 Captain O'Brien was very hot yesterday over the published reports about his rumpus on election day over a borrowed umbrella. In his haste he swore all men were liars. "Nick" has been petted so much and so freely advertised as a wonderful detective and shrewd officer that it has rather spoiled him. He probably will get over it and find out that he is human, or at least that there are men foolish enough to think him so. His undue officiousness on election day laid him open to criticism, and he may yet find that the zeal of his house has eaten him up.

He left for Creston Tuesday evening.

A New Railway Line.
 There is a camp of railway engineers in Crescent township who are running a line about a hundred feet from the Northwestern track, and who say they are pushing for Council Bluffs. The line is supposed to be the Duluth, Minneapolis & Omaha. It is intimated that the intention is to run the line to this city and then cross here into Omaha. The stakes are being driven and the survey being made with the assurance that there will be no material changes in the line, and that the work of construction will follow within a reasonable time.

THE COUNT OF THE COUNTY.

It Swells the Democratic Majority in the City.

THE EFFECT OF PROHIBITION.
A Hotel Waiter Falls Heir to a Fortune—A Warlike Benedict—The District Court—Personal Paragraphs.

Counting the Chicks.
 The returns from the city and the county were nearly all in yesterday, and were being tabulated. They show the democratic victory to have been a sweeping one. The majority in the county is from 600 to 1,500, some candidates running far ahead of their ticket. The returns from city and county, with five townships to hear from, show the democratic candidate for governor, Major Anderson, to have a majority of 1,053. This county shows a large democratic gain over two years ago. There is no question but that the prohibition law, and the lack of energetic work and complete organization on the part of republicans, account for the change. Many of those who voted the democratic ticket will be found in their usual places, voting the republican ticket on the national issues.

The democratic candidate for treasurer, J. H. Plumer, will have a majority of 1,500 probably, when all the townships are heard from.

The republicans had great hopes of electing William Arnd as auditor and his personal popularity is shown from the fact that his opponent Ira Hendricks, will have a majority of not over 600.

The following are the majorities of the candidates in the several wards of the city:

| For Governor: | 1st. 2d. 3d. 4th. Total |
|-----------------------|-------------------------|
| T. J. Anderson..... | 101 281 124 225 731 |
| For Senator: | |
| Wm. A. Groneweg..... | 144 280 131 230 785 |
| For Sheriff: | |
| James O'Neil..... | 139 281 131 288 839 |
| For Treasurer: | |
| J. H. Plumer..... | 191 317 131 307 1,046 |
| For Auditor: | |
| I. A. Hendricks..... | 115 199 115 208 637 |
| Wm. A. Arnd..... | 115 199 115 208 637 |
| For Supervisor: | |
| J. K. Cooper..... | 120 159 165 254 798 |
| For Surveyor: | |
| J. F. Brodbeck..... | 135 241 90 191 657 |
| For Coroner: | |
| J. C. Waterman..... | 146 292 1 231 669 |
| For Township Trustee: | |
| Max Mohr..... | 126 268 123 200 717 |

John Bennett, who has served as county treasurer and in other important positions, and who was supposed to be beyond any possible defeat, is among those who will remain at home. James O'Neil, the democratic candidate for sheriff, lead him by a majority of nearly 1,200.

The following are the returns, sufficiently in detail to give an intelligent showing of the result of the battle of the ballots:

With the exception of William Arnd's success in the third and fourth wards, the democratic candidates carried everything in the city.
 The majorities of the successful candidates throughout the county were as follows:

MISSOURI VALLEY, Nov. 9.—Roberts, republican, for legislature, elected; Garrison, democrat, sheriff, elected; Massie, democrat, treasurer, 14 majority; Crosslake, republican, auditor, elected; Kinney, superintendent, elected. The vote to change the county seat back to Magnolia was defeated by 200 majority. Logan reckoned on 1,000 majority. The vote here for $25,000 bonds for waterworks was carried by a big majority.

GLENSWOOD, Ia., Nov. 9.—The republicans elected senator, representative, auditor, county superintendent, surveyor and coroner, and have a majority on the state ticket of about fifty. This is a gain of the first two and last officers.

Prohibition Did It.
 Overheard between two rank republicans:
 First—"How is this? I heard that you voted the straight democratic ticket yesterday. Is that so?"
 Second—"Yes, it's a fact. I ain't the only one by a long ways. There was a good company of us."

First—"Why, how in the world could you do that? You've been such a hot republican that you're the last man in the world I should have thought would have gone back on the ticket."
 Second—"Well, I'll tell you. I don't believe in a side show crowding the big tent so as to knock down the center pole. When they get the big tent up again, and put the side show in its place at one side, you'll find me with the circus again. I don't like side shows much anyway. They're good enough to catch suckers with, but when the side show takes the place of the circus itself, I won't have anything to do with it."
 Another street corner talk:
 "How do you account for it that so many of the leading republicans voted the democratic ticket?"
 "That ain't no hard conundrum. Prohibition. I tell you when you touch a man's pocket he yells. Prohibition has been ripping the leather of some of these men who own property. They holler. You can't help it. From the time a fellow leaves the cradle and begins making pennies up to the time he is tottering towards the grave making dollars, he hangs on to his leather. He may talk morals, but nine out of ten will say, 'I'll just take care of the stuff first, and then I'll be moral.' The leather covers the conscience, and gets pretty tough to prick, and when a law comes along that just rips it wide open fellows begin to holler. That's why some of these big men, great republicans, voted the democratic ticket. They say they must protect their property and have prohibition some other time, when some other fellow owns the building which they want to rent."

Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Treynor and Mrs. Ward assist in the musical exercises at the Methodist sociable to-night.

Crooked Polls.
 It is conceded that there was much buying of votes on election day. The county attorney, Colonel Daily, who was chairman of the republican county central committee, was knowing personally to some of these transactions, and he has been given the names of witnesses in other cases. It is understood that he will have the grand jury investigate the matter of crookedness at the polls, and it is expected that the offenders will be prosecuted with the boldness and vigor which characterizes Colonel Daily when he is called upon to step into court. There has never been an election when such brazen bribery was manifest, and such utter disregard for the purity of the ballot box. If one-tenth of the reports are true it seems there is an excellent chance for some of the workers at the polls to go down deep into their pockets to pay fines, or spend a portion of their lifetime behind the bars.
 Some of those who have been looked upon as having been actively engaged in this nefarious business are badly rattled and are begging for mercy, offering excuses and explanations to throw aside the well-founded suspicions. There will be much interest taken among the honest voters of all parties in the settlement of the question whether votes can be bought and bribes offered, and the offenders go unpunished.
 Another class of offenders are to be looked after. There were several known cases in which men voted illegally using the name of some registered voter who was not able to be here to vote himself, and in some cases men who had a right to vote and came to the polls to do so, found that some one else had got the start of them and voted for them.
 The grand jury was impaneled yesterday, and they will doubtless have some evidence before them. It remains to be seen how much backbone there is in the prosecution and punishment of these offenders.

Oysters in every style and a good time for all at Broadway church to-night. Come.

A Bloodthirsty Husband.
 A few weeks since one Parett, living in the western part of the city, was arrested for threatening the lives of his family. He agreed to leave this part of the moral vineyard and never come back, if the judge would give him an opportunity. He was taken at his word and seen safely across the river. No more was heard from the Parett household until Tuesday night, when the police were sent for to again take possession of the bloodthirsty head of the family. He was brought before Judge Aylesworth yesterday morning, but was sent back to jail until his case could be decided upon what disposition to make of his case. His family are in mortal terror when he is around, not knowing at what moment he will put his terrible threats into execution.

Money to loan. Cooper & Judson.

Virginia Last Night.
 Those who were at the opera house last evening were given a choice entertainment indeed. Louis James is an artist, and although expectation ran high, yet there was no disappointment. His resemblance to McCullough was noticeable, not only in his physique, but to no mean degree in his strength of character. The audience was enthusiastic. It could not help but be so, for yesterday such an artist stepped on the stage before a Council Bluffs audience. Miss Wainwright rightfully shared in the honors of the evening. Her every move is graceful and her classic draping and posing were especially pleasing. The support of these stars was excellent.

The District Court.
 Judge Loofbourow yesterday opened his term of the district court in this city. The grand jury was empaneled and will begin its active labors this morning.
 Two divorces were heard and granted, Mrs. Barrett being the plaintiff in one and Mrs. Minnie Brewer in the other. The following assignment was made of equity cases for to-day and to-morrow:
 Thursday—Nos. 4643, 4670, 5508, 5524, 5525, 5529, 5527.
 Friday—Nos. 4880, 4884, 4989, 4995, 5107, 5109, 5111, 5121, 5138, 5134.
 Court adjourned until 9 o'clock this morning, the rule for opening court at 10 o'clock being suspended, it seems.

The Social Season.
 The social season has fairly opened and the constant round of parties, balls and theatrical entertainments has caused a great rush of business for at least one man in the city, namely, William Lewis, proprietor of the Council Bluffs bus, carriage and transfer line. He has as fine a lot of hacks, coupes and carriages as can be found anywhere, and the society gentlemen of this city have realized that they will have to attend any kind of an evening's entertainment without ordering a coupe. It is the intention of Mr. Lewis to branch out still more extensively, and in the spring he will fit up a livery department for the convenience of his patrons. Mr. Lewis gives his personal attention to all calls and sees that carriages are promptly on hand when wanted. This removes all uneasiness from the minds of his patrons, and not only increases their evening's enjoyment, but establishes a confidence in his punctuality that will assure him continued success.
