and, after playing cards and billiards, started for a round-up of "Rotten Row" after midnight. Roper was taken in charge by the police, but was allowed to go home on a sacred promise. He did not seek his cot until after a racket near "Nigger Texas" dive about 3 o'clock. "In regard to billiard and drinking sa-

"In regard to billiard and drinking sa-loons, the ordinances are very serious about allowing young men of your age even inside the places," said the judge, "and each of you are fined $5 and costs." The case of A. L. Freeze, charged with vagrancy, was dismissed, there being no witnesses against him present.

Mrs. Shea, charged with being drunk yesterday morning, was brought before his honor. He requested her to remain until she felt "stronger" and was better able to walk home. "Oh, judge, let me go home." she pleaded. "Ah, now, Mr. Aylesworth, you're a nice man, so you are, and the likes of you should not hold me here. I would never be half so wild as I am now if you'd hold me longer.'

gavel and senior and junior warden's columns. The master's gavel is of ivory, around which is a wreath of accacia carved in relief. The wardens' columns are ebony and gold, fluted, surmounted by carved wreaths, and bear a silver plate appropriately inscribed, one of them being a broken column faithfully copied from the Masonic chart. The symbols are eminently appropriate for symbols are eminently appropriate for use on funeral occasions and will add to the impressiveness of such occasions.

The lodges are greatly pleased by this evidence of the fraternal regard of the grand secretary, and appointed a joint committee, who drafted and forwarded to Brother Parvin the following resolutions:

Whereas. Brother T. S. Parvin, grand secretary of lowa, has presented to Bluff City Lodge No. 71, and Excelsior Lodge No. 259 A. F. and A. M., Council Bluffs, Iowa, a master's gavel of handsomely carved ivory, and two beautiful columns for the veterans, for use on funeral occasions,

Resolved, That we hereby express to our worthy brother our high appreciation, not only of these elegant symbols, but of the warm fraternal feeling that prompted the gift, and assure him that we will ever cherish them, not for their intrinsic value alone, but as a reminder of the pleasant and profitabut as a reminder of the pleasant and profita-ble hours spent in brotherly intercourse here, and as a reminder that we should so meet, act and part that we may all be in order when the Grand Master of the universe shall when the Grand Master of the universe shall call up the grand lodge above.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our lodges, and that a copy of the same, properly endorsed, be forwarded to our worthy brother, Grand Secretary T. S. Parvin, at Cedar Rands.

A Soap Factory. Edward Deer, a soap manufacturer of Creston, was in the city yesterday visiting C. J. Colby and looking over this city with a view to the removal of his factory to this city. He has to ship tallow, etc., from South Omaha to Creston, and thinks the location here preferable to the present one; also for the reason that he has quite a demand for his goods in this city and Omaha.

Praying For Light. A petition is being circulated and receiving many signatures of property owners, in favor of the adoption of electric lights for street purposes. The lights placed upon the tower of the new court house have demonstrated that more light can be had in that part of the city by this arrangement than by many gas lights on ordinary posts. Those who have observed the difference and investigated the matter seem enthusiastic, and they are urging the council to moke some contract by which this system of lighting can be secured. The electric light company has presented a score of different propositions, from which it seems that the council can select one or more, which would be in keeping with the city's finances, and which would give the citizens the needed relief from darkness. There seems no doubt but that the petition will have such a quantity of the control tity and quality of names attached as to convince the council that the property owners, who will have to foot the bills, want the electric light given a chance. The gas company is doing its best to secure a new contract from the city, and it is understood that some of the aidermen are rather inclined to favor the gas company for reasons best known to themselves. The petition may show them how the citizens feel in regard to having the streets well lighted. The Club Rooms. The work on the new club rooms has progressed as far as it can until the arrival of a mantel, which has been ordered in the east. As soon as this arrives it will be put in place, the decorations of the wall about it will be finished in a few hours and then the rooms will be ready for the furniture. Mr. Eiseman, of the executive committee, and who has been very active in the work of turn from the east to-morrow. Some of the furnishings have been selected by him in the eastern markets, and soon after his arrival home the rooms will be ready for occupancy. The club will start in its season about the 1st of September, and the rooms will be as elegant as any city of this size can show, either east or

CHATTY CITIZENS.

ONE OF MANY. "I hate to see any more money spent on these old city buildings," remarked a Fourth ward property owner yesterday.

"I know there are a good many taxpayers who feel just as I do. Instead of spending more money in this way the city ought to go right ahead and build a regular city hall. Let them buy right through to Main street and get up a good building, to cost $50,000 or so at least, and have all the city offices together. The city is large enough to have a decent sort of a city building, and it is foolishness to keep spending money on a lot of little two-story things." THE MISSING BOARD OF TRADE. "I see the BEE is trying to find out what has become of the board of trade. You know, awhile ago, there was a great hurrah about reorganizing it. Well, it was reorganized and new officers elected and all of us old fellows were kicked out Have you heard of it since? The old board of trade was slow enough, and it was hard work to get a quorum out, but we used to get one occasionally, and we did manage to secure a number of valuable enterprises and improvements. Since the reorganization what has the new

SELF-SURRENDERED CONFIDENCE MAN.
"I had a fellow come to me not long ago," said the city marshal, "who seemed very penitent, and who said he was a deserter from the regular army. He seemed so honest about the matter that I took him in charge, until I could write to the address he gave me, for he frankly told me the company and the regiment he belonged to, and where he supposed they were then. I saw the fellow had been on a terrible spree, and didn't suspect anything wrong about his story. After some days I got replies that they didn't know anything about such a man. He then admitted that he had been lying about it, but the reason he did so was that he had got so was that he had got to drinking so heavy that he made up his mind that the only way to sober up was to get into some place where he couldn't have a drink. So he surrendered himself as a deserter and was locked up. I was hot when I found out what trouble I had been to for nothing. I had been sort of calculating on the $30 reward that is paid for deserters. It made me mad for a little, but when I came to think it over I concluded to help the fellow. I got him a job at the transfer and he kent right at work as steady as a clock for some time. I see now that he has gone-I don't know where-but I suppose he has got started on another spree and pulled out."

A HOPEFUL LIQUOR DEALER.

A wholesale liquor dealer remarks: "I made up my mind that there was notmade up my mind that there was not going to be any change in the prohibition law. I was pretty well fixed in that belief, but lately I have changed my mind. I rather thin now that there will be a change this very winter. I find that at Des Moines there is a sort of split, and that secretary, A. F. and A. M. of Iowa, who delivered the address on the occasion of the laying of the corner-stone of the Masonic temple in this city, has presented, through Brother J. B. Atkins, to the two lodges in Council Bluffs a beautiful set of funeral symbols, consisting of a master's favor a change. I've been watching things very closely, for it means dollars and a good many of them to me, but I've changed my mind, and I really believe that there will be a change made in the law this winter. I only make the prediction for what it is worth, which may not be much, but I really believe that there will be enough republicans acting with the democrats to change the law. That is one reason why I am not making the is one reason why I am not making the business changes which I planned a short time ago, when I thought differ-

The Drummer Got a Dose for Once Minneapolis Journal: A traveling man boarded a passenger train at Bismarck at 5 p. m. At 6 p. m. he was occupying a double seat with a plump brunette and a slim blonde, the latter of whom remarked that she was "married but Hattie was not." The blonde was perusing a novel, one of the kind sold at two prices by the insinuating "peanut." The drummer wanted to be agreeable and pleasant, so he asked her if she would not read a chapter or two to him. "Oh, certainly, I like to read out loud." So she gave a synopsis of the chapters she had read There was a false macriage, a hidden will a divorce, a baby, an elopement, a for-tune, a false heir, and several other nice features in the synopsis. The fair reader had a voice—one of the sharp, piercing kind that could insinuate itself into the deaf side of a post. At 7 p. m. she had finished the synopsis and commenced on the remainder of the story. At 9 p. m. she had not slipped a cog in At 9 p. m. sne had not supped a cog in her tongue-working machinery, and the false heir had the upper hand. At 11 p. m. there had been no intermission except for a sip of alkali water which cleared her throat. Everybody else wanted to go to sleep, but nobody could. At 1 a. m. the story was still being poured into the satisfied gars of the unfortunate drummer. There was now a chance for the truly good to get their reward-in the story-while the false heir and the drummer were getting the worst of it. At 1:20 a. m Fargo was reached. Everybody who could got off—and the last thing that met their eyes was a paralyzed drummer, while the sibilant tones of a woman's voice were wafted out on the still night while a maiden of uncertain age whispered, "Serves that odious drummer right for flirting so shamefully."

A Healthy Stomach is a biessing for which thousands of our dyspeptic countrymen and women sigh in vain, and to obtain which swallow much medicine unavailingly. For no ailment—probably—are there so many alleged rembdies as for dyspepsid. The man of humbug is constantly glutted with the dollars and dimes of those who resort to one nostrum after another in the vain hope of obtaining relief, at least, from this vexatious and obstinate malady. Experience indicates Hostet-ter's stomach Bitters as a means of eradicating dyspensia, in which a firm reliance can be placed. No remedy has in three decades and over established such a reputation, none has received such unqualified professional sanction. It is an admirable invigorant, because it en-riches the blood, and not only this, but it thoroughly regulates the bowels, kidneys and bladder. The nervous symptoms are usually relieved by the medicine.
