The Pall Mall club will give its initial party Friday evening.

"Little Boss" The best five cigar in the city. Troxell Bros., agents.

Part of the Michael Strogoff company were quartered at the Creston house and part at the Kiel house.

Mulholland & Co. yesterday took out a building permit for a one-story frame costing $500 to be erected in Turley's addition.

The roof of the patrol house was finished yesterday and a flag pole erected. The winter storms will vainly seek admittance.

The "Michael Strogoff" company was quartered all over the city. Delegations were found at the Ogdens, Bechtels, Pacific, Creston and Kiel's.

Cards were distributed all over the city yesterday morning, requesting people to vote the union labor ticket.

The telephone service is suffering from lack of instruments, the company being about ready to taking their orders. There are ordered and expected to arrive every day.

Last Saturday evening Miss Faye Biederman gave a party to which her little friends and associates were invited.

The household of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Hanman was made happy on Sunday last by the arrival of a wee bit of feminine humanity.

The track of the Chicago & North-western railroad company running to the site of the new bridge is doing good service.

George W. Ferguson, of the Pacific house, received a telegram last evening, conveying the sad intelligence of his mother's death at Rutland, Vt.

One of the men employed on the street paving, after lighting his pipe yesterday afternoon, carelessly threw the match into one of the tar kins and the whole thing was instantly in a blaze.

A spark from a Chicago & North-western locomotive ignited the dry grass beside the track in the northern part of the city Sunday afternoon and the fire was with extreme difficulty that the fire was prevented from running through Fairview cemetery.

The fire committee have ordered a buggy of E. H. Waterman for the use of the chief of the fire department. It will be stationed at No. 3 hose house and be kept in readiness for his use at any moment.

The paving of Fifth avenue, between Main and Fourth streets, was finished yesterday and work resumed on Fourth street.

THE CLUB FORMALLY OPENS.

A Brilliant Gathering in the Elegant Rooms Last Night.

THE CREEK AS A CITY SEWER.

A Decision That It Must Not Be So Used—Accident to a Paver—Other Police Cases.

The Club Opening.

Last night was the formal opening of the Council Bluffs club.

The gathering consisted of members, and their ladies, with invited guests, each member being entitled to invite one non-member resident, with ladies.

The rooms appeared to the advantage, brilliantly lighted, elegantly furnished, and filled with such an assemblage of ladies and gentlemen.

The billiard parlor is made as convenient and attractive as such an apartment could well be.

The office is well furnished with cigar stand, desks, etc.

Further along the long hall which runs the entire length of the building are similar rooms and conveniences for ladies.

On one side of the hall are two large rooms, one for cards, the other for dining purposes, but they are furnished as parlors, beautiful in adornments and with the finest possible carpets and chairs.

Much has been written about these rooms, but still nine out of ten of those who enter them for the first time express surprise, finding them more elegant than they expected even from these descriptions.

The reception last evening was an enjoyable one.

The company in the latter part of the evening were favored with the following vocal program:

Song, "The Vagabond," Malloy.

Mr. I. M. T. rector.

Violin Solo, "Landscape," H. Wladowski.

Prof. Charles Baetens.

Judge Carson is enjoying a brief respite at home. He next goes to Atlantic, where he expects to be busy holding court until the holidays.

W. A. Vincent, Woodbine; Edwin Gardner, Montreal; Mrs. Charles Higgins and child, Beatrice, and Mr. Rathmund, Cincinnati, registered at the Bechtels yesterday.

TO BY COURT AND ATTORNEYS WITH MINGLED ASTONISHMENT AND MERRIMENT.

It was the only argument in the case, and when the evidence was all in Judge Deemer quickly decided to grant the temporary writ of injunction, intimating that if Ferguson & Son wanted other sewer it was for the owners of the property to give the needed relief.

With this decision the syndicate which now owns the property will doubtless proceed to connect with the Broadway sewer, and thus give the Pacific house the needed accommodation, and at the same time relieve the noses of the citizens of the unpleasant odors from that direction.

It is understood that the others offending by emptying sewerage into the creek will next be called on to reform.

The success of this case will doubtless lead to others being brought.

It is understood that the Ogdens house and the Bechtels house are still using the creek for sewerage.

The sewer of the city building itself was until lately emptied into the creek, but this has been changed now.

If you want to show your girl what kind of a husband you will make buy her a Domestic sewing machine.

NEARLY AS BADLY ALARMED AT FIRST, RECOVERED THEMSELVES ALMOST IMMEDIATELY AND STARTED TO RUN.

One of them ran under a freight car and pressed out from between the trucks, looking as though he meant fight. Very few men would have cared to go into such a death-trap as the under side of that car appeared to be, but the keeper of the animals, Mr. Fisher himself, unhesitatingly followed the monster to his hiding place, and getting down on all fours went under the car seemingly right "into the jaws of death."

For half a minute nothing was seen but dust and nothing was heard but the savage howl of the tiger, and the lookers-on, who were before this perched on top of freight cars and other safe places, became satisfied that a fight was in progress, and it was not to be supposed that his tigership was being worsted.

He had been, however, for presently the man came out—rather the worse for wear and tear—but he came pulling the strided demon after him.

A canvas cloth was very soon secured by the circus men, who had by this time assembled in front of them, and the tiger was held before he knew what was going on. The other beast made a bee line for the Frisco freight office, and dodging several men who were trying as hard to get out of the tiger's way as he was to get out of theirs, finally brought up in front of the depot, and squared himself for active defence.

By a novel procedure, however, the circus men also outwitted the animal, and caught him. Four men caught a long canvas cloth along its length—of perhaps fifteen feet—and holding it in front of them, walked toward the crouching beast.

When they were fifteen feet away a man at one of the cloth's ends, as quick as lightning, ran with the uppermost corner around the tiger, and before he was aware of it, the cloth was over him and he was a prisoner.

It was a easy matter to lift the canvas, tiger and all, into other cages and then to remove the canvas. The lion, all this time, was crouched, almost frightened to death, under a car, his tail was sticking out, and on the top of his head a circus man relied to save them and catch the king. If they could pull him out by the tail far enough to get the canvas over him, all would be well, but "if the tail hold broke" the men well knew somebody would be hurt.

The men anchored about the king and "heaved ho!" Dust and cinders were the order for a moment; then out came Mr. Lion. He was neatly bundled into the cloth, and the excitement was over.

The lion was not a typical king of the jungle, such as stories are told about. He was like the Irishman's pig—"little, but auld." His teeth were relics of the past, and his claws had not been subjected to a manure for so long that they had coiled themselves into little rings under his feet.

He bore all the marks of the seventh age—sage teeth, suns eyes, and the freedom with which he waived his right to a meal of a circus man spoke poorly for the circus man as an article of diet, or proved the lion to be a sort of a give away on the circus business.

Some monkeys were also caught. Half a dozen got away, or rather were spilled, and from the nature of things were easily caught. They were too frightened to run, too badly shaken up to even pick themselves out by their tails, and too nervous to be caught. Half a dozen got away, or rather were spilled, and from the nature of things were easily caught.

"How Can She Ever Love Him?" is what you often hear said when the prospective groom is the victim of a cat's paw.
