investor in this improvement whose total cost it is rumored will not fall short of $150,-000. The building which is now going up is situated directly opposite the handsome Masonic block on the corners of Court and Missonic block on the corners of Court and Sixth streets and occupies a ground area of 140x125 feet or nearly 18,000 square feet on the ground floor. It is to be built of brick and stone, four stories in height, with the theater isolated by areas and solid fire walls from the hotel and each structure finished with all the improvements and conveniences of modern architecture. The hotel will conain a hundred rooms, single and en s passenger elevator, gas and water, while the opera house, with five exits, will seat nearly as large an audience as Boyd's. Every detail of the handsome building Every detail of the handsome building is worked out with a completeness and disre-gard of cheap economy which would do credit to such a structure in Omaha and Chicrago. It will be by far the handsomest build-ing in Beatrice and one of the most notice-able in the state.

There has been no boom, no inflation of prices, no platting of the country for miles around into twenty-two foot lots, no swapping of contracts and heavy pur-chases on ontions. On the contrary the chases on options. On the contrary the greater part of the real estate transactions during the season have represented the needs of home builders, the wants of merchants seeking larger stores and the sound judgment of capitalists investing their means for permanent returns on their money. The fact is noted that Beatrice real estate is proportionately lower than that of any of her rivals, while the beauty of the city and its rapid rate of progress city and its rapid rate of progress in all that goes to make property permanently valuable, is greater. There will be a very large amount of building in the spring and every development present and prospective assures a growth in 1888 greater and better than ever before. The strongest evidence of the solidity of the Queen City on the Blue is found in the faith of its local capitalists in Beatrice's future. It is a faith which has proved itself by works. For its size Beatrice is second to no com-munity in the state for wealth. It draws from a rich and long-settled farming country, dotted over with thriving towns and pro perous villages. Resident men of means lik J. B. Weston, Senator Paddock, H. M. Parker, the Cooks, the Smiths, the Kil-patricks and others have contributed largely and are contributing largely to build up the fortunes of the city and to advance its industrial interests. Nature has made it wonder fully attractive. Its enterprising citizenry have made it prosperous and are working steadily and persistently to lay its foundations still deeper and broader and to add to the superstructute of a thriving, a busy and a rapidly-growing metropolis.

Five-Year Old McCook.

McCook, Neb., Oct. 22 .-- [Correspondence of the BEE.]-The metropolis of the valley and the coming fourth city in the state keeps right up with the procession and is daily making improvements. It has outgrown its swaddling clothes, and although only a four-year old, is a city of 3,000 people, well supplied with railroad facilities, churches of all denominations, and is now basking in the sunshine of a monster prospective boom in the spring. We have never indulged in any of these expensive articles, but the growth has been steady and substantial, until now McCook has gained a size when she can hold up and push along one of these booms. This is one of the few fortunate towns in this state where the money seems to be plenty, owing undoubtedly to the immense pay-roll of the B. & M. road, which this month reached within a few hundred dollars of $30,000. This is about the regular stipend the road distributes every month at this point, which makes trade for the merchant good and enables him to ulways keep new and choice goods, and a general air of prosperity seems to hover over us, making McCook a much favored

Hun-dreds of business houses and residences have been erected and hundreds more are con-tracted for. The sale of the trans-missouri packing-house, which was announced a few days ago, and the reorganization of the company with largely increased capital, will make this house a greater thing for Nebraska City than it has ever been. The purchaser is Charles L. Hutchinson, president of the Corn Exchange bank of Chicago, a million-aire and experionced in the packing business. The amount paid is not authoratively stated, but is said to be between $150,000 and $175,000. The capital stock of the new company is $250,000, an increase over the old of $150,000. The house is one of the largest and most per-fectly arranged of any in the west. It will be known in the future as the C. L. Hutchin-son Packing & Provision company. The Electric Light company will place their new dynamo in position this week and will then supply about one hundred addi-tional lights in the city. Ellis, Reynolds & Sprecker, who have the contract for building the large addition to the institute for the blind, are pushing the work as fast as their limited number of workmen can do it. The scarcity of brick-layers has put them slightly behind in work. and for this reason they secured an extension and for this reason they secured an extension of time on their contract for the erection of the home for the feeble minded at Beatrice, and will not begin on that institution before spring. This firm has become so favorably impressed with the future great of Nebraska impressed with the future great of Neoraska City that they have decided to resuove their business permanently to this city, and sev-eral members of the firm have invested largely in Nebraska City real estate. The B. & M. promises two passenger trains daily over the Beatrice branch to this city by spring, or by the time their western ex-tension from Holyoke to Cheyenne is completed. It is believed, and stated on good au-thority, that this branch will be used then until their main line is extended from DeWitt to this city by way of Sterling, by which time the bridge at this point across the river will be completed. After the completion of this line it is stated the old branch along the river from this city to Nemaha City, which has never been a paying one, will be entirely abandoned. The carrying out of these plans is another proof of the good intentions of the B. & M. towards Nebraska City, which is to make this their main Missouri river point.

A Young Bride's Suicide.

McCoox, Neb., Oct. 23.-[Special Telegram to the BEE.]-Last night Mrs. Fannie Daly, a bride of three weeks, ended her life because she believed that her husband had ceased to love her. The deed was committed with a 38-calibre revolver, the ball entering the right temple and passing downward, lodging in the check bone. Before doing the deed she addressed a letter to her husband, also leaving the address of her parents. They had had a slight misunderstanding early in the evening, and he had made some remark that she took exceptions to, and this proba-bly caused the deed. The husband is a fire-man on the B. & M. and stands high with his equaintances. He is fairly prostrated over pass to locate his bearings any year, but this the affair. Anamosa Railroad Prospects ANAMOSA, Ia., Oct. 22.-[Correspondence to the BER 1-. Scramble. Perry Ackers' Crime.

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 21.- [Special Tele-gram to the BEE.]-Additional details of the shocking murder and suicide at Maxwell Story county, last night are reported to-day. About 5 o'clock Perry Ackers, who is described as a rather dissipated and shiftless man about town, went into the hardware store of Jeff Miller and asked him to lend him a revolver, saying he wanted to shoot a dog with it. Miller had no suspicion of anything wrong and gave Ackers a 32-calibre re volver which the latter loaded and put in his pocket. He then walked across the street to the office of T. B. Schmetzer, justice of the peace. He found Mr. Schmetzer at his desk writing and his abrupt salutation was,

"Are you ready to take your medicine?" Mr. Schmetzer hardly knew what to reply but supposing him to be joking paid little attention to his remark and kept on writing. Ackers thereupon drew his revolver and fired at him at short range The ball struck his left lower jaw bone and glancing off struck the top of the left shoulder passing through and coming out on top of the left shoulder blade, making a very painful but probably not fatal wound. Ackers then passed out through the rear end of the building and down the alley to the office of Mayor French. The mayor was sitting in his office at the right of the door which Ackers en tered and closed behind him. Then without a word, so far as is known, the murderer drew his revolver and placing it close against Mr. French's face pulled the trigger. The bullet entered the left cheek and went crashing up in the direction of the brain producing ing up in the direction of the brain producing death within an hour. Leaving his second victim, Ackers proceeded up Front street to the center of the town where he met several citizens to whom he spoke of the difficulties he had had with them, saying he was en-gaged in settling up old scores and getting even with them. They knew nothing of the tragedies he had just left behind and sup-posed he was jesting. So when he placed the revolver against his own head and said: "Shall I let her go!" Some one in the crowd replied.

prowd replied. "Yes, you better kill yourself." He immediately ran across the street and said to the postmaster,

"Goodbyc, I am going to hell," and passed down the street through the passage between Dickens and Hill's store and up the steps to the entrance of the Odd Fellows hall. Here he put the revolver against his own head and and the blocked over the terrible affair as greatly shocked over the terrible affair as Mayor French was one of the prominent business men of the place, universally re-spected and loved. Mr. Schmetzer is also a leading citizen of high character and reputa-tion. No one seems to be able to assign a reason for Acker's crimes, though it is sur-mised that he had, at some time, been brought to discipline for his wickedness by the victims of his bullets. He has borne a bad name in town for a long time though no one dreamed that he was desperate enough to commit murder. He seems to have wanted to end his own wretched existence and do it n as sensational a manner as possible by paying off old grudges beforehand. A Great Political Acrobat.

DES MOINES, In., Oct. 23. - [Special to the BEE.]-The uncertain and none the less interesting element in Iowa politics this year is General Weaver, late republican late greenbacker, late democrat, late laboring man, fate almost anything that can catch votes. There seems to be more doubt this year than usual as to where he stands. It takes more than an ordinary political com-pretty determined woman suffragists in this locality, and they have been talking so much about their right to vote, that they have really come to think, that they have the right unquest.oned and unhampered. The consti-tution of the state, expressly limits suffrage to male citizens, and until the women can overcome that objection they will have an in-superable obstacle in their path to en-franchisement. But some of them have an idea that that qualification has been stricken cut, and so claim the right to register, the idea that that qualification has been stricken out, and so claim the right to register, the same as the men. But they also overlooked a qualification in the registration law, which says that the clerks shall register every male citizen who applies and proves himself a qualified voter, &c. So that the horrid male again stands in the way of woman's liberty. The two or three women who did register perhaps enjoy the distinction they are receiv-ing, but a good many other women wouldn't. It is safe to say, that they won't come any nearer voting although they are registered than they have ever been before. A TRIO OF PROMINENT IOWANS. A TRIO OF PROMINENT IOWANS.

The recent prominence of Hon. John A. Kasson as president of the constitutional cen-Kasson as president of the constitutional cen-tennial commission, calls attention again to the fact that Des Moines has been the start-ing point for three gentlemen who have each attained great distinction in their several lines of work. About thirty years ago there were three young men living in this city who even then were giving indications of future greatness. One was "Hub" Hoxie, another Deacon S. V. White and the third Mr. Kas-son. The latter came here as young lawyer son. The latter came here as a young lawyer about 1857 and rapidly came to the front, so that in 1860 he was a delegate to the conven-tion that nominated Abraham Lincoln for president. His political career began soon after he became first assistant postmaster general under Lincoln, wassent to England to assist in nucleing important postal arrange-ments with that country, since then has been minister to Austria, and to Germany, and served for several terms in congress, where he was recognized as one of the republican leaders, and, in some respects, the leader of the house. "Hub" Hoxie, who was brought up on a farm a few miles out of this city, afterwards became clerk of the courts here and then United States marshal, and then went into the railroad business, ending his career as general manager of the Missouri Pacific and the right hand man in the direction of Gould's immense railway system. Deacon White also came from Des Moines, as a young lawyer fresh from college. He practiced law a few years, but the business went too slow for him and he removed to New York, where he entered Wall street and became one of its heavy financiers. He is also widely known as the intimate friend and supporter of Henry Ward Beecher. He has lately equired a taste for politics, and is gratifying it now by serving a term in congress from one of the Brooklyn districts. Three men of unusual prominence in widely different fields were all plain every-day sort of young fel-lows here in Des Moines thirty years ago. To have developed three such men is a pretty good record for our town-even if it had done nothing else worthy of mention

He claims that last evening he went to the brewery to see one of the men and was met by the foreman, who told the man Mr. Grosser called upon that if he had anything to do with the latter he (the workman) would lose his position; and further, that when the day of election came the men of the brewery would find their tickets in the office. OBJECTIONS TO CHAMBERLAIN. A Statement That This Country Re-

Tired of Single Life.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.- [Special Telegram to the BEE.]-It is learned upon undeniable authority that the marriage of Secretary Bayard and Miss Sophia Markoe will take place early in the winter. They have constantly been seen during the last few weeks driving together, and at a small dinner given on Thursday by Secretary and Mrs. Endicott to Lord and Lady Herschell Miss Markoe was present with Secretary Bayard. Miss Markoe is a handsome woman about fifty years of age, and is regarded as the best amateur pianist in Washington. She has been a clerk in the state department for many years. She belongs to the well known Merkoe family of Philadelphia.

Not For Joseph.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.- [Special Telegram to the BEE.]-Some days ago it was reported from London that the American government had intimated to the British authorities that Mr. Joseph Chamberlain would be a very undesirable man to represent England upon the fisheries commission which is shortly to meet here. Mr. West, the British minister here, denied all knowledge of any such action on the part of the United States and the state department officials pronounced the story without foundation. It is reported today that it was not the government which objected to Mr. Chamberlain, but some of the best friends of Ireland, who are anxious to see the fisheries question settled amicably by the commission. It is said that these gentlemen communicated with friends in England their views, and that it was through these friends that the matter was called to the attention of the British authorities. There is no doubt, however, that the state department, in common with the rest of the country, thinks that Mr. Chamberiain may prove the Jonah of the commission, and it is said on reliable authority that Mr. Bayard has seriously considered the advisability of asking the substitution of some less pro nounced hater of Ireland than "Brummager Joe." It is believed that the subject will be brought to the attention of the cabinet at th first meeting this week, and if the presiden thinks with the secretary of state that the presence of Chamberlain on the commission will jeopardize the chances of the ratification of any treaty which may be negotiated, it is quite likely that Minister Phelps will receive instructions by cable to ask that another and less objectionable diplomat be selected. In September the state department was in formed that Mr. Chamberlain would start for America some time during the last week in October. Since then nothing has been heard of his proposed visit and this fact leads to the belief that the United States may be relieved of the necessity of asking for a substitute for him. It is thought that the department would have been notified if he is to sail this week. The Washington Post which assumes to be the organ of the admin tration, has a column leader to-day devoted to-the political career of Mr. Chamberlain. It closed significantly as follows: "All the same the tory ministry sent him to America to aid in the settlement of the fisheries contention. Recent events at home have not tention. WASHBURNE A. STOWE. His Remains Laid at Rest With Masonic Ceremonies.

The funeral of the late Washburne

A. Stowe took place yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the late residence of the deceased, southeast corner of Twenty-ninth and Charles streets. The remains lay in a flower-covered casket in the front parlor, and were surrounded by a number of friends during the religious services which were according to the ritual of the Episcopalian church and conducted by the Rev. Mr. Pearson, pastor of St. John's church, of which the deceased was a member. They looked like those of a gentleman enjoying a profound but pleasant sleep, the features displaying the characteris-tics of intelligence and determination which had distinguished the deceased in life. The remains were interred in Prospect Hill cemetery, where they were laid beside those of his wife, who died about one year ago. The cartege was pro-ceded by Mount Calvary commandery, consisting of thirty mounted knights, and Capital, Covert and St. John's lodges. Beside the hearse walked the pall bearers, Judges Wakely, Groff, Savage and Churchill representing the bar, and Messrs. Auchmoedy, Hartman, Kennedy, White and Gibson, the Masonic order. Following the hearse were several carriages containing the three orphans of the deceased and a number of the immediate relatives of both Mr. and Mrs. Stow. HE WAS AN ADVENTURER. Herbert Lewis Works a Whole Family and Many Business Men.

A young man who has been known to many people in this city as Herbert Lewis, has just created quite a little commotion in both society and business circles here. He arrived in Omaha but a few months ago, and it did not take him long to get well acquainted. His neat appearance and winning ways made him quite popular. He claimed to have came from Bradford, Eng. Among the acquaintances that he formed were that of two brothers, Harry and Julius Rosenburg. Through them he was introduced to a well known young lady residing on North Twentyfirst street. Each became quite fascinated with the other and an engagement followed. Last Friday evening was set as the night for the nuptial event, but when the hour arrived Lewis was missing. The announcement was a startling one and an investigation followed, which proved that he was an adventurer and a thief. The result of the investigation showed that Lewis had passed worthless checks as follows on the Commercial national bank; J. Rosenburg, $100; Albert Meinberg, $10; S. Bank, $125; E. Levy, $25; Cahn Bros., $10. Henry Rosenburg also lost a gold and a silver watch, both valued at $140. J. Rosenburg also lost a gold watch valued at $100, and the young lady whom Lewas was engaged to and her sister are each minus a diamond wedding ring which he took from them ostensibly for the purpose of having their initials engraved on the bands. It is almost needless to say that Lewis has skipped, and it is thought that many more of his doings will come to light before long.

Subterranean Sweat-Boxes.

Salt Lake Tribune: A sensation was created at the penitentiary yesterday, when, in excavating for foundations for the new cell building, a heavy two-foot wall running east and west was encountered, a foot or so beneath the surface. Further excavating disclosed five un derground cells branching off toward the south. These were two and a half feet wide, six feet long and three feet high inside, with two-foot walls, cov-ered with a hard plaster cement. The doors were gone, but the hanging-irons remained, and a heavy flagging formed the roofs. How far these cells continue east is not known, but they go beyond the excavation. Mr. Monheim thinks these subterranean sweat-boxes were approached by dug-out paths something like those to underground ice-houses and refrigerators. Whether the doors were of open grating or more or less closed could not be ascertained. The supervising architect believes that could these gloomy receptacles speak they would tell a tale of horrible suf-These cells, no doubt, fering. constituted a permanent feat-ure of "The Buffetings of Satan." Mr. Monheim believes that could the prison yard be dug up, a large quantity of human bones would be discoved. He says a few aged apostates may be living who can explain the reason of these cells, but that the church authorities who know will never open their mouths except to declare all ignorance of what old Rockwell wanted with such things.

Beware of Scrofula

Scrofula is probably more general than any other disease. It is insidious in character, and manifests itself in running sores, pustular eruptions, boils, swellings, enlarged joints, abscesses, sore eyes, etc. Hood's Sarsaparilla els all trace of sere leaving it pure, enriched, and healthy. "I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and over a year had two running sores on my neck. Took five bottles Hood's Sarsaparilla, and am cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass. C. A. been located in this city, but as yet the com-pany has not made it manifest. This is a subject that every city and hamlet in the state discusses and claims the shops for their respective places, but there is no doubt in the minds of these who claim to be on the inside that the shops are coming here, basing their belief on the fact that the company owns a large tract of land here now, is buying up all it can get through its agents, has here a fine $60,000 system of waterworks, small repair shops, and that when its western roads are completed McCook will be in the center of the vast territory occupied by the great Bur-lington system. As a result of this property in the city brings a stiff price and is in great demand, and our people are getting ready to catch on to the boom in its infancy. in the spring and give it an impetus that will perceptible all over the west. Politics is the all-absorbing question in McCook and Red Willow county at the pre bent time, and as there are three tickets in the field, all with fighting chances, the race is being watched with a great deal of interest as to what the final outcome will be. The republican ticket undoubtedly has the inside rack, although many concede that part of he democratic ticket will be elected. There is a large independent republican vote in this city and county, which for some reason does not take very kindly to the whole ticket, and they are inclined to stray off and affiliate either with the democratic or union labor party. This latter organization has a strong ticket in the field and is making a hard fight. McCook possesses a young Napoleon in finances. It is a young boy named Moses Dekir, who for the past month has been enployed in the city bakery on a salary of $2 per week. In that time he succeeded on his limited salary in purchasing a $20 suit of clothes, a $10 Saratega trunk, and a bank account amounting to $41. The boy was touching the till to hard and often, and the proprietor dropped onto the game and succeeded in getting back the bank account.

most extensive and elaborate one. Nebraska City is the best and most favor-ably advertised city in the state, aside from Omaha. A Scrap in the Territory.

TALEQUAR, I. T., Oct. 23.- [Special Telegram to the BRE.] -- A tragedy occurred here yesterday afternoon. For some time past the political factions at the seat of the territorial government have been at war. Colonel Boudinot, who is well known in Washington, s at the head of one party and Editor Strong is at the head of one party and Eastor Strong of the Telegraph, championed the other side. Mr. Stone recently published some severe articles on the Boustinot element and the af-fair culminated to day when young Boudinot entered Stone's office and shot him through the head, killing him instantly.

It is said the girl's body is a mass of bruises. The punishment is said to have been inflicted because she fuiled to get her lessons. Legal action will be taken.

Mother and Son Fatally Hurt.

PALMARA, Neb., Oct. 23.-[Special Telegram to the BEE.]-At the close of services at the Methodist church this morning Mrs. George Smith and her little boy, three years old, were thrown from a wagon by the sudden starting of a tram. The boy died in an hour. The mother is very ill and her recovery is doubtful.

CENTRAL CITY, Neb., Oct. 23 .- [Special Felegram to the BEE]-Two children of Thomas Hall, living at this place, were playing with matches yesterday and one of them, a little girl, dropped a burning match into a basket where a baby was laying, and the clothing caught fire. The infant was so badly burned that it died last night.

A Jealous Wife Attempts Suicide.

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., Oct. 23.-[Special Telegram to the BEE |-- Mrs. Herman Bettger, wife of a blacksmith, tried to commit suicide last night with chloroform because her husband would speak to other women. She may recover, though her husband is in a critical condition.

Snow at Fremont.

FREMONT, Neb., Oct. 23 -[Special to the Bas.]-The first snow of the season fell here this morning, beginning shortly before daylight and continuing three or four hours in a light flurry, the snow melting as soon as striking the ground. with patronage-and when the greenbackers year he is harder to find than usual. As the campaign draws to a close, however, public opinion seems to be settling down to an understanding that he is supporting in the main, the union labor party. It is no doubt a trial for him to do so, but being driven to it by force of circumstances he has no choice. He was a good democrat last year, advocating fusion and supporting the democratic ticket. This year he attempted to cut a figure in the democratic state convention, and was emphatically snubbed. Then to show his power he tried to get control of the remnant of the old greenback party which had united with the union labor party, but he was beaten here by one of his former lieutenants. This left him without a party unless he chose to come in and take a back seat. He wasn't ready to do that, and so left the state, to lecture through the east for several weeks. Now the "Wandering Jew" has returned, and being compelled to choose where he will go, has decided to support the union labor state ticket. If that party can roll up a pretty large vote this year, it will give him a club with which to bring the democratic party to terms next year. His term as congressman expires then, and he wants to be renominated. But th democrats are already threatening him with disaster if he goes back on them this year. So that he is between the traditional devil and the deep sea. For a man who has been a candidate for president of the United States to go around making speeches and passing the hat for a collection afterwards might look a little humiliating to some men, but General Weaver manages to do it, with a good deal of equanimity. SALOON STATISTICS.

Some months ago Governor Larrabee sent to all the sheriffs of the state asking them to report the number of open saloons if any existing in their counties. He has had replies from nearly all. Twelve sheriffs report the presence of saloons as follows: Allamakee 2, Carroll 27, Chickasaw 8, Des Moines 80, Cedar 3, Jackson 30, Lee 75, Palo Alto 6, Pottawatomie 35, Sioux 1, Wapello 40 and Winneshiek 18, making a total of 325. In two or three counties the sheriffs claim that they don't know, while in as many more they make no report. But eighty-two sheriff report not a single open saloon in their re spective counties. As there were about 4,000 saloons in the state before the prohibi-tory law went into effect, it seems to have accomplished a good deal to have reduced the number to 325. Even the anti-prohibitionists of this city, who are in the republican bolt, admit that prohibition in the rural portions of the state is doing much good, and is quite affectual, though they claim that it cannot be enforced in the large towns. WANT TO RETAIN THE CARLOAD RATE.

WANT TO RETAIN THE CARDOAD BATE. The Iowa jobbers and manufacturers are making a stubborn fight for the retention of the carload rate. It means a life and death struggle with them, for if the carload rate is to be abelished, and the jobbers and manufacturers get no better rates than the retail dealer, then the sooner lowa devotes all of its attentions to agricultural pursuits the better. There is no use in trying to build up obbing and manufacturing cities if this new policy of rates is to be maintained. The lowa men took a leading part at the conference with the inter-state commerce commission at Minneapolis a few days ago, and they are getting ready to take an active part in the meeting at Washington November 1. Govcertor Larrabee appreciates the importance to Iowa interests of this meeting so much that he has officially requested the board of railway commissioners to attend and repre-sent the Iowa side of the case.

A PUBSULT FOR POSTOFFICES. The spoilsmen hunting for postoffices in lowa haven't much reason to complain, for they have been given every office in the state but eight. Out of the thousands of postoffices in Iowa, all but eight have changed post masters since the democratic party came into power. For a civil service reform president who believes that public office is a public trust, Mr. Cleveland has done pretty well. But still the democrats aren't happy. The trouble in this state has been that there were two parties, in some localities, to be satisfied

An Omaha Press Club.

Yesterday afternoon there was a large meeting of newspaper men at the Barker hotel to take action with regard to the formation of a press club in this city. Every gentleman present gave expression to hearty sympathy with the movement, and pledged himself to work earnestly for the success of the undertaking. Mr. Gregory, of the Re-publican, and Mr. Snyder, of the Excelsior, acted as chairman and secretary, respectively, of the meeting, and a committee, consisting of Messrs. O'Brien, Tanner, Cochran, Mainwaring, Pomeroy and Snyder, wits appointed to present a formulated call for another meeting for the purpose mentioned, at the Barker hotel next Sunday at 3 o'clock. A committee consisting of Messrs. Gregory, Tanner and Snyder was appointed to inquire into the possibility of securing rooms in a conven-ient location, for the use of the organization.

Wrestling Match Declared Off.

A few weeks ago Ed Rothery made a wager of $25 that he could produce an unknown that would win in a wrestling match with an unknown spoken of by another party. A forfeit was posted and the final deposit was to be made last Saturday night. Rothery was on deck but the other backer did not show up, and in consequence the deposit was forfeited and the match declared off.
