In Reply to the Complaint of Nebraska Settlers Commissioner Atkins Says They Will be Corralled .- Fair Notes.

[FROM THE BEE'S LINCOLN BUREAU.] The claim made by the secretary of the Omaha freight bureau that his communication has received no attention at the hands of the state board of transportation is answered by the board that they have never received any communication whatever from the Omaha freight bureau and consequently have had none to answer. Some time since the manager of the Lincoln freight bureau received a document from Mr. Griffiths in the form of a complaint that was directed to the Lincoln freight bureau, and this is evidently the communication that Mr. Griffiths claims has received no attention. If properly addressed the board would have received

INDIAN DEPREDATIONS.

The governor has received numerous letters regarding the injury to game and in some instances to stock committed by wandering Indians in the northwestern counties of the state. Among these letters came a numerously signed petition which the governor forwarded to the interior department at Washington aecompanied by a personal letter. Yesterday the following reply was received by the commissioner of Indian affairs:

commissioner of Indian affairs:
Washington, Sept. 1.—Hon. J. M.
Thayer, governor of Nebraska. I have received your communication dated Aug. 17, 1857, enclosing a petition signed by F. E.
Woods, F. R. Peale and 100 others, all citizens of Keith and adjacent counties in the north of Nebraska, dated Aug. 9, 1857, complaining that the Indians of Pine Ridge and Rosebud agencies, Dakota, are roaming about in said counties destroying game, and requesting that steps be taken to cause the indians to be moved to their proper agencies. You urge that measures be taken to keep said Indians on their reservation, or to keep them outside the limits of said to keep them outside the limits of said to keep them outside the limits of said state.

In reply I have the honor to say that I have this day addressed letters on the subject to the United States Indian agents at said agencies, directing each to adopt proper measures to secure the return of all Indians of the bands complained of belonging to said agencies, respectively, to their reservations. Said agents are directed to make reports in the matter, at as early a date as practicable, said agents are directed to make reports in the matter, at as early a date as practicable, on receipt of which any further steps in the premises which may be deemed proper, will be taken. Very respectfully.

INTERVIEWED JUDGE MASON. Mr. Perkins, Mr. Holdrege and Mr. Marquette, were in Dincoln the entire day Sunday and it is stated that they had a long interview with Judge Mason relative to the rate question in the state upon which the republican county convention took such aggressive grounds. It is absolutely impossible to gain any facts regarding the conference but it is probable that nothing definite has yet been promised in the way of reductions. There is one fact that the people of the state can rely upon, and that is that no terms will be accepted by the board of secure radical reductions in freight rates for every town and shipping point in the state. What the board is working for is the state entire, and nothing will be accepted that would simply benefit a few of the more important points. The Lincoln freight human is working. freight bureau is working for rates direct for Lincoln, and the city expects, in com-mon with every other point, to be benefitted in a general reduction. To-day the hearing of the charges against the Elk-horn line will be heard, and it is expected that it will be an important meeting, at which a large number of railroad men

In the combination, proportion, and pre-paration of its ingredients, Hood's Sarsapariila accomplishes cures where other preparations entirely fail. Peculiar in its good name at home, which is a "tower of strength abroad," peculiar in the phenomenal sales it has attained. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the most successful medicine for purifying the blood, giving strength, and creating an appetite.

"WATCH THAT BOX!" Startling Adventure of a Lady Tele-

Pittsburg Dispatch: Telegraph operators are often very commonplace people. They listen daily to the click of the instrument, and, beyond this monotonous repetition of sound nothing very often happens to disturb the tranquil surface of their every-day existence. Ge-casionally one is found, however, who has had a thrilling experience. In fact, it requires no small amount of courage to sit in a lonely watch tower at night away out in the country along a railroad. It takes considerable tact to handle tramps takes considerable tact to handle tramps and unruly persons who may be passing, and are always willing, it seems, to create trouble at any cost. It is surprising how many of the fair sex, weak, delicate creatures, as man has seen fit to call women, have taken to telegraphy as a means of obtaining a livelihood, and what a degree of nerve and firmness they display under trying and dangerous circumstances. Men have not ceased to recount the one daring exploit of Grace Darling or to speak with pride of the manly heroism displayed by Florence Nightingale.

"Not long ago," said a gentleman re-

"Not long ago," said a gentleman recently in conversation with a Dispatch reporter, "I met a most singular and daring woman in a little town in the west. She was a telegraph operator, and a very good one, too. Though fifty years old, she was still fresh and

FULL OF VIGOR. Her piercing black eyes, closely shut lips and fine gray hair, brushed back from a low brow, bespoke very plainly to a close observer that this woman at least was not one of the kind that shricks and faints away in emergency.

"She related to me an adventure she had with a robber in her early days, which, connected with a strange freak of the telegraphic instrument, is worth relating.

"In my early days,' she said, a number of years ago, I was the railroad operator in a little western town in an entirely new and unsettled country. It was during the gold excitement and people were coming and going all the time. It was coming and going all the time. It was no uncommon occurrence for a box of gold to be sent by express, and the greatest diligence and care were required the part of the trainmen to see that they were not robbed of their precious burden.

"One afternoon an express train ar-rived and left at the station in my care a box of money, the amount I do not rem-ember. Later in the day a rough box containing the body of a man who had been killed was landed on the platform, and it was found it could not be removed until the next day. Well, both boxes were carried in, and I must confess it was not very pleasant to sleep with a golden treasure on one side and a lifeless body on the other. There was no remedy, however, and I had to put up with the arrangement. As the money had been forwarded very quetly, I felt confident that no one knew anything about it, and so was not troubled with any serious ap-

"The night proved to be very dark and it began to rain. I had been lying awake for some time watching the bright sein-tilations, of the lightning from the wires when clearly and distinctly across the line came the startling message: 'Watch that box, watch that box.' I sprang up at once and tried to find out from whom the message came. I telegraphed to a number of points but no one knew any-teing about it. Finally I came to the conclusion that I had been dreaming and retired. I had scarcely got into bed when the strange message was heard again. This time it was more distinct and the instrument began to click at a lively rate, repeating the words over and over again: Watch that box, watch that

At once I got up and pulled out a heavy Colt's revolver that had been rusting in that office, and found to my horror it wouldn't work. I was afraid to go near the box containing the dead man; for I now felt sure that a live one was in it. The treasure was too heavy for me to carry, and to go out and leave it for a moment would have given the villain in the box an opportunity to take it. What clicked, clicked, and the same short line message was repeated over and over again. By aid of a flekering light I could see the rough box very plainly at the other end of the station. It gave no signs of life. Finally I secreted myself behind a dry goods box where I could see and not be seen and I held in my hand an iron bar and the old rusty revolver, hese were the only weapons of defense I had. I did not wait very long before I thought I saw the lid of the coffin move. I was not mistaken, either. Pretty soon it was pushed gently aside, and the head of the most villamous-looking man was pushed out. I saw through the whole scheme now, and well it had been planned. He got out from his temporary sepulcher and lit a dark lantern. He moved cautiously about, evidently searching for the treasure. As he drew closer and closer to where I was I was afraid my hard breathing would reveal my hiding place. He passed me un-noticed, and I knew now was my only chance. The man heard me move, and turned quickly, but not quick enough to ward off a well aimed blow, as it after-wards proved. I struck him near the ear with the bar and with sufficient force to fell him to the floor. Almost over-come with excitement, I ran to the near-est neighbor's, and returned to find the bird had flown. The marks of carriage wheels in the mud could be plainly seen, and while I was gone his confederates had arrivedf found their unlucky pal, and taken him away, but had left the box. I never found out who he was, neither could I learn from whom the neither could I learn from whom the strange message of warning came. I am not superstitious, but I never could ac-count for the occurrence only by ascrib-ing it to supernatural causes."
"Here her story ended," continued the gentleman, "and I believe that every word of it is true. I know a number of

STREET PAVING.

Omaha's Streets Compared With Streets of Other Cities.

A Reporter in Search for an Item Discovers an Interesting Case-Vain Search for Re-lief-Found at Last--- A Frank and interesting interview.

A reporter meandering in Starth for an item several days since, overhearing a conversation in regard to the street paving of Omaha compared with other cities, determined to look the matter up, and came to the conclusion that the paved streets of Omaha compared very favorably with the same in any city in the United States. Baltimore, Md., is a well-paved city, the streets being mostly paved in what is known as the cobble-stone style. Washington, D. C. is probably the best paved city in the United States, the streets there, with few exceptions, being paved with the best asphaltum and what is known as the Belgium block, a gray granite block somewhat similar to the red granite block used in Omaha. The streets of St. Paul, Minn, are largely paved with what is known as the cedar blocks. This makes an excellent paving, but does not last nearly so long as asphaltum or granite blocks. Omaha streets are paved with asphaltum and granite blocks, with one or two streets paved with the cedar blocks, making a showing of paved streets second to none in the country.

MR. WILLIAM TELFORD,

(Tenth street between Mason and Paetfie streets) a street paver employed by Contractor Hugh Murphy. Mr. Telford, a very intelligent gentleman, was overseeing his gang of men laying the granite blocks on Fourteenth street near Capitol avenue, and being accosted by the reporter greeted that individual very pleasantly. "Yes," said Mr. Telford, "I have been paving streets now for nearly two years. It is a fairly good business, and pays about as good as most outdoor jobs. It being an outdoor job is, in fact, the only objection I have to it. A man working on the streets is liable to be caught in a sudden shower and get wet through before he can reach shelter, and in the fail of the year, with winter close on us, we must work like Trojans to get our contracts finished before the extreme cold comes to stop us. While working at my business about one year ago I took a heavy cold, which brought on a severe hacking cough and numerous sick headaches. I would be working in the morning, when about 10 o'clock a severe sick badache would come on me and I would have to stop work for the day. I would go home and lie down, when the cough would assail me and make life miserable for me. I tried numerous cough medicines and could get no relief. Things went on this way for a while when matters became worse for me. I commenced having night sweats, and would get up in the morning and, instead of feeling refreshed as I should have felt, I would feel more tired than when I went to bed. I then became soriously alarmed and consulted a doctor, who told me I had weak lungs. He treated me for quite a while, and I could obtain no relief. I changed doctors, and changed several times, but could get no relief. I could not work more than one or two days a week; I spent all the money I had, and the major part of my brother's money, all for nothing, for I was ketting worse instead of better. I had about given up all hope of ever getting well again. After a visit to Kansas of about two weeks in the vain hope of ortaining some rel sieep. I have only been under his treatment for two weeks and feel better to-day than I have for a whole year. Why, I lost 30 pounds weight since nast January, but have gained about 10 pounds again since being treated by Dr. McCoy, and am fully satisfied that I will be as well as ever I was in a week or two."

"Will you have any objection to my publishing this interview?" queried the reporter.

"None whatever," answered Mr. Telford. "I am very glad to add my testimony to the many that the doctor has, and if I can do anything for poor, suffering humanity by testifying to Dr. McCoy's skill I am very willing to do so."

The reporter thanked Mr. Telford for his frankness, and continued on his weary way after information.

INTERESTING EVIDENCE OF A CONDITION NOT TO ME TRIFLED WITH.

When catarrh has existed in the head and the upper part of the throat for any lensth of time—tre patient hiving in a district where people are subject to catarrhal affection—and the disease has been left uncured, the catarrh invariably, sometimes slowly, extends down the windpipe and into the bronchial tubes, which tubes convey the air to the different parts of the lungs. The tubes become affected from the swelling and the mucous arising from catarrh, and, in some instances, become plugged up, so that the air cannot get in as freely as it should. Shortness of breath follows, and the patient breathes with labor and difficulty.

In either case there is a sound of crackling and wheezing inside the chest. At this stage of the disease the breathing is usually more rapid than when in health. The patient has also hot dashes over his body.

The pain which accompanies this condition is of a dull character, feit in the chest, behind the breast bone, or under the shoulder blade. The pain may come and go—last few days and then be absent for several others. The cough that occurs in the first stages of brouchial catarrh is dry, comes on at intervals, backing in character, and is usually most troublesome in the morning on rising, or going to bed at night and it may be in the first evidence of the disease extending into the lungs.

Sometimes there are fits of coughing induced by the tough mucus so violent as to cause vomiting. Later on the mucus that is raised, is found, to contain small particles of yellow matter, which indicates that the small tubes in the lungs are now affected. With this there are often streaks of blood mixed with the mucus. In some cases the patient becomes very pale, has fevor, and expectorates before any cough appears.

In some cases small masses of cheesy substance are soit up, which, when pressed be-LEADS TO CONSUMPTION. appears.

In some cases smal masses of cheesy substance are spit up, which, when pressed between the fingers, emit a bad odor. In other cases, particles of a hard, chalky nature are spit up. The raising of cheesy or chalky lumps indicate serious mishlef at work in the lungs.
