STARTS UNDER SMILING SKIES

The Presidential Train Leaves Washington With Favorable Auspices.

GOOD-BYES AND GODSPEEDS.

Great Crowds of People Gather Along the Route and View the Show With Open-Mouthed Wonder.

An Auspicious Departure.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—[Special Tetegram to the BEE.]—The presidential party started on time this morning. The station was crowded with an immense crowd of people, all earer to see the start and bid good bye to the president. There was no noisy demonstration, but all the men in the crowd respectfully raised their hats as the president passed through the line which had been formed inside the train yard. There were a number of officials and pol-iticians. Secretary Bayard and his daughter, Secretary Fairchild, Secretary Whitney and Secretary Endicott with Mrs. Lamar and were a number of officials and politicians. Secretary Bayard and his daughter, Secretary Fairchild, Secretary Whitney and Secretary Fairchild, Secretary Whitney and Secretary Fairchild, Secretary Whitney and Secretary Endicott with Mrs. Lamar and Marshal Wilson. They were on hand nearly half an hour before the time fixed upon for the start. The president and Mrs, Cleveland accompanied by Mrs. Folsom drove up in the presidential carriage lifteen minutes before 10. Superintendent Baldwin, of the Pullman Palace Car company, escorted the president to the train and Major John M. Carson, correspondent of the Philadelphia Ledger, took charge of Mrs. Cleveland. The prominence of the major caused his associates to burn with envy, but it was no use. He was there and the others were obliged to keep back with the common spectators. Just as the party arrived at the station the clouds which had obscured the sky for several days began to break away, and Mrs. Cleveland noticing this remarked to her escort: "Oh, we shall nave Cleveland weather. We always take good weather along with us." The train started promptly on time and under the most favorable auspices.

[Press]—About fifty persons gathered in front of the white house this morning to witness the departure of the President and Mrs. Cleveland on their western trip. The President, Mrs. Cleveland, Mrs, Folsom and Mrs. Cleveland's maid were driven to the Pennsylvania raiiroad depot and boarded the special train in waiting for them. They were shortly followed by Marshal Wilson, Secretaries Fairchild, Whitney, Endicott and Bayard, Miss Bayard, Dr. Bryant and Mr. Bissell. The special train at precisely 10 o'clock moved off on its long journey.

The president wore his usual black suit, while Mrs. Cleveland was dressed in a brown silk bodice with white sprig skirt and bonnet to match.

The train looked very handsome in its new paint and elistening bronze fittings. Through

The train looked very handsome in its new paint and glistening bronze fittings. Through the plate glass windows could be seen baskets of jacquemenot roses and other cut flowers. From the waiting rooms a curious crowd had eyed the train and every member at the arrival. The president of the party as they arrived. The president was escorted to the train by Marshal Wilson; Mrs. Cleveland and her mother came next and a maid followed them. Quite a crowd of newspaper men, railroad officials and other privileged persons had been admitted to the platform. Most of them raised their hats and salutes were returned by the party. The train was drawn by engine No. 461 in charge of Engineer Frank Carver and Conductor C. A. Haverstick.

Arrival at Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 30 .- The presidential train reached this city at 11 o'clock. The announcement that it would arrive at that time attracted about one thousand people, fully one-half of whom were ladies. As soon as the train stopped the president and Mrs. Cleveland were seen in the center of the car. He sat near the window, and to a request to go on the platform of the car, shook his head. The train pulled out at 115 train pulled out at 11:15. There were no onstrations by the people assembled at Several thousand people thronged the depot and cheered as the train slowly made its way through the mass of humanity which could not be driven back by police-men. President and Mrs. Cleveland stood

At all points the inhabitants were out in force, waving flags, handkerchiefs, shouting and cheering. No feature of the entertaining panorama was lost or unenjoved by the president and wife. To every welcoming demonstration they made a court eous acknowledgement. At Altoona there was a roaring crowd, filling every inch of the immense platform an I all the open region about. The president stepped down to the platforn and an attempt was made to pass the multitude before him to give an opportunity for nandshaking, but dispite the commands, threats, entreaties, and even blows of those who tried to manage the affair, the people surged ahead from both sides and in front as well. Mrs. Cleveland created a diversion and afforded a measure of relief by retreating to the parter of the car and seating herself in front of one of the wide plate glass windows. The multi-tude caught sight of the picture and crowded around to look at it. The president now stepped back upon the car platform as the allotted time was up, but even now they were unwilling to let him go. The last hand he shook was that of a man who climbed up on the roof of the car and hung head downwards over the rear end. The whole exciting epi-sode lasted only four or five minutes. There was not a sign of intentional rudeness throughout, but notwithstanding the good nature and well-meant enthusiasm, the hope is ture and well-meant enthusiasm, the hope is warranted that better arrangements will be made ahead. The president admitted as he re-entered his car that he had never had quite such an experience before. The only thing he regretted, however, was that such arrangements had not been made as would have given a greater number an opportunity to meet him. At a point called Grapeville the train was halted and the occupants summoned to the rear platform. A roaring moned to the rear platform. A roaring sound was heard from the hillside, but nothsound was neard from the filliside, but nothing was visible except the lights in a few seattered farm houses. Developments were awaited in silence. Then some one at the hillside lighted a Roman candle and aimed its discharges at a point whence the roaring came and soon two flames, each ten feet broad, leaped into the air to the height of a hundred feet, snowing the nearer hillsides in a weird, uncanny fashion, and more dimly bringing out the ghosts of those behind. The president's party much enjoyed this natural gas exhibition. President and Mrs. Cleveland, in reply to an inquiry, declared that this first day's journey had been delightful throughout. When the train arrived in the Pittsburg union the train arrived in the Pittsburg union depot the press of people was almost unbearable. The train was twenty minutes late coming in, having waited that length of time in the city limits to witness an illumination of the natural gas stsudpipes. When the train approached the union ststlen a red fire was burned along the bluff and the houses on the street below were illuminated and decorated with multi-colored banners. As soon as the train came to a stop Superintendant Pitcairn conducted the ladies of the W. C. T. U. to Mrs. Cleveland, to whom they presented a beautiful floral offering bearing the inscription: "In thee shall the nations of the earth be blessed." In the meantime various democratic organizations crowded upon the platform of the rear car to shake hands with the president. The train waited but five minutes, and as it passed along the track and into the portal of the tunnel, westward-bound, the crowd slowly dispersed.

WILL BOYCOTT THE PARADE. Chicago Labor and Soldier Organiza tions Will Not Boom Cleveland.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30,—[Special Telegram to the BEE.]—At the office of the presidential reception committee it was learned to-day that none of the labor organizations had yet recovered from the shock of the "corner stone affair," in spite of the assurance that the president would not lav it, and it looks as though labor would strictly boycott the parade.

Another feature is that very few Grand A / posts are accepting the cordial invita-

A / posts are accepting the cordial invitation extended them and the reasons given in their declinations are all much the same. Here is a sample received to-day from the secretary of the Union Veteran club:

"The club desire to express their appreciation of your kindness in extending the invitation. Its members entertain the most profound respect for the president of the United States, as president, and if necessary would defend him with their lives. Our organization is, however, distinctly and whoily republican. Our allegiance is due to the party which saved the nation in the hour of its deepest need. We remember when Andy Johnson swung around the circle, to create a presidential boom for himself in the year 1867. We cannot consent to stuffly our record by assisting in a similar cifort for Mr. Grover Cleveland in the year 187. We propose to aid, by every loyal and legitimate means, the election of a republican president in 1888. As union soldiers we love to adhere to the principles for which we fought during the late rebellion. The club therefore most respectfuily declines to accept your invitation."

CRITICISING POWDERLY.

A Prominent Knight On the General

Master Workman. CHICAGO, Sept. 30 .- The Chicago delegates to the Knights of Labor convention leave here to-morrow night on a special train. Z. J. Paul, in correspondence of the organ of Powderl,'s opponents, will say to-morrow: "From reading Powderly's morrow: "From reading Powderly's circular the public seems to think the general assembly meets morely to endorse him. The official clique at Richmond tried to have his term extended to three years, and after they were beaten Powderly threatened not to serve another term, but this was for effect, and that night his clam made a deal so that next morning they violated the constitution and illegally they violated the constitution and illegally extended their term to two years."

A Denver h. of L. Kick.

DENVER, Col., Sept. 30.—[Special Tele-gram to the Bee.]—Mr. Thomas A. Neasham, district master workman of district assembly No. 82, and Mr. C. J. Driscoll, deputy labor commissioner of Colorado, will leave this evening for Minneapolis to attend the gen-eral assembly of Knights of Labor. With regard to J. R. Buchanan's election as delegate to represent District No. 89 of Colorado, it is stated as a fact that an almost unaniit is stated as a fact that an almost mani-mous protest will go to the convention from the local assemblies of SD, protesting against Buchanan's election as a delegate, or against the manner of it. It will be remembered that Buchanan was elected by means of proxies manipulated by the socialists. The unani-mous protest which goes forward will prove to the general assembly that he does not rep-resent this district.

The Co-operative Board Meets. MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 30,-The co-operative board of the Knights of Labor held its first session to-day. The committee on credenials also began its work and a fight is ev pected over delegates who, it is said, will be sent from the expelled District 126, the carpet weavers of New York.

Railroad Trouble Brewing.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30 .- Serious trouble in the Northwestern freight lines is anticipated, The Milwaukee & St. Paul and Wisconsin Central roads have filed notice of withdrawal from the Northwestern association, basing their action upon that of the Burlington & Northern. The St. Paul folks claim they wish to be able to make local rates to Council Bluffs and Omaha in case the Burlington Northern reduces the Minneapolis rates. The Rock Island and its northern connection made a large cut to-day on cotton piece goods to Minneapolis and St. Paul. This includes bags and bagging used by millers, and all of the cheaper cotton manufactured articles, and forms one of the most staple articles carried by the good by the country of the countr ried between here and the northwest. The other lines have met the rates made.

A River Steamer Burned.

MEMPHIS, Sept. 20,-The steamer T. B. Simms, plying between Memphis and St. Louis, burned this morning at Island Forty, sixteen miles above this city. She had about 275 bales of cotton and 6,000 barrels of flour and meal aboard, all of which was destroyed with the boat. The Simms was valued at $20,000 and is a total loss. partly burned to-day. Loss on stock and building foots up $46,000,about two-thirds in-sured. The Carleton Leather Belt company s the heaviest sufferer. Prohibition Defeated. CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 30.-Returns from all portions of the state indicate that the prohibition amendment is defeated by the prohibition amendment to 20,000 or more.

The latest election returns indicate a majority against the prohibition amendment of about 15,000. A Challenge Declined.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30 .- | Special Telegram to the BEE. |-Governor Hill has declined, on the ground of previous engagements, to meet Henry George on the stump and discuss the subject of taxation.

Boycotting Punishable.

New Your, Sept. 30 .- Judge Barrett yesterday declared that the boycotting of nonunion laborers by labor organizations, is punishable under the law against conspiracy.

AMERICA KEEPS THE CUP.

The Yankee Volunteer Again Throws the Spray on Her Competitor.

SHE WINS THE RACE EASILY.

The Omaha Club Plays Its Last Game and Dies in Defeat-Denver Wins Three Straight-Fierce Prize Fight.

Once More Victorious. NEW YORK, Sept. 30 .- The second attempt to sail the second race in the two-out-of-three match for the America's cup was accomplished to-day under circumstances that compelled the most ultra-Britisher to say the Thistle was beaten fairly and soundly. The day did not open propitously. The same old storm that had been hanging around for two days was still lingering and a bank of fog still hung over the sea. A start was made, however, and every one of the 25,000 spectators saw as square a race as was ever sailed in any water. It was precisely at 10:30 a. m. that the pre-paratory signal was given. At that time ex cursion boats and steam yachts had gathered about the line, making a gala-day picture. When the gun was given to start at 10:40 the Thistle was nearer the line and went away nearly four lengths ahead of the Volunteer. The time of the start was: Thistle, 10:40:21; Volunteer, 10:40:50% They went over the starboard tack and the Volunteer began at once to out-point and out-foot her opponent. The course was north-northeast for twenty miles to windward and return before the wind. The weathering qualities of the yachts were seen at once. The Volunteer outseen at once. The volunteer outpointed the cutter by nearly two points and won the race by the masterly manner in which she went to windward. The first tack of seven miles virtually decided the race, the Volunteer beating to the windward of the Thistle in a way that satisfied all the spectators who knew anything about it that the tors who knew anything about it that the American boat would win. The Volunteer not only out-pointed her rival but out-feeted her as well. Tack after tack showed that the sloop was beating the cutter. There could be no mistake about it. The wind at could be no mistake about it. The wind at the start was blowing about twenty miles an hour. It maintained that velocity all the way out except during a period perhaps of twenty minutes, when it let down considerably, during which time the Thistle people claimed they were becalmed. Really the Volunteer was equally afflicted. The yachts rounded the outer mark: Volunteer, 2:26:40; Thistle, 2:41. Both yachts set the spinnaker coming homeward. The Volunteer had a lead of fully two and one-half minutes when the Thistle ward. The Volunteer had a lead of fully two and one-half minutes when the Thistie rounded. The Thistie was the first to take in her spinnaker, but the Volunteer followed suit immediately. On the run home the wind let up again, but the American sloop crossed the line a winner by 11 minutes 48% seconds. The correct clapsed time was: Volunteer, 5:42:564; Thistie, 5:54:45. In windward work the Volunteer beat the Thistie 14 minutes and 49% seconds. On the run before the wind the Thistie beat the Volunteer 2 minutes and 54% seconds.

wind the Thistle beat the Volunteer 2 minutes and 54½ seconds.

After the race Mr. Bell admitted that the Volunteer, with her centerboard, had fairly beaten the Thistle in thrashing to windward. He Insisted, however, that the course laid out by the Americas cup committee were unfair. He fully expected to win the triangular or third race, because he had no doubt the Thistle could easily beat the sloop in running and reaching. Mr. Bell added that the Thistle was for sale for $50,000 and if a purse were offered for ing. Mr. Bell added that the Thistle was for sale for $50,000 and if a purse were offered for another race she would be entered. Designer Watson and Captain Barr both admitted that the Thistle was beaten in windward work and that the centerboard had largely helped to do it.

How the News Was Received On the

Other Side. [Copyright 1887 by James Gordon Bennett.] LONDON, Sept. 30 .- New York Herald Cable-"pecial to the BEE. |-So strong was the excitement on this side about the race that even the English weather sympathized. All day there were mists, light fogs, rain and a south wind of twenty miles' velocity. 'The Commercial cable furnished the exchange telegraph proprietors' ticker with constant details. The brokers forsook the rising Mexican bonds, sporting men dropped Rous' memorial stakes from their attention and Bow street loungers betook themselves to the office of the Globe, the Sporting Life and the Sportsman, where bulletins from Commercial cable were played. Spectators on each side the Atlantic endured the dampness especially here when the Thistle pricked them with bad news. At 9 o'clock the final result came. It seemed to permeate the city. At once, special ed. Cons of the Globe, the Herald's near neighbor on the Strand, were cried at the door of all the clubs and theaters Inasmuch as the victory of the Volunteer was expected little chagrin was shown but the defeat formed a top's for regretful gossip. About the same time the clouds disappeared, the rain ceased and the moon came out in full splendor.

LONDON, Oct. 1 .- | New York Herald Cable-Special to the BEE. |-Thus the Telegram begins an editorial dead march on the event: "We are whipped. The Volunteer has for the second time beaten the Thistle and that cup, which it was the hope and prayer of every amphibious Briton to recover from the Americans must now remain with them. How long the trophy will be proudly retained there, none can tell. We can hardly expect to send over a stouter or more promising challenger than the Scotch cutter and she has been handsomely defeated in the first two courses out of three," The paper concludes a very long comment thus: "She is defeated but not disgraced. Indeed we should like nothing better than to see her repeat the challenge next year. For with steadier weather we believe she might redeem the honor of our yachting flags and bring the coveted cup away from Sandy

The Chronicle regards the defeat as conclusive, but drops this anchoring comfort: "It may be that the captain of the Volunteer was able, for obvious reasons, to steer a truer course in his own waters, but we must accept the defeat with good grace." The Sportsman prints an excellent map and in the course of an article says: "A defeat of the most decisive character was inflicted upon the Thistle and it has now been pretty clearly demonstrated that the type of yachts built on the American side are much swifter than those of Great Britain." The Dally News concludes a generous article with these sentences: "We adhere to our opinion that England has to learn a lesson from America in this branch of ship building and we had better set about learning it at once. The moral of our nve and thirty years of fairly continuous disastrous defeats ought not longer to be ignored."

The Times alone shows some ill humor and observes: "It is desirable for the interests of yachtsmen in both countries that the cup should occasionally change hands and it would certainly be a greater triumph for American yachtsmen to win it in English waters than to retain it in their own."

The Standard shows a little ginger also and concludes: "The Volunteer has beaten the Thistle fairly and squarely on the latter's merits as she was when she sailed and would probably continues to do so. But that the result at all represents the Thistle's real form we may be permitted to doubt, although at present in the dark as to the cause of her surprising falling off from what she has shown herself capable of performing."

Kansas City 10, Omata 2. The Omaha base ball club for 1887 is dead, and in its dying throes yesterday afternoon the fact that the end was near was apparent to all who were present. It was, considering its record, highly proper that the club should be disastrously defeated in its closing game, and the players seemed to realize it and acted accordingly. The Kansas City men, on the other hand, played an excellent game and won easily, as the appended score will show. Only seven innings were played, out there was no kicking by spectators because the the game was not completed. Everybody seemed satisfied that they had seen enough, and the death-bed scenes were not heartrending. The following is the score:

VANDERVOORT SAT UPON HARD

Judge Rea, of Minnesota, Elected Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army-Doings of the Eacampment.

He Monkeyed With the Buzz-Saw. Sr. Louis, Sept. 30.-The evacuation of this city by the rank and file of the Grand Army began last night and to-day the tented fields are deserted with the exception of a few men here and there. The encampment will close to-night with a grand camp fire and fireworks and a banquet to the dele

At a meeting of the encampment this morning the report of the inspector general was adopted with slight amendment.

The committee on resolutions reported back the resolutions offered by Vandervoort in regard to the veto of the dependent pen-sion bill, and the pension to Mrs. Logan, recommending the adoption of that part referring to Mrs. Logan's pension and the rejection of the balance.

That portion of Vandervoort's resolution which was reported adversely upon is in three sections, which state in substance that "While no body of citizens can have a sore exalted respect for the office of president of the United States than we, yet this does not obscure our perception to blame the unworthy acts of the incumbent of that high position or deprive us of the right of criticism. While we recognize that disapproval of any measure is his constitutional prerogative, we cannot feel that this involves also the privilege of going beyond the bounds of that power to officially insult or slander broken-down and needy men to whom the nation owes everything." The last resolution states at length that in vetoing the dependent pension bill, "which was the least measure of justice that could have been asked, and did not represent a have been asked, and did not represent a lith of what is due those gallant men," the president has violated a piedge made to the soldiers when they flocked to the ald of the country at the time of her greatest peril, has thwarted the express will of a grateful people and inflicted irreparable cruelty upon those who should be the subjects of the tenderest consideration and the bill would have rescued thousands of deserving soldiers from the cold charity of almshouses."

thousands of deserving soldiers from the cold charity of almshouses."

After the report of the committee was made, Vandervoort opened the debate on the matter, claiming that the Grand Army should have the courage of its convictions and vote as they fell on this question.

Grosvenor, of Ohio, spoke in favor of the report and said he had as much feeling upon the pension question as any other man, but he stood as a representative of a body of men greater than the president of the United States, greater than the congress of the United States and more dignified in their utterances than the president fied in their utterances than the president had shown himself to be. He said the ques-tion was more important than any other that had been submitted; that the question was what the encampment ought to do—whether what the encampled of the total varieties or state its position in a dignified manner, as though there never had been a president of the United States. The Grand Army dent of the United States. The Grand Army should stand as a mountain stands upon the plains, regardless of the coyotes at the foot of it, proclaiming in majestic-words that it was in favor of this pension legislation and opposed to every attack upon the interests of soldiers.

After some further debate Vandervoort's amendment was overwhelmingly defeated and the report of the committee adopted by a vote of 318 to 173.

THE UTE OUTBREAK. General Crook Lays the Whole Blame

On the Whites. WASHINGTON, Sept. 30 .- The war department has received General Crook's report of the recent Ute Indian trouble in Colorado. It is very lengthy and substantially shows that the trouble was precipitated altogether by the whites. The Indians were not by the whites. The Indians were not guilty of horse stealing and had settled their dispute with the horse traders. Nevertheless warrants were issued and attempts made to serve them without explanation. They were fired on without cause and afterwards, when they agreed to go to the reservation, the sheriff did not keep the agreement, but proceeded after them with the militia and deputies. Another conflict was precipitated, in which two whites were killed and several wounded. One Indian was killed and five fatally wounded. All that prevented a serious outbreak was the arrival of Lieutenant Burnett, of the army, who succeeded in inducing the Indians to go to their reservation, leaving behind all their property. From the outset, with but one slight interruption, the Indians were pursued incessantly, and at first Colorow had no desire to right, and made use of his weapons in self-defense only. to fight, and made use of his weapons in self Longs To Be a Congressman Again. WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—[Special Telegram to the BEE.]—There are two men polding prominent official positions here who are desirious of changing their surroundin s. These are Inter-State Commissioner Morrison and Civil Service Commissioner Oberly. Mr. Morrison is thoroughly tired of office life. He is anxious to again enter politics and to serve his district as its representative in congress if he cannot secure the higher honor of election to the United States senate. Mr. Morrison's friends here asaert positively that it is the purpose of that gentleman to resign and to stand as candidate for congress next year Upon Mr. Morrison's retirement, Mr. Oberly Upon Mr. Morrison's retirement, Mr. Oberly will attempt to bring influences to bear upon the president to give him the place. Mr. Oberly is dissatisfied with his place on the civil service commission, principally because he finds great difficulty in getting along with his colleague, Mr. Edgerton. The Indiana member of the board is antagonistic to the gentleman almost every time the commission is called upon to board is antagonistic to the gentleman almost every time the commission is called upon to settle knotty questions. Mr. Lyman and Mr. Oberly manage to pull in double harness together very comfortably, but Mr. Oberly makes no secret of his inability to find points upon which he can agree with Mr. Edgerton. This is one of the reasons upon which he desires promotion to the position occupied by Mr. Morrison. But the principal reason is the fact that while his salary at present is only $3,500 a year, the salary of the inter-state commerce commission is $7.500. Mr. Oberly commerce commission is $7.500. Mr. Oberly has a very large family and is obliged to live among expensive surroundings, and for these reasons finds difficulty in bringing up his reasons must difficulty in bringing up his children upon the income which he receives from the government. It is said that his letter to the Illinois democratic club last evening was brought about through his de-sire to stand well with the civil service reformers and in the hope of getting more favor with the president. Whether this is true or not it is certain that he will do all in his power to secure the coveted position of inter-state commerce commissioner in the event of the resignation of Mr. Morrison

Trunk Burglars.

Continues, Neb., Sept. 30,-[Special to the Bre.]-A most during attempt at burglary was committed last night at the opera house. The Potter sisters gave an entertainment and during the night some person forced an entrance under the stage from the coal shute on the east side of the building. Removing one of the traps on the stage floot and after beating up the iron clasps and locks of the trunks containing the costume; and jewels belonging to the Potter sisters, and being unable to get it upon, they, took two large plumes and some dresses the ladies left hanging in the dressing room in readiness for their entertainment to-night. The dresses and plumes were found secreted under the platform at the east door of the opera house. Had the burglars succeeded in opening the trunks they would have made a big haul. It contained some very magnificent scostumes that cost $1,000 and about $2,000 worth of jeweiry. Early in the evening, while the two ladies were preparing for the stage, some miscreant threw a brick through the window, barely missing one of the sisters and making an indentation on the opposite side of the wall.
