The Installment Plan.

J. Hannafer, an employe of a furniture installment firm, was up before the police court yesterday charged with assaulting a woman, Mrs. Henry Stager, of 1932 South Seventeenth street. City Attorney Davis was most vehement and indignant in stating the case to the court, alleging that Hannafer was a brute and a ruffian, and that he meant to prosecute him to the utmost measure of the law. He said that Mrs. Stager was one of those poor women who had bought some furniture on the installment plan, but being unable to make the final payment on time, was called upon by Hannafer for the purpose of forcing a settlement or removing the furniture. It was hard for the woman to give up her hard earned money for nothing, and she begged and pleaded for an extension of time, but without avail. Then she, in her frantic anxiety, remonstrated and refused to allow Hannafer to remove the articles. This provoked the man, and he knocked her down. This, however, Hannafer denies, but the case has an ugly look and the woman's story is probably the cor-rect one. He was held for further hear-

Musicians Overturned.

Yesterday morning while half a dozen musicians of the Omaha Musical orchestra were returning from a party on the Military road at which they had played Sunday night, the wagon in which they were riding was overturned at the corner of Cuming and Fifteenth streets by the runaway team, and the whole party thrown heavily to the pavement. Nearly all the players were bruised, and the bass-viol and bass drum were badly demoralized.

Managerial Prognostications.

E. J. Sackett, of the amusement firm of Sackett & Wiggins, was in town Saturday and Sunday looking out for an opening in this city. The firm has already secured the People's theater, which they are holding idle lest it should be rented by some other firm, it desires to establish a museum in connection with the theatre and has been in hopes of securing one of the stores on the ground floor west of the theatre entrance for the purpose. Up to the present, however, they have not been able to secure the rental of the place. Mr. Sackett said he was anxious to secure the management of the Grand opera house, and if he could he would change the place in some respects. The officers of the association, however, as yet, know nothing of his aspirations in that direction. It is quite likely that if Mr. Crawford retires from the management, which, it seems, the directors have not yet considered, that Mr. I. W. Miner of this city, will be his successor.

Captain C. B. Murphy, of Arapahoe, Neb., who has been visiting his brother, P. B. Murphy, returned home last evening. The captain is a veteran of the rebellion, having served in the Seventh Iowa cavalry, T. J. Potter, present general manager of the Union Pacific, having been his first lieutenant. Cap-tain Murphy laid out the town of Arapahoe, built the first therein, and has now the satisfaction of seeing a thriving town there of 2,000.

Grading Damages.

Arthur Wakeley leaves to-day for Lincoln to make an argument in the case of Mrs. C. S. Shaller, vs the city, for damages from grading California and Twenty-fourth streets, opposite her property. The question at issue is whether the advantage resulting from the cutting of the street can be considered as an off-set to the expense to be borne by Mrs. Shaller in lowering her house to the grade. This is the first case of the kind which has come up for argument before the supreme court

An Old Timer.

The firm claims, however, that
