COURTNEY WINS A BOAT RACE.

Programme of the Big Shooting Tournament in Omaha Next Month-The New Western League-Other Events.

Omaha 4, Kansas City 2. Omaha and Kansas City played an elegant came of ball on the home grounds yesterday, Healey pitched a good game, and much of the credit of the victory is due to his work. The fielding of the visitors was almost perfect, and while the Omahas are credited with three errors the visitors made only one. The batting was not particularly heavy, but the Omahas again; showed their efficiency in stealing bases. The game was called at the end of the seventh inning on account of darkness. The New Western League.

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—The Western association of professional base ball clubs was organized last night. Delegates representing eight western cities met, elected officers and signed an agreement forming the new organization. The representation is as follows: Omana, George E. Kay, representing Joseph Garneau; Chicago, S. G. Morton; Kansas City, E. E. Menges; Lincoln, David Rowe; Des Moines, C. M. Sherman; Minneapolis, R. O. Foster; St. Paul, A. M. Thompson; Milwaukee, J. A. Hart. Menges represented Chris Von Der Ahe, of St. Louis, and pre-sented a letter from that gentleman in which his demands were too heavy. He wished to make the new association a training school for the Browns. The delegates could not meet his views, and they voted to drop St. Louis out of the deal. Lincoln, Neb., was then admitted to representation, Dave Rowe being present in the interest of that city. interest of that city. An agreement was drawn up and signed by each delegate. A committee was appointed to prepare a constitution and by-laws. E. E. Menges, of Kansas City, was elected president pro tem and Sam G. NAPOLEON'S EMPTY TOMB.

Proof That the Remains Were Not Brought From St. Helena. PARIS Sept. 28.—| New York HeraldCable -Special to the BEE.]—A few days ago the Gaulois made a sensation by echoing a rumo that the remains of Napoleon, which all the world believed to be resting in a tomb in the Invalides, had been sacriligiously removed at some time not specified, and that the tomb was empty. Although the story sounded ridiculous, almost every newspaper in Paris sent to the Invalides to Interview the guardians and were laughed at for their pains. The interviewers were told that it was physically impossible to lift the enormously heavy porphyry lid without special machinery, and solemnly assured them the remains had never been disturbed since they were placed in the Invalides. This morning the Gaulois, with every appearance of good faith, published a startling article headed. "Le Doculished a startling article headed, "Le Document Apropos des Cendres de Napoleon I," purporting to have been communicated to it by a person formerly holding a high official position, according to which the great emperor's ashes were not indeed removed from the Invalides but were never deposited there, as on opening the coffin brought from St. Helena, and supposed to contain them, it was found empty. 'The Gaulois informant solemnly asserts that a vellow dossier, sealed was found empty. The Gautois informant solemnly asserts that a yellow dossier, sealed with eight seals and tabelled "affaires classes," exists in one of the departments of the ministry of public instruction. On the wrapper is the inscription referring in detail to "travaux de la commission secrete charme de lenguite relative a "beence des condres de lenquite relative a l'bsence des condres de Napoleon I, au moment de Louverture des conclis." The names of twelve dignataries composing the committee with the date of their appointment, the 24th of February, 1861, follows. Among them are Marshal Valliant, Count Walewski, Count Persigny, Marshal D'Orano. After the names, says the Gaulois informant, comes a note that the report 137 pages in length, was drawn up and presented to Napoleon III. April 37, 1894, by Marshal Valliant, recording the absence of the emperor's remains at the time of the opening of the coffin in the chapel at St. Jerome. de lenguite relative a l'bsence des condre their welcome.

Uncle Bob is a westerner who has mined and starved and roughed it and struck it rich on the mountains and plains of the western states and territores. He came east to see his brother. He has a pard's niece as his idol, and meets a scoundrel whom he knew in the mines, endeavoring to bring ruin to his brother's daughter and an-other female friend. He exposes the villian and the play ends in a quadruple marriage. Uncle Bob uses the parlance of the plains and camp. The patois drops most naturally from his lips. His makeup is satisfactory and his acting through-out highly successful. He indulges in no rant, in no mock-heroism. There are no loud passages, and it may be that, for this reason, there were so few recalls. The appreciation, such as it was, was not pro-nounced but heartfelt. Mrs. Florence made an excellent net-maker and cap-tured Uncle Bob with consummate cheek and skill. The play did not run as smoothly as it doubtiess will when the prompter may be discarded. PESTILENCE OF PROHIBITION.

Exiled Iowans Hold a Spirited Meeting For Personal Liberty.

COLONEL EIBOECK'S ADDRESS'

The Ruin Wrought to the Fair State By Oppressive Legislation Depicted By Several Speakers-Hot Resolutions,

> The Meeting of lowans. Colonel Joseph Eiboeck, editor of the Des Momes Staatz Anzieger, was the projector of one of the most spirned meetings that has occurred in this city for many a day. It was held in Metz' hall last evening and its object was to learn, if possible, the number of former residents of Iowa now in Omaha, and who moved to this city on account of the oppression and depression caused by the prohibitory laws of lows. The hall was crowded, and among the audience were many of Omaha's most respected and influential citizens, Shortly after 8 o'clock Colonel Eiboeck called the meeting to order, and in his opening address

"For many months I have heard reports to the effect that there are hundreds of former lowans resident in this city who moved from that state to avoid the odious disadvantages caused by the pro-hibitory law. At first I could hardly give credence to the reports that there were 5,000 of these people in Omaha. This being the year of years that will tell whether or not the laws of Iowa will change, I thought it a good plan to leave my home in Des Moines for a few weeks and come over to Omaha and see for myself the results of the obnoxsee for myself the results of the obnox-lous prohibitory law of my state. I thought by this that I could show the people of lowa just how much they have lost by their ruinous laws, and since I arrived here I have realized the fact that there are more than 10,000 Iowa people in this city, and not merely 5,000, as we have been led to believe. I know for a fact that 1,000 of the people here are from Des Moines. The statement has been made that only the saloonkeepers left the state, but since I have been in Omaha I have found that the great majority were the mechanics, the artisans and the business men. I have met men to-day who were former residents of Iowa who now represent three-fourths of a million invested in this city, and I have learned from good authority that there is over $3,000,000 invested in this city that would to-day be in Iowa if it were not for the prohibitory laws in that state. To bring cities in that afflicted state up to the proper standard we must have the repeal of that law, and earnest and untiring efforts of able men will be placed in the campaign this fall, which, it is hoped, will have the desired effect. Now what I desire are the names, residence, and occupation of every former resident of Iowa who has moved to this city within the past three or four years. I also want to of the capital represented, and I am contident that the vast array of names and capital found in this city and state which I shall present before the people this fall will be sufficient to insure the repeal of the liquor law, so odious and unprofitable. At this point the speaker announced that a chairman should be elected, and he recommended H. C. Bechtold. The nominee was elected unanimously, and in assuming the office he thanked the large audience for the honor conferred. He spoke of the oppressive laws of Iowa and of the many good citizens that they had driven away from that state. Mr. Vaught, formerly mayor of Council Bluffs, was introduced and made a long and rambling speech, in which he said: "I do not understand that this is a liquor meeting, but simply a meeting of investigation. Owing to the exorb tant taxes in lowa, many have left that state and seitled in Omaha and other portions of Nebraska. They are aiding grandly in the upbuilding of this state. The question to-night is, 'Who is state. The question to night is, 'Who i going to pay the taxes of lowa?' It is well known fact that Des Moines had pefore the prohibitory law an income of $62 000 from sixty-two saloons and since the law went into effect it does not have an income of 62 cents out of more than Colonel Eiboeck again took the floor, and as an instance of the ruin and retardment caused by the prohibitory law said: "Des Moines is a city with resour ces of those of Omaha, two great rivers, vast water power. It is in the center of one of the grandest agricultural districts in this union. It has fourteen accessable railroads, and we are still behind Omaha four years ago we had the wealth, the thrift and the population that Omahe could not surpass, and Des Moines with all of its resources has been brought into bankruptcy by this prohibition. People have left the city by the thousand, and to-day it is but a wreck of what it was four years ago. Has prohibition saved humanity? If it had we might say that there is some good in it. But, alas, it has not. Thousands of arrests for drunkeness have been made in the city, thousands of search warrants have been issued during the past year, 800 barrels of whiskey, 500 car loads of beer, gallons of liquors packed in shoe cases, egg cases, bales and other receptacles, have been shipped into the city during the past year, and this demonstrates the good or bad that the prohibitory law is doing in Iowa."

As the speaker closed he introduced Judge Stowe, who addressed the audience briefly. "I know," said he, "that Ne-braska is well filled with Iowa men, but am really surprised to find that Coionel Eiboeck has gathered so many of you together, and has got you so well stirred up. If I can add a word that will help my friends in Iowa I will gladly do it. I do not believe that there is one man here to-night who has heard an Iowa man say within the past three years, 'prohibition is not a humbug.' I have had prominent men tell me that they had found out that it was a humbug, although they were among the many who voted for it. It however is making lowa and its residents suf fer to-day. Hundreds of thrifty people are coming from across the water every day, and as they come west not a one of them stays within the boundaries of Iowa. The values of property in that state are low-ering every day. What is true of Des Moines is also true of every other city and town in the state. Surplus money has ceased to flow into Iowa, immigra-tion has ceased, and as a natural result the pay for labor is low, there is a dearth of it, and laborers are seeking more profitable fields. Iowa has only one product and that is its grain, and in adopting prohibition she has passed a law to the effect that her only product shall not be manufactured from in her own state. The result is deplorable. Men have not left because they cannot get liquor to drink, but because the law has deadened every industry, lowered wages and low-ered the values of farms. Iowa has a dead commerce, and the state is under the iron heel of despotism."

This closed the speaking, and a list of the names of the Iowans present was then taken, and nearly $150 was subscribed to aid Colonel Eiboeck along in his campaign this fall. A committee was appointed to complete the work, and consists of the following: Colonel Ei-boeck, Charles Jacobin, Ed Maurer, George Coninda, Thomas E. Foley and W. N. Vaughn.

The following resolution was passed unanimously as the sense of the meeting:
Resolved, That while we are compelled to leave lows—as grand a state as there is in the union—on account of the deplorable effects of prohibition, which has practically ruined its towns and cities, and which, by the destruction of the breweries and distilleries, has robbed every farmer in the state of from 3 cents to 5 cents on every bushel of corn he raises; that while we have telt the tyrannical rule of fanatcism, and have become familiar with the outrages of prohibition enforced as perpetrated by the agents of the temperance alliance of our state, who have invaded the sanctities of the firesides and the lodge rooms, dragged dying women from their beds, incarcerated men for simply protesting against these outrages, and shooting down like dogs innocent men upon the streets of Des Moines, because they would not immediately obey the mandates of the prohibition spies and bullies; that while we have feit and realized this terrible curse that has befallen our old home state, we desire to give expression to our feelings of symthat has befallen our old home state, we de-sire to give expression to our feelings of sym-pathy to our struggling friends in lowa and assure them that they have our heartiest well wishes in their battle this year against the pestilence of prohibition, which hangs like a black pall over our beloved old state.

Brevities.

A meeting of the Second ward repub-licans will be held at Frensel's hall, northeast corner of Sixteenth and Will-iams streets, this (Thursday) evening at 8 o'clock. All republicans are invited. George Wood was arrested yesterday afternoon for stealing some articles from H. Hardy's 99-cent store. He slipped the stolen goods into his pocket while the proprietor's back was turned, but was observed by a clerk.

John Copeland, a railroad man, was arraigned before Judge Berka yesterday on the charge of stealing a hat from Pat Price. As no damaging testimony was produced, the prisoner was discharged. James Reed, a negro who attempted to terrify his wife by discharging a revolver a few times, was fined $10 and costs yes-terday Reed charges his wife with being wayward at times and claims that he merely wishes to scare her into a purer mode of life.

MARKET GARDENING.

An Interview With One of Oma ha's Vegetable Gardeners.

An Article of Interest to All-The Life of a Sailor-How the Good Ship "Health" was Foundered, Etc., Etc.

The life of a sailor is often very interesting reading to the citizens of the western country. Knowing this to be the fact a reporter shouldering his note book and Faber No. 2, started out to find an old sailor, and interview him on the matter. The reporter met Mr. Bernard Carstens, who resides in Central Park near the city limits. Mr. Carsten's, a German by birth is in business as a gardner and trucker and supplies the hotels and restaurants of Omaha with fresh vegetables every morning. On being accosted by the reporter he said: "Yes, I sailed the seas for about ten Years, and in that visited almost every country in the world. I have to China, Austraias, New Zealand, the East Indias, and almost every seaport along the Mediterranean sea. The life of a sailor is a hard one as well as a dangerous one, and only a man with a very good constitution can stand it very long. I enjoyed my life on the seas and was always healthy there. In factl never had a days sickness until about one year ago."

"Then you have been sick lately," asked the reporter.

"Yes, I was taken sick last fall. I jost my apsickness until about one year ago."

"Then you have been sick lately," asked the reporter.

"Yes, I was taken sick last fall. I lost my appetite, could not eat enough to keep a child alive, had night sweats, would get up in the morning feeling worse than a man who had not slept at all, could only eat a little breakfast, and would have to vomit that up very soon after eating it. I was attacked with a bad backing cough which would cause me intense pain in my chest and lungs, would have chills and fever every three or four days. My condition became alarming. I could scarcely lift as much as a child. As I said before I became alarmed, and hearing and reading concluded to call upon them, which I did about three weeks ago and was examined. They told me I had catarrhal consumption and promised to cure me in two months. Not quite a month has elapsed and I am well again. I have no more night sweats, no more chills and fever, do not vomit any more in the morning, and to tell the truth feel like a new man altogether. I feel as though I could not say enough for Drs, McCoy and Henry for they have indeed worked wonders in my case:

The above out is a very good portrait of Mr. Carstens, who resides in Central Park, near the city limits, where he will gladly corroborate the above statement to anyone who will take the rouble to call or address him there.

LEADS TO CONSUMPTION.

INTERESTING EVIDENCE OF A CONDITION NOT TO BE TRIFLED WITH. When catarrh has existed in the head and the upper part of the throat for any length of time tree patient living in a district where people are subject to catarrhal affection—and the disease has been left uncured, the catarrh invariably, sometimes slowly, extends down the windpipe and into the bronchial tubes, which tubes convey the air to the different parts of the lungs. The tubes become affected from the swelling and the mucous arising from catarrh, and, in some instances, become plurged up, so that the air cannot get in as freely as it should. Shortness of breath follows, and the patient breathes with laborand difficulty. In either case there is a sound of crackling and wheezing inside the chest. At this stage of the disease the breathing is usually more rapid than when in bealth. The patient has also hot dashes over his body.

The pain which accompanies this condition is of a dull character, felt in the chest, behind the breast bone, or under the shoulder blade. The pain may come and go—last few days and then be absent for several others. The cough that occurs in the first stages of bronchial estarrh is dry, comes on at intervals, backing in character, and is usually most troublesome in the morning on rising, or going to bed at night and it may be in the first evidence of the disease ex-morning on rising, or going to bed at night and it may be in the first evidence of the disease ex-tending into the lungs. Sometimes there are fits of coughing induced Sometimes there are fits of coughing induced by the tough mucus so violent as to cause voun-iting. Later on the mucus that is raised, is found to contain small particles of yellow mat-ter, which indicates that the small tubes in the lungs are now affected. With this there are often streaks of blood mixed with the mucus. In some cases the patient becomes very pale, has fever, and expectorates before any cough appears. appears.

In some cases smal lmasses of cheesy substance are spit up, which, when pressed between the fingers, emit a bad odor. In other cases, particles of a hard, chalky nature are spit up. The raising of cheesy or chalky lumps indicate serious mishief at work in the lungs.

SNEEZING CATARRH.

What It Means, How It Acts, and What It Is.

What It Is.

You sneeze when you get up in the morning, you try to sneeze your nose off every time you are exposed to the least draft of air. You have a fullness over the front of the forehead, and the nose feels as if there was a plug in each nostril which you cannot dislodge. You blow your nose until your ears crack, but it don't do any good, and the only result is that you succeed in getting up a very red nose, and you so irritate the lining membrane of that organ that you are unable to breathe through it at ail. This is a correct and not overdrawn ploture of an acute attack of catarrh, or "Sneezing Catarrh" as it is called.

Now, what does this condition indicate? First, a cold that causes mucus to be poured out by the glands in the nose; then those diseased glands are attacked by swarms of little germs—the catarrh germ—that float in the air in a locality where the disease is prevalent. These and mature undertakes to rid herself of them by producing a fit of sneezing.

When the nose becomes filled with thickened and nature undertakes to rid herself of them by producing a fit of sneezing.

When the nose becomes flied with thickened and diseased mucus the natural channels for the introduction of air into the lungs is interfered with, and the person so effected must breathe through the mouth, and by such means the throat becomes parched and dry, snoring is produced, and then the catarrial disease gaps, ready access to the throat and
