MORTUARY MATTERS.

Deaths of Those Who Have Departed This Life. J. H. Green, traveling passenger agent of the Union Pacific, who was called away last Monday by the announcement of the impending death of his mother at Centerville, Mich., has telegraphed that her death occurred on Tuesday last.

Word was received in this city of the death yesterday of Mrs. J. B. Davis, wife of Major Davis, of Walnut. The latter is a brother of the late O. F. Davis, of this city.

James O'Boyle died Thursday evening at his late residence, 519 North Eighteenth street, after an illness of seven weeks. Mr. O'Boyle was well known in this city, mainly as one of the oldest members of the police force, on which he had served for nearly six years.

The remains of this young man were buried yesterday by his associates in South Omaha. The funeral took place from Barrett & Healy's. It is claimed that the young man was in the jail at South Omaha for some trivial offense and while there was taken ill.

Barrett & Healy failed to hear from this young man's friends in Chicago, and several of his fellow-workmen in South Omaha have made arrangements for his interment.

A Street Car Runaway. Considerable excitement was caused at about 9:30 o'clock last evening when a pair of horses attached to Red line car No. 50 dashed from the Union Pacific depot down Tenth street to Farnam, where the car was pitched into one of the trenches made in the construction of the cable tracks.

The police court was crowded with spectators yesterday afternoon, and within the railing sat the ten men charged with gambling. Judge Herkin called the roll shortly after 2 o'clock and the trial commenced.
